Brando, Ex-Wife in Hassle Over Youngster

Hollywood — (UPI) — Anna Kashfi claimed Saturday ex-husband Marlon Brando tried to see their 19-month-old son on Christmas Day in defiance of a temporary court order designed as a truce in a bitter visitation battle between the parents.

Miss Kashfi, who returned here this week from Europe, said she refused to permit Brando and an unidentified woman to enter the house Friday. "I simply can't be humiliated and embarrassed in this way," said Miss Kashfi.

The actress insisted she had permission of the court to have "undisturbed enjoyment" of Christian Devi Brando on Christmas. She said under the ruling, Brando had the same rights for Thanksgiving.

Brings Another Woman

"It's bad enough that I have to go into hiding in my own house on Marlon's regular visiting day," Miss Kashfi said, "but when he brings another woman, that's the last straw."

Paul Magasin, Miss Kashfi's attorney, said she was "quite distraught and in tears" over the incident she said took place Friday afternoon.

"This is definitely an illustration of what's been going on in the past," the attorney said, "make it impossible to reach an amicable agreement."

The attorney said Miss Kashfi's story of what happened Friday would be brought to the attention of the court at the renewal of the visitation hearing on Jan. 13.

Judge Lists Rules

Superior Judge Mervyn Aggeler issued a list of rules for temporary visitation rights when the two sides failed to reach agreement at a hearing last November in Santa Monica superior court. Brando wants the court to hold Miss Kashfi in contempt for violating provisions of the original divorce agreement on visiting privileges. Miss Kashfi in turn demanded a restraining order to prevent Brando from "annoying, harrasing or molesting" her.

She accused Brando of striking and beating her when he came to visit their son. Brando said his ex-wife threatened him with a butcher knife and once tried to run him down with a automobile. The charges were made in affidavits filed with the court.

Donkey-Riding Senator Makes Good on Pledge

Winona, Miss. — (UPI) — A newly elected Mississippi state senator set out on a donkey Saturday to travel 90 miles to the state capital at Jackson and make good a campaign pledge.

Ahead of donkey-riding Sen-elect Hugh Baile plodded constable-elect H. D. (Buster) Montague riding a bull. Montague also promised voters last summer that, if elected, he would ride a bull to Jackson.

"We expect to arrive in Jackson about 10 a.m. Wednesday and be greeted there by the Winona Confederate cavalry, about 100 strong," Baile said.

Making Good Time

Reached by telephone at Vaiden where they took a lunch break and a walk to loosen their saddle-sore muscles, the two politicians said they were making better time than expected.

"It gets a little uncomfortable now and then, but I have a special saddle made with a sponge seat," Baile said.

The 1960 legislature does not convene until Jan. 5, but Baile said he wanted to arrive early.

"I want to get there in time to watch the Sugar Bowl game on television and rest up," he said.

Mrs. Baile said her husband and Montague are determined to complete the trip despite the possibility of bad weather.

"I asked him what if it snows or rains, you are surely going to stop," she said.

"No, I'm going on," her husband replied.

People they met along the way were somewhat puzzled when they saw the strange caravan.

"People turn around the second time to see if they are seeing straight — a man riding a bull followed by a donkey," Baile said.

Mother of 10 Shot to Death

Houston, Tex. — (UPI) — A mother of 10 children was shot to death just before midnight Friday night because her husband said he heard a noise in their henhouse.

Dead was Mrs. Jessie James Arnold, 34, wife of a 36-year-old Negro porter.

Arnold, who was in jail today, told police the shotgun blast which killed his wife was accidental.

Man Charged With Killing Wife, Girl

Richmond, Mo. — (UPI) — Two first degree murder charges were filed Saturday by Charles Sloan, district attorney, against James McGill, alleged killer of two.

McGill, 26, now in the Ray County Memorial hospital, shot and killed his 22-year-old former wife, Mrs. Sherry McGill and their 15-month-old daughter, Lee Ann McGill last night.

McGill, along with the bodies of his family, had been found in his ex-wife's apartment, near the bathroom. He told doctors he had shot himself twice with the same .22-caliber rifle he used on the victims.

Dog Leads Searchers To Dead Master

North Wilkesboro, N. C. — (UPI) — A dog, faithful even in death, led searchers to a mountain area where his master committed suicide Christmas day.

The body of Mitchell C. Higgins, a 31-year-old Korean War veteran, was found after the dog returned home alone and coaxed searchers to follow him back to the abandoned farm house where Higgins lay dead of a broken neck. The farmhouse was Higgins' birthplace.
