Kennedy's Coup in Ohio Fails To Shake Symington

Washington—UPI—Sen. John F. Kennedy's (D-Mass.) political coup in Ohio failed today to jolt Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.) into any primary battles for the Democratic presidential nomination.

A third major Democratic contender, Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn.), said he would stay in the fight for his party's presidential nomination even if he lost the key Wisconsin primary in April. But he said he had no intention of losing there or elsewhere.

To Be Favorite Son

Ohio Gov. Michael V. DiSalle Tuesday in effect gave his state's 64 convention votes to Kennedy by unexpectedly announcing he would campaign in the May 3 primary as a favorite son candidate pledged to the Massachusetts senator.

DiSalle, a Roman Catholic like Kennedy, said he did not think any major candidate would challenge him in the Ohio primary. This meant that Kennedy could skip that race and concentrate on campaigning for convention delegates in other state primaries.

Kennedy and Humphrey have declared they are formal candidates for the Democratic nomination. Symington, Senate Democratic Leader, Lyndon B. Johnson (Tex.) and Adlai E. Stevenson, unsuccessful 1952 and 1956 candidate, are considered possibilities but have not formally entered the race.

"I'm not an avowed candidate and I'm not entering any primaries," Symington told a news conference Tuesday.

Other political developments:

Vice President Richard M. Nixon, expected GOP nominee, received a full report on Nixon-for-president campaign machinery in New Hampshire. But he would not tell his backers whether he would let his name remain in the state's March 8 primary.

Sen. Stephen J. Young (D-Ohio) joined DiSalle's endorsement of Kennedy. But the state's other Democratic senator, Frank J. Lausche, refused to go along.

BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION — President Eisenhower was one of many friends on hand to help Senate Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen celebrate his 64th birthday at a party in Washington. Eisenhower, Others Help Dirksen Observe Birthday

Washington—UPI—Everett McKinley Dirksen, Republican senator from Illinois and Senate GOP leader, celebrated his 64th birthday anniversary Tuesday night, and just about everybody who is anybody in Washington political circles attended.

President Eisenhower was there. So were Vice President and Mrs. Richard M. Nixon, scores of senators from both parties, cabinet officers, and representatives of both sides of the steel strike.

"I told President Eisenhower 'thank you, for settlement of the steel dispute,'" said Mrs. David J. McDonald, wife of the United Steelworkers union president.

Dirksen beamed throughout the evening. When asked what birthday present Congress could give him in the form of legislative action, the senator "couldn't think of a thing."

John Deere Day Slated Thursday

A film, free lunch and a display of the latest farm equipment and machinery will be featured during John Deere day Thursday at Hubbard Wray company, 909 South Riverside ave., Medford, it was announced today.

Free lunch will be served at the store starting at 11 a.m. The show, featuring "Tom Gordon Returns," starts at the Craterian theater at 1:15 p.m.

Included in the scheduled films is a report on the new John Deere 435 Diesel tractor, developments in 8-row farming, and grain drying, a company spokesman said.

The varied entertainment will include musical numbers, "Oddities in Farming," a film tour of the John Deere plow works to see precision automatic production of high-speed plow shares.

Applications Being Taken for Positions

Applications are being accepted for forester positions and professional nurses in federal jobs throughout the country, the civil service commission has announced.

More Liberal Social Security Program Visioned

Washington—UPI—Speaker Sam Rayburn, ruling out major tax cuts, predicted today that the election year Congress will boost the $1 an hour minimum wage and liberalize the social security program.

Rayburn made the statement to newsmen at the second session of the 86th Congress convened.

Civil Rights Action Urged

Rayburn invited House members — but pointedly did not urge them — to take quick action to pass a pending civil rights bill which would bolster voting rights in the South and provide new penalties for obstructing school desegregation orders.

Civil rights, social security and minimum wage legislation are among the numerous election year problems confronting the second session of the 86th Congress, from whose ranks could come the next President of the United States.

The session also will be charged with election year politics. Five presidential hopefuls are in the Senate.

President Speaks Thursday

The opening day session of both the House and Senate were largely routine and ceremonial.

No formal business was planned in either body until after President Eisenhower delivers his State of the Union address to a joint session Thursday.

National defense, another major issue, got prompt attention.

Two senators, a Democrat and a Republican, called for strengthening America's defenses. Sen. Thomas J. Dodd (D-Conn.) said that a determined fight should be made for a "sharp" boost in spending for missiles, nuclear submarines and conventional military forces. His GOP colleague from Connecticut, Sen. Prescott Bush, said the United States must make sure that "national defenses remain impregnable until an effective, controlled disarmament is negotiated."

Farm Legislation Doubtful

Rayburn, discussing the legislative outlook for the new session, said measures dealing with school construction, housing and aid for depressed areas would be considered this year. He indicated doubt that any new farm legislation would become law in view of the stalemate between the administration and Congress on the issue.

Rayburn said no decision had been reached on whether the Democratic leadership will go along with Eisenhower's renewed insistence that Congress repeal the 4 1/2 percent ceiling on interest on marketable government bonds.

Leaders of the Democratic majority, frustrated last year by Eisenhower's effective use of the veto, postponed any maneuvering until after the chief executive delivers his State of the Union message.

Denmark Bars Nuclear Vessel

Copenhagen—UPI—Denmark will not allow the U. S. nuclear freighter Savannah to visit here unless the United States supplies full information about its safety equipment, it was announced today.

The Danes would not let the U. S. atomic submarine Nautilus call here last year because U. S. authorities refused to give details of the secret equipment that guards against radiation from its reactor engine.

Atomic energy chief Christian L. Thomsen, who returned recently from Washington, said today he believes the U. S. will be more willing to talk about the safety devices that protect the Savannah.

"We expect a report on the problems of nuclear vessels in harbor from a Danish engineer who spent nearly a year in the United States studying the subject," Thomsen said.

"This report will be of great value, but only a security report from the American authorities would be decisive."

NIXON TO SPEAK

South Bend, Ind.—UPI—Vice President Richard M. Nixon will receive the seventh annual Patriotism award from Notre Dame university's senior class next month. Nixon also will deliver an address at the school's traditional Washington's birthday exercises Feb. 23.

Policy of Massive Retaliation With Nuclear Weapons Said Endangering National Security

New York—UPI—Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, former chief of staff of the Army, believes that the present United States policy of massive retaliation with nuclear weapons is "unrealistic" and is endangering our national security.

He contends, however, that if the United States will quickly revise its military program it can overtake the Russians in two years.

Te retired general's newly-published book, "The Uncertain Trumpet" is expected to have a controversial effect on the current session of Congress in matters relating to military policy and the budget.

Taylor urged the government to immediately put into effect four "quick fixes" to remedy the military situation. He called for:

- Improved planning and training for limited war.
- Exploitation of the mobile intermediate range ballistic missile (IRBM).
- Better protection for the Strategic Air Command.
- A limited fall-out shelter program.

Taylor contends it will take the free world too long to close the missile gap. He says we have spent too much time and too much money on weapons for massive retaliation and have neglected conventional weapons.

The fixed size of the defense budget, according to the general, has become "the prime cause" of the rivalry between the armed services which, he insists, "is undermining national confidence in our military programs."

Industrials Slip From High Ground

New York—UPI—The industrial stock average slipped a bit today after Tuesday's romp into record high territory.

Brokers said the boost in the rate charged on loans to brokers and dealers by leading New York City banks brought caution into the trading community. The move was widely interpreted as foreshadowing another possible advance in the prime rate.

Selling hit some of the stocks in the average. DuPont and American Telephone, firm at the opening, showed fractional losses after the first hour.

Steels were mixed for the most part. Youngstown and Republic were up around a half or more. U.S. Steel and Bethlehem ease d. Chrysler lost more than a point after picking up nearly 3 Tuesday.

American Motors lost about the same and General Motors fell a fraction.

Electronics also were mixed. Chemicals firmed. Oils, metals and rails held around Tuesday's levels.

Miniature Recording Purchases Revealed By Subcommittee

Washington—UPI—The Senate Constitutional Rights Subcommittee reported today that eight different federal offices bought 17 miniature wire recorders during the past six months.

Sen. Thomas C. Hennings Jr. (D-Mo.), subcommittee chairman, said no conclusions have been drawn that the "mere possession of a miniature recording device is necessarily sinister or even improper."

But Hennings said the subcommittee went after the information because it wants to "reach a better understanding of the present day use of wiretapping and electronic eavesdropping devices, by whom and for what purposes."

Hennings said the subcommittee found in a preliminary inquiry federal agencies

Washington Man Being Held Here

Edward Duncan Tracy, 31, of Seattle, Wash., is being held in Jackson county jail today on charges of car theft, state police reported.

Police said Duncan admitted in a signed statement that he took a car from Seattle Monday. He is being held for Washington authorities and the FBI, state police said.

State police arrested Tracy two miles south of Neil creek near Ashland yesterday during a routine traffic check.

Communists Said Possible Behind Anti-Semitism

Bonn, Germany—UPI—The West German government said today that Communists may be in back of recent anti-Semitic outbursts in this country.

Government press chief Felix von Eckardt said there was "no positive proof" that the incidents were organized and controlled by a single organization but he added "we hope to have the proof soon."

Von Eckardt told United Press International after his formal news conference that the synagogue desecration in Cologne Christmas Eve, which started the rash of incidents throughout Germany and the world, probably was spontaneous and unorganized.

Can Help Only Enemies

"But the rash of incidents following appears to have definitely been steered by a central organization," he said. "And these incidents can help only the enemies of the Federal Republic, namely the Communists."

He said there were "definite conclusions" that the incidents had been organized by some central group.

An unsmiling Chancellor Konrad Adenauer called in his top aides to discuss the growing anti-Semitic disturbances.

His conferences were expected to result in two-fold measures to stamp them out.

Government Buys 6,231 Cars, Trucks

Washington—UPI—The government has purchased $10,732,662 worth of autos and trucks, including its first fleet of new compact cars.

The General Services Administration, the government's "housekeeping" agency, said Tuesday contracts for the 6,231 vehicles were mailed last week to General Motors, Chrysler, American Motors and Studebaker-Packard.

Included in the purchase was a contract for 340 Rambler American sedans, the first government-owned cars in the 100-inch wheelbase class.
