Humphrey To Visit In Eastern Oregon

Portland —(UPI)— Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, will concentrate his Oregon visit next month in eastern Oregon and Portland, his headquarters said Tuesday.

Humphrey, who will be in Oregon Feb. 7 to 9, will be making his first trip to the state since the formal announcement of his candidacy.

The Medical Roundup

by Walter Alvarez

Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic
Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Clinic

We Doctors Should Avoid Medical Jargon

One of our serious problems in medicine is our great fondness for the long Latin word, and the vague, involved sentence. Many of us, and even some editors of medical journals, really believe that a scientific article written in clear, simple Anglo-Saxon speech is undignified. Many a time, when I have had an article accepted by a medical editor he has had a high school girl in his department completely rewrite it–changing my "hiccup" into "singultus," my "distress on swallowing" to "dysphagia" and my "cold" to "rhinitis." If I wrote that way in this column, I soon would be without readers.

As I was writing this, I picked up from my desk an article by Hemmingway, and found in two consecutive lines only words of one syllable. And yet, those sentences were impressive and dignified. Also on my desk I found an article by my distinguished friend, the great medical editor, Dr. Morris Fishbein. Like me, he was protesting against the love we doctors have for the longest words we can find. For instance, Dr. Fishbein quoted from surgical articles the commonly-made statement that "after operation early intermittent ambulation is advisable." All this means is that as soon as possible the patient should be gotten out of bed! Dr. Fishbein says that he finds today that no one is "poor"; he is "in a lower income bracket," or "he is underprivileged." Worse yet; no one now falls in love; if he has been psychoanalyzed, he says "our libidinal impulses have become reciprocal, we integrated our erotic drives, and brought them within the same frame of reference." Isn't that touching!

Typical Example

The following is a typical example of English as written by one of the most revered leaders of the psychoanalytic movement. This sort of gobbledegook is worshipped by analysts today. "It is a methodological error to attempt to interpret psychologically an organic symptom which is the end-result of an intermediary chain of organic processes instead of trying to understand those vegetative nervous impulses in their relation to psychologic factors which introduce a chain of organic events resulting in an organic disturbance." One of my dear friends, an able and distinguished psychiatrist, tells me he suspects that some of his colleagues write such meaningless stuff just to fool themselves and their students into believing that they know something.

The other Sunday, as I looked through the proceedings of a great Congress of world experts on strokes, I was amused to see how carefully all of the delegates had avoided the use of the word "stroke." They spoke always of "cerebral vascular accidents." The "little strokes" that I have been describing for over 25 years, they called "transient repeated episodes of cerebral ischemia." Actually, the study of brains of people who have died slowly of the very common "little strokes" are found to be full of little black or tiny brown spots, which were produced, not by the supposed transient spasm of a vessel (ischemia) but by the clotting of blood and the plugging-up of a tiny artery.

One big reason why, throughout a long lifetime, I have trained myself to avoid, whenever possible, the use of long technical words is that, when talking to patients who are not medically educated, I want them to understand me. I remember once hearing one of America's most distinguished physicians saying to a sweet old farm laborer, "The cause of your edema and ascites is the alarming augmentation in the titer of your N.P.N.!" The poor fellow's trouble was that his legs were swollen and his abdomen was full of fluid because his kidneys had failed!

Last week I saw in the office an executive who said that after listening for three months to a psychiatrist he had left because he just couldn't understand a word the fellow was saying!

Hearing Loss

All people with deafness and other ear troubles will be interested in the book, "Hearing Loss, What Can Be Done About It," by Dr. Graydon G. Boyd (Lippincott). It has fine chapters on what happens to the several parts of the ear when deafness of different types comes to a person. It tells what can be done about some types of deafness. Some can be cured by an operation and some cannot.

Dr. Alvarez' booklet on arthritis and rheumatism may be obtained by sending 25 cents and a large, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Dr. Walter C. Alvarez, Dept. MMT, The Register and Tribune Syndicate, Box 957, Des Moines 4, Iowa.

(Released by The Register and Tribune Syndicate, 1960)

Grange Notes

Upper Applegate Grange

The Upper Applegate Grange met at the hall Jan. 8 for the first regular meeting of the new year.

Gail Buffington, newly elected Master, presided. Mrs. Clarence Williams, chaplain; Edward Finley, steward; Mrs. Glenn Williams, Pomona, and Jim Winningham, executive committee member, were installed. George Redhead was installing officer.

Reports of various officers were read.

The ways and means chairman, Ethel West, reported on the New Year's dance, which was a success. The committee is planning a Valentine's dance in February.

A practice was called Friday evening, Jan. 15 for the new degree team. They are giving the third and fourth degrees in full hereafter.

It was agreed by all present that the second meeting of the month is to be an open meeting. All neighbors and friends are welcome to the meetings.

For the lecture hour, a group of members entertained with several songs. A "paper sack" race was won by the ladies who competed against the men for a prize.

All lady Grangers are asked to bring six sandwiches for the social meeting of Jan. 22.

Red Hat Committee Recommends Program

Salem —(UPI)— The Governor's Red Hat Days committee met Monday and one of the recommendations considered was establishment of a mandatory firearms safety training program in the state.

RAIL CENTER

Chicago—About 4,100 trains are operated each day into and out of Chicago.

JUVENILE COURTS

Chicago – The first juvenile courts in the U.S. were established in Chicago as separate units in 1899. The idea originated in Adelaide, South Australia, a year before that change.
