

Opposition Arguments Expressed By Residents Across from Engine

By GREG NOKES
Mail Tribune Staff Writer

They like the locomotive, but they don't like where it is. Especially Mrs. Joyce Pidcock, 744 McAndrews rd., who says, "if anyone had to look at that thing morning, noon and night as I do, they wouldn't want it there either."

"Some might say, 'well don't look at it, but it's pretty hard not to, when it is the only thing I can see from the front of our home,' she added.

ENGINE DISCUSSED—Neighborhood women and Medford parks commissioners met yesterday at the home of Mrs. Earl Pidcock, 744 McAndrews rd., to see what could be done to make "Old Number 4" (background) a little more sightly or to move it from its present location. The women above, in the driveway of the Pidcock home, are, left to right, Mrs. Pidcock, Mrs. Kenneth Christianson, Mrs. H. C. McCollum and Mrs. Lawrence Anderson.

Mrs. Lawrence Anderson, 742 McAndrews rd., expressed the sentiments of the rest when she said the city should have placed the locomotive towards the southwest corner of the park, around which there are no homes that would be affected.

Unwise Choice of Site
She and most of the other residents of the area along McAndrews rd. feel that the city made an unwise choice of a site for the old logging engine which was donated to the city by the Medford Corporation.

Mrs. H. C. McCollum, 764 McAndrews rd., Mrs. Bill McHorgue, an employee at Chuck's Market, 838 McAndrews rd., and Mrs. Kenneth Christianson, 740 McAndrews rd., also voiced their opposition to the engine, but said they do not feel that their complaints will change the city's mind.

Because the engine is about the only thing they can see from the front of their homes, Mrs. Anderson, Mrs. Pidcock, and Mrs. McCollum, do not see how the improvement of the rest of the park will help them, because they could not see it anyway.

Mrs. McHorgue and Mrs. Charles H. Clark, whose husband owns Chuck's Market, are not affected by the engine directly, except for the noise, but sympathize with their neighbors, who they say are not the type to complain about things.

Both said that they would be just as adamant in their opposition if they had to live across from the locomotive. Mrs. McHorgue is also worried about children playing on the engine. Although the city has erected a fence between the locomotive and the street, she does not feel that it is yet well enough protected from much-traveled McAndrews rd., on which are many logging trucks and other commercial vehicles. She thinks children will still be running inadvertently into the street while playing on and around the engine.

The neighborhood is not the best in the city, Mrs. Anderson said, but neither is it the worst, and the type of neighborhood should not give the city any right to put a locomotive "in their front yards."

"Of course we live outside the city," Mrs. Pidcock said, "but we are being affected by something the city is doing, so even though we do not have any votes in city elections, we still have the right to protest. Besides, this particular area will be part of the city someday anyway," she added.

Back from Road
Mrs. Pidcock does not agree with the city that the housing authority buildings looked worse than the locomotive. "They looked bad all right, but at least they were set back from the road a proper distance," she said.

Mrs. Clark said, "It is a fine monument, but the location is very bad. For some reason the city seems to think this is a tourist area. Well, it's not. McAndrews rd. is a busy thoroughfare and there are no convenient places to park near the locomotive so tourists could not stop and park even if they wanted to."

"Another thing," she said, "the park department, or somebody from the city, came up with a survey that not more than four children had been playing on the engine at any one time for the last six weeks. Well, the weather has been so wet, foggy and cold lately that, of course, children aren't playing on it, but wait 'til summer, then take a survey."

Almost Blind Corner
Both Mrs. Anderson and Mrs. Clark expressed dismay that the Clark st. intersection with McAndrews rd. has now become a blind corner with the locomotive almost completely blocking the view to the left for a car coming onto McAndrews rd.

They both drive Clark st. quite frequently, they said, and have to pull almost onto McAndrews rd. in order to make sure there is no traffic coming.

Commission Members Russ Jamison and Verl Walker, along with Haworth, went to the home of Mrs. Pidcock Tuesday afternoon and met with her and her four neighbors to discuss the issue at hand.

The commission members presented the city's view to the women and the women presented their views to the commission members, but nothing was decided, and the issues remained pretty much as they were before the visit.

However, Jamison told the women that their objections would be included in the report to the city council Thursday.

Mrs. Pidcock summed up the views of the neighbors when she said, "we feel that if any other property owner in the city, commission members included, had this thing in front of their homes, they too would protest."

Los Angeles—UPI—An estimated one million residents have been stricken in Los Angeles' epidemic of Asian flu and officials called a special press conference for today to discuss "serious developments" in the 10-day-old outbreak.

One of the developments expected to be announced was the high incidence of pneumonia among those infected. The health departments were known to have been investigating reports that pneumonia cases in the area were higher than average and may be the result of a complication of Asian flu.

Mrs. Shinar's maternal grandparents came from the East via the Oregon Trail. Her father left his job as a banker in Washington, D.C. and made the voyage "round the Horn" to Oregon.
