The Family Council

Editor's Note: The Family Council consists of a Judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counselors.

Jerome S. – Laura resents my ambition.

Laura S. – He doesn't consider me at all.

* * *

Jerome S.–My wife and I are in our early 20's. We have been married three years and have a year-old daughter. Our only serious problem is my ambition. My wife thinks I have too much of it.

We got married when I was still in college and working part time. I immediately started working full time and going to college part time. It will now take me another year to get my degree. After that time I want to get a master's and doctor's degree. All of this will take about eight or nine years at the rate I'm going.

My parents are willing to help us by having us live in their very large, comfortable house until I get through school. Then I can finish up in four years. I will be able to get an administrative job and in no time we'll be on our feet with a wonderful future. But Laura is unwilling to do this for me.

Laura S. – When we got married, Jerry and I agreed that what we both wanted most was to be on our own. He said no matter how rough the going got we should have our own place and never have to live with parents.

Now, after three years of rough going he is ready to give up – but I'm not. My in-laws are O.K., but I'd hate to have to deal with them every waking hour of the day – which is exactly what I'd be doing. Jerry would be at school or in his room studying.

Jerry doesn't consider me at all. I once wanted to go to college too, but it's too late now. While he is away at school nearly every night of the week I have to stay home with the baby. It's true he works hard at his job and at school, but he enjoys this work. I've had all the hardships and now he wants to make things still harder for me. I can't take it any more.

* * *

The Council: We get the impression that both Jerry and Laura are inconsiderate.

We do not blame Laura for objecting to moving into her in-laws' home. But her whining resentment of her husband's activities and plans is another story. No wonder Jerry gets the idea that she objects to his ambition rather than to his method of achieving his goal.

On the other hand, Jerry should have recognized that his wife needs companionship, stimulation and social activity. His deep preoccupation with his own desires appears to have blinded him to hers.

Both Jerry and Laura will have to make a strenuous effort to change their patterns if they don't want their marital ship to founder. All of Jerry's hard work and high hopes won't amount to much if his home life is miserable.

Jerry must recognize his wife's right to happiness, even while he is a student. If necessary, he should take 12 years to get his graduate degrees. He should spend more time with his wife and try to help her expand her horizons as he is expanding his.

We suspect that Laura has some fears about Jerry's growing away from her as he becomes more educated and her mental outlook is checked by her home responsibilities. This need not be the case. It is not too late for her to get the education she desires. She should investigate the courses that are within nearly everyone's reach. It may not be possible for her to get a college degree at this time, but she can study and learn and get the feeling of confidence that comes with knowledge. Complaining of all she has missed will only undermine her own morale and her husband's interest in her.

APPLEGATE VALLEY 'Steamboat' Ranch Sold

By MAUDE ZIEGLER

Applegate Valley–A real estate deal just completed here involves the sale of the "Steamboat" ranch of 160 acres on Carberry creek to Mr. and Mrs. Donald Haines of Dunsmuir. The property was purchased from Lynn Stone and La Verne Fields, sawmill owners of Williams creek, and the new owners will take possession in a few days. They expect to stock the ranch with cattle, according to E. W. Kubli of Medford who negotiated the sale.

The ranch first was homesteaded in 1883 by George C. Culy, father of A. B. Culy of Medford, and at that time, the heyday of the Steamboat mine, included the presently adjoining George Dawson ranch. Culy ran 500 head of cattle and 30 head of horses, raising his own saddle horses. Culy, who operated the ranch for 26 years, also had a pack of hounds to combat varmints. The upper end of the ranch was called "Battle Bar" after an Indian battle, according to A. B. Culy.

Mrs. Harry Helms is spending a month in California as a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Mose Wagner, Long Beach, and her daughter, Mrs. Frank Morrison, Oakland.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Smith are building a new home on their dairy ranch at Ruch. The building is being contracted and is a 2-bedroom frame structure with fireplace.

River observers say that Big Applegate is only a little higher than in the summer, and that the green moss accumulation of the summer flow, ordinarily washed away with the first fall rise, still is apparent in the river bottom. And neither have any salmon been observed.

Both extension groups of the Applegate valley were to hold a combined meeting Tuesday, Feb. 23 at the Grange hall, when local leaders were to give a project on synthetic fabrics. Women of the lower unit will conduct the meeting, and their leaders will be Mrs. Francis Krouse and Mrs. George Brown. A potluck dinner is planned. This will eliminate the first-Wednesday meeting of the upper unit.

Robert Straube, seventh grade student at Ruch school, underwent a tonsillectomy at Sacred Heart hospital Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Carter Hibbs are moving to Florence, Ore., for temporary residence. Hibbs is employed with Somers Construction company, Medford.

Two local grade A dairymen received annual awards for low bacteria count at the meeting of Southern Oregon producers held here last week. Bryan and Brewster dairy near Provolt received second prize, and Louis Straube, third. First place went to Jack Caldwell, Eagle Point. Monetary awards were made by Rogue Valley Supply company, Grants Pass.

Correction: Jan. 26 is the date of lower Applegate extension meeting instead of Jan. 28 as was stated.

Rural Reflections: Mason Anderson of Wanegan service station, art shop, and feed store, has been calling on local farmers and in this balmy weather tells of cutting through six feet of ice to water the cows in Montana, cutting ice in the steps for the bossies to climb down. Sometimes sprinkling hay on the ice was necessary to entice them. And only occasionally would it be that the hole was not filled and frozen over next morning so the whole operation could be repeated. Anderson is getting feed routes established in the community and expects to accommodate the grower, with only a few rabbits or chickens, as well as the bigger farmer.

Group Formed to Study New City

Eugene – (UPI) – A committee was formed here Sunday night with the eventual goal of unifying Eugene, Springfield and suburban areas into a new city.

Jim Weaver of Eugene, spokesman for the group, said "creation of a whole new city with more than 100,000 population would give our area the stature it deserves."

Former State Rep. Richard Eyemann, also a committee member, said "all of Lane county will achieve real gains in terms of new industry, new jobs and employment stability . . .," from such a city.

Committee members include Weaver; Eyemann; Glen Stadler, Springfield radio station owner; Mrs. Vera Hansen, Springfield; Saville Ford, a member of the University of Oregon faculty, and Sam Fried of Springfield.

State Rep. Keith Skelton (D-Eugene) will act as attorney for the group.

Members indicated the city could be formed under a state law which provides for unification of areas.

Weaver said that during lengthy discussions of the matter in the past "almost everyone agreed it would be a good idea, although it may not happen right away."
