Doctor Gives Tips On Making Medford A Convention City

"Medford can become a recipient of 'golden dollars.'" Dr. Shasky said, but the hotels are inadequate by convention standards and Medford can get this kind of money if we can make this city a 'convention city.' This is the opinion of Dr. Florian J. Shasky, Medford, who addressed the Jackson County Chamber of Commerce Roundtable luncheon at the Jackson hotel Monday noon on "Medford as a convention city."

Dr. Shasky is acquainted with the problems relating to a convention, for he helped to bring the annual Oregon State Medical society convention here last September which is the first time that convention has been held outside of Portland in 10 years. In order to get bigger and better conventions, Medford will need more and improved housing accommodations, larger eating establishments and a large meeting hall, all centrally located in close proximity to one another.

Disarmament Topic of UN Meeting Here

An informal discussion on world-wide disarmament featured the January meeting of Medford chapter, Oregon United Nations association, held last night in St. Mark's Guild hall.

The discussion followed the showing of two films on disarmament made and distributed by the Pierce Butler Jr., Foundation for Education in World Law, with headquarters at St. Paul, Minn. One film gives information about a permanent United Nations police force, and it was said that experts believe such a force would cost the UN member nations about one-sixth of what the various nations are now spending on armaments. The United States share would be about $5 billion a year, and this country is now spending about $40 billion a year on defense, according to the film.

"Peace is more than the absence of war," it was stressed. During the discussion it was brought out that disarmament, to be effective, would have to be total, and that this could be possible only if the basic thinking and philosophy about war and peace, and the general distrust which now prevail in the world, undergo sweeping changes.

Questions asked were about how such a UN police force would be set up and trained, how confidence in it could be established, how a change of philosophy and attitudes between nations may be brought about, how membership in the United Nations may be broadened and how the veto power of the member nations in the UN would affect such a police force.

It was pointed out that the power of "justice and love as opposed to the power of force have never been given a chance." Mrs. Harlan P. Bosworth Jr., who has been serving as unofficial head of the group for the past several months through consent of last year's officers, presided and reviewed recent activities of the chapter. She pointed out that a speakers' bureau of seven persons had been formed, and is operating.

She also announced that the eight films on disarmament in the Butler series will be available to groups and schools in the area and bookings may be made with her. Educators and ministers have seen the two films now on hand here, and have given them their approval.

Chapter members present last night, who did not make a quorum, agreed that Mrs. Bosworth should continue to head the group for the coming year and efforts are underway to secure a corps of other officers.

Wall Street Chatter

New York —(UPI)—The credit supply is more likely to ease than tighten in coming months, according to Sidney B. Lurie of Josephthal & Co. "Tight money is no longer a threat to the market's well being. It's the supply rather than the cost which counts." With residential building declining, he adds, mortgage borrowing will be well below last year's record high level. Also "the prospective government surplus means there will be a net repayment of debt rather than the borrowing of new money."

Uncertainty among investors has revolved around two main questions, notes Spear & Staff. First there has been fear in some quarters that the boom might taper off in the second half. And second, there is the growing tightness of money and the wide spread between stock and bond yields. The firm believes the economy will show a mixed pattern in the second half, while thus far the effect of high bond yields versus low stock income has been mainly psychological, but is still a factor which bears careful watching.
