The Medical Roundup

by Walter C. Alvarez

Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic
Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Clinic

HUMANITARIAN DECISION

I recently read with thankfulness that the Supreme Court of Massachusetts has upheld the "Pound-Law." This means that in some states, medical schools now can buy from pounds animals which otherwise would be just destroyed. In the universities, some of these animals will be operated on, always under full anesthesia, just as men and women are operated on.

The wonderful feature of all this is that when surgeons have to develop some new type of operation – like those which, in the last few years have given life and health to hundreds of suffering children, formerly all doomed to a cruel death with heart disease, the steps of the operation can be worked out in animals.

Right now operations are being developed which can give back health to some of the persons who have suffered a stroke. Other operations are being designed which we hope will some day put a new thigh and leg and foot on a boy who has lost his, perhaps when run over in the street. Already, with this type of operation, a number of young people who were dying of Bright's disease have been restored to perfect health by the transplantation of a kidney taken from an alike twin.

I wish I could sit down for a half-hour with a lot of people who worry immensely more about the comfort of a few dogs than they do about the lives and health and happiness of thousands of children.

I would like to turn over with them the pages of just one huge book I have, showing pictures of the scores of operations that have been worked out in recent years just to patch up and make presentable and able to live the hundreds of thousands of children who are born each year with only half of their urinary bladder, or no anal opening, or a gullet that empties into the lungs, or a miserable cleft plate, or any one of a hundred other defects.

The average person has no conception of the brilliance of modern surgery: no conception of the fact that much more needs to be learned, and no sympathy with the fact that the new technics needed will have to be worked out first on animals. That old lie – that these animals are not anesthetized – should not fool anyone. Just try to imagine a surgeon so stupid that, perhaps, while trying to sew two tiny arteries together, would insist on working on a struggling, howling beast, when his anesthetist, with a few whiffs of ether, could keep the animal sound asleep and quiet!

This seems to me to be so obvious that I do not know how supposedly sensible people all over the country can possibly be taken in by the century-old claims of people who so hate all medical research that they want all of our health-giving laboratories to be closed up.

I worked for much of my life in research laboratories, and I never saw painful operations being performed on animals without anesthesia. Incidentally, today, most animal experimentation is done on mice and rats by well-educated young women.

Dr. Alvarez' booklet on asthma, allergy and hay fever may be obtained by sending 25 cents and a large, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Dr. Walter C. Alvarez, Dept. MMT, The Register and Tribune Syndicate, Box 957, Des Moines 4, Iowa.

Space Probes Are Planned by U.S.

Cape Canaveral, Fla. –(UPI)– The United States is planning to send at least six satellites and probes into space during the next 100 days.

Informed sources said the experiments will include a deep-space probe toward the orbit of the planet Venus, and five earth satellites studying new communications, navigations and weather - charting techniques.

Dependable space machinery such as Juno III and Thor-Able will carry part of the load. But during this splurge they will get assistance from newer rockets, including Thor-Delta and combinations using the monstrous power of the Atlas intercontinental ballistic missile.

No manmade objects – Russian or American – have been sent into space in more than two months. Lunik II, which took the moon's "backside" pictures, was the Soviet Union's last success, more than three months ago.

Hatfield Gratified With Card Response

Salem–(UPI)–Gov. Mark Hatfield said today he is gratified with public response to the simplified new state tax card-form and new instructions.

The new form is in effect for the first time this year.
