Pedestrians, Drivers Shouldn't Insist on 'Rights'

Some motorists and pedestrians are stubborn enough to insist on their "rights" even if it means their last rites, Chief of Police, Charles P. Champlin said today.

That's why the state records more than 400 deaths each year in traffic, he said.

Chief Champlin urged drivers to be especially alert during the remaining winter months when it is dark during the evening rush traffic and pedestrians are harder to see.

Pedestrians should do everything they can to make themselves visible to motorists when walking at night and one way to do this is to wear light-colored clothing, he said.

Light clothing is especially important when it is raining and driver visibility is further reduced.

"Drivers can reduce the risk of hitting a person, if they will stop at pedestrian crosswalks and stay well behind the lines until traffic signals are in their favor. Many accidents are caused by motorists who jump the gun when the signal changes, without giving pedestrians a chance to clear the street safely," he said.

"Sometimes," he concluded, "pedestrians take foolish chances in traffic, but even when the pedestrian is wrong, he certainly doesn't deserve the death penalty."

NO SAFETY IN NUMBERS

Colorado Springs, Colo.–(UPI)–Charged with drunkeness, noisy and riotous conduct, assault and trespassing, Edward Mann, 39, told a police court judge he'd rather not have his case tried before a jury because "I don't want that many people to hear it."

Fungus Ills Reported Numerous in Americas

New York – (Science Service)–Fungus diseases are more widespread in the Americas than in any other world area. The reason is that in the Americas the soil-borne molds have new, richer and less-tilled soils to grow on than elsewhere, Dr. Pablo Negroni, world authority on fungus ills from Buenos Aires, told scientists meeting at the Squibb Institute for Medical Research here. In one infected Argentine area, he said 25 per cent to 40 per cent of the population were carriers of fungus disease. Another area of heavy infection is around Kansas City in this country, he said.
