Plastic Houses, Chemical Foods Among Changes Expected During 1960s

Washington – (Science Service) – Plastic houses, picture-on-the-wall TV, high-speed cooking and foods made of chemicals are only a few of the triumphs expected to come during the 1960s.

A survey here of scientific sources indicates vigorous, startling changes are in store for Americans. Some are already on the way.

During the 1960s, housewives will be able to buy more dehydrated foods requiring no refrigeration, such as powdered tomato juice. Also expected are laboratory-made foods, consisting only of common chemicals, which will be palatable and have nutritional value. Such synthetic foods will be used widely to relieve the serious world shortage of food.

Coming also will be new and improved fabrics for clothes, including men's winter business suits made of wool that can be washed at home. Significant strides already have been made in creasing wool permanently and giving it resistance to moths and rot. Perfection of a treatment to make cotton fibers repel grit and dirt particles means expanded use of cotton, especially in wash-at-home rugs.

The promise of plastics as a house-building material will be developed, and houses of the late 1960s may have new and interesting shapes. Gabled roofs will begin to give way to domes made of plastics or thin-shell concrete. The box-like design of today's typical house may be replaced by sweeping geometric curves designed to "squeeze the most living" out of floor space.

In house design, greater attention will be devoted to colors, textures and acoustics. Today's slick, cold, formal plaster wall will yield to "cozier" surfaces having the feel and appearance of rich fabrics. Whole ceilings or walls will glow with electro-luminescent light to replace inefficient, dirt-catching chandeliers.

Central air-conditioning will be common in new houses and house heating using the sun's rays will be making inroads on conventional systems. Kitchens will have infrared or high frequency electronic ovens to cook heavy roasts in minutes.

Radical Techniques

Radical construction techniques will be used to meet the skyrocketing demand for houses. Strong epoxy resins that can glue steel to glass will replace nails in many cases–giving faster construction and tighter joints with fewer materials. Aluminum will be used structurally as well as decoratively. Lumber will be glued together in laminations for less warpage. Whole panels of prefabricated brick wall will be available for quick erection.

Other prefab walls will be made of plastic having a color-fast, weather-resistant outside, a decorative finish on the inside and good insulation stuffed in between.

TV on the Walls

Picture-on-the-wall TV will be achieved, along with world-wide television broadcasting, perhaps using earth-circling satellites to relay programs from one continent to another. Broadcasting in stereo, using FM to carry both sound channels on one frequency, will be achieved.

Some presently unknown technique–a real breakthrough–is expected that will effectively make more radio frequencies available for commercial, amateur and scientific purposes.

To handle the volume of mail, the U.S. Post Office will become completely automatic. Letters will be opened by machine, transmitted in the handwriting of the writer to the destinations by radio and folded and sealed by machine into an envelope for delivery. Secrecy of the mails thus will be preserved.

Automated Harvesting

On farms, electrically operated materials-handling equipment will come into wide use. Automated harvesting is near, with machines promising to relieve the farmer of heavy manual labor in barn-cleaning and handling feeds on dairy, poultry and livestock farms.

Emphasis on insect control will turn from the chemical bug-killers of cranberry fame to biological controls – like the milky spore disease that kills Japanese beetles. Other chemicals, injected into the soil, will be taken up by plants to make them insect-resistant.

Industry will intensively exploit automation. Computers will design other computers. Machines will translate at 2½ cents a world from a foreign language into English. Others will do a literature look-up job in five seconds that would take a man three months.

pipelines to where needed,

Ocean Water Conversion

Salt water of the oceans will be converted to fresh and pumped through long perhaps with nuclear energy driving the huge pumps. Metals will be custom-designed to fit any job by adding impurities or controlling dislocations in the molecular lattice structures.

Also the 1960s will see the beginnings of remote-controlled traffic highways. Doctors will use electronic machines more extensively for precise diagnoses.

These are but a few of the major advances expected in the exciting 10 years now beginning.

Small Worlds Around Us

By Lynn M. Watkins

A Garden at Night Is a Different World

Many people have spent fortunes and lifetimes in travel to faraway lands and out-of-the-way corners of the earth. Some even aspire to voyages into outer space.

But not everyone can travel; not everyone can experience first hand the charm and thrill of strange lands. Most of us can, however, enjoy the result of the fortunate few who, through the printed word, familiarize themselves with the world across the seas. Fortunately we can enjoy new thrills and even cross strange frontiers, but still not go very far afield. How? you might ask. The answer is so simple you will be disappointed. You can spend a night, or a part of one in a garden.

Different

A garden at night is much different than it is during daylight hours. With the darkness comes a radical change, so different and so strange that we almost feel we are in a different place—a place we have never been before. Familiar objects have completely disappeared. The flowers that splash their vivid colors under the bright sun are no company at night.

Trees, flowers, grass—all the familiar things with which we have so long been associated—appear to be non-existent. Only the feel of the grass underfoot is the same; all else as changed. We realize suddenly, that the night is not as silent as we may have supposed. The garden has a million voices.

Individual Sounds

Shortly we begin to distinguish individual sounds. Without the aid of our eyes, we follow the progress of an unseen body moving slowly in the darkness. These mysterious, four-footed creatures are uninvited; we never realized they ever came. But they are there, almost as silent as the flowers that we know must be watching too. A faint rustle indicates a furred body has scraped a flower stem. Maybe an opossum, and possibly on her back are her babies, their tails curled around the mother's tail which she has curved over her back so the youngsters will have a handrail to hold if the going should become rough.

A high-pitched whir past our ear marks the flight of a night-flying insect seeking some particular flower. It's quest is not in vain for Nature, maybe with a little of man's help, has set a table of delicacies for these winged seekers after nectar.

We realize suddenly that a garden at night is not so lonely as we thought. No place where so many living things are present could ever be lonely. Here, under the cloak of darkness, life is going on its ordered way. We realize the truth the poet spoke when he wrote:

You are closer to God's heart in a garden than any place else on earth.

In 1781 Duncan Phyfe, one of the most famous of American furniture makers, set up shop in New York. Furniture and furnishings manufacturing today is big business – as shown by the fact that over $11½ million worth of national advertising was placed in newspapers in 1958.

A year on the planet Pluto is equal to about 248 years on earth.

MARSHALL'S Carpet Cleaning Aids

CARE BETWEEN CLEANINGS

Go over your carpet with a sweeper or vacuum daily. Vacuum thoroughly at least once a week. A vacuum with beater brush action (such as a Kirby upright) is best– especially for high pile carpet. Be sure to ask for—and get—a soil retardent put back in your carpet when you have it cleaned. We will be glad to show you the difference at no obligation.

Dale Robertson, TV star of Tales of Wells Fargo says...

STAKE YOUR CLAIM TO ALL THE CASH ON THE COACH IN IVORY'S $100,000 WELLS FARGO GIVE-AWAY!

Ivory's $100,000 "Tales of Wells Fargo Give-Away" entry instructions

1. Estimate the total amount of money in the picture. Write your estimate on an official entry blank or a plain sheet of paper. Print your name and address plainly. The estimate closest to the actual amount of money shown on the stagecoach will win first prize—all the cash! The next closest will win second prize, etc. The prizes are as follows:

FIRST PRIZE—
all the cash on the stagecoach.

SECOND AND THIRD PRIZES—
Ford "Thunderbird" automobile.

NEXT PRIZES IN ORDER ARE:
4 RCA Victor Hi Fidelity Consoles
10 Mink Stoles
13 RCA Victor Color TV Sets
15 RCA Victor Hi Fidelity Phonographs
55 Wrist Watches

Each bag shown in the picture contains 1,000 U. S. silver dollars. Each money chest is packed with the same equal assortment of all U. S. silver coins in current circulation. There are twice as many coins in the money chests as there are silver dollars on the roof of the stagecoach.

2. Mail your completed entry, with one estimate only, together with 3 wrappers from any size of Ivory Soap to: Ivory Give-Away, P.O. Box 14, Cincinnati 99, Ohio. Enter as often as you wish but each entry must comply with all the rules and be mailed in a separate envelope. Entries must be postmarked not later than midnight, May 1, 1960 and received no later than midnight, May 15, 1960. Entries are limited to residents of the Continental United States (including Alaska) and Hawaii, but excluding employees of Procter & Gamble, its advertising agencies and their families. This contest is subject to government regulations.

3. SPECIAL $10,000 BONUS
If your three Ivory Soap wrappers include one wrapper from each size of Ivory—Large, Medium and Personal Size—you will receive a $10,000 bonus if you are the First Prize Winner.

4. In case of ties, which are quite possible, tying contestants will be required to complete a statement about Ivory Soap. The most apt of the tie-breaking statements will be selected and rated for prizes. Except for incidental help from family and friends, entries must be wholly the work of the person in whose name the entry is submitted, and will be disqualified for outside, professional or compensated help. The purpose of this rule is to disqualify entries prepared in whole or in part by professional or compensated contest writers, schools, or services. Duplicate prizes will be awarded in case of ties in statements judged. Only one prize will be awarded to any person or household.

5. Judges' decisions will be final. No entries will be returned. Entries, contents and ideas therein belong unqualifiedly to Procter and Gamble for any and all purposes. The winners or tying entrants will be notified by mail about 8 weeks after close of contest. A list of winners will be available upon request approximately 3 months after close of contest.
