By FRANK JENKINS

This modern world: Bomb hoaxes held up more than 350 airline passengers Monday and forced a luxury cruise liner sailing with 350 passengers to drop anchor before she could even leave port. One of them was aimed at a TWA jet liner about to take off for Paris, another at a National Airlines flight to Miami and the third at an American Airlines flight to Los Angeles. The cruise ship was headed for the Caribbean.

All the hoaxes were perpetrated in New York. All of them, of course, scared the passengers out of their boots. And . . . naturally enough . . . spoiled their trips.

"HUMANITY" is a broad term. It includes a lot of strange characters.

MORE modern world stuff:

In Los Angeles, the clicking of teletypes inform us this morning, seats at the Finch murder trial are selling for as high as $10. It goes like this: Early risers line up daily before dawn, filling the corridors that lead to the courtroom. Later arrivals bid for places held by the early birds.

Prices start at four bits and go up as the time nears for the doors to open. When the doors swung back this morning and the stampe started, a big man sneaked into the line without buying his place. An elderly woman snapped angrily: "Some people get away with murder!" I reckon it takes all kinds of people to make a world.

QUESTION:

Are carry-ons like this calculated to keep us ahead of Russia in the race for scientific achievement that will dominate the remaining decades of the 20th century?

Of course not. But let's not get too pessimistic. People who indulge in shenanigans such as these are not the kind of people who make nations great.

They're just the rag-tag and the bob-tail.

Study Shows Work Of Those of 45

Washington—(UPI)—A Labor Department study indicates that the average worker over 45 years old is just as efficient as younger white-collar workers.

Labor Secretary James P. Mitchell said Wednesday that experts compared the work produced by office employees in 21 private companies and five government agencies.

The results showed that average productivity of workers past 45 equals that of employees from 25 to 45 years old and is greater than that of workers under 25.

"Our studies prove that older workers have lower rates of absenteeism and turnover, are more consistent in their performance and frequently produce at a faster rate than younger workers," Mitchell said.

"This indicates . . . that employers are passing up some excellent workers with valuable experience if they place an arbitrary age limit on hiring."

127 Die from Flu In Los Angeles Area

Los Angeles—(UPI)—One hundred and 27 persons have died of influenza and pneumonia in Asian flu-plagued Los Angeles during January—more than double the number for the same time last year.

The sharp increase in deaths came during the Asian flu epidemic which has stricken more than a million residents since breaking out here two weeks ago. The epidemic is now on the wane.

A report by city health officer George M. Uhl Wednesday said 109 persons died from pneumonia and 18 others from influenza. In the same period last year 59 persons died of pneumonia and one from flu.

Uhl said the group hardest hit by Asian flu, which often develops into pneumonia was among persons 65 and older. There were 80 deaths in this group.

Residents Reminded Of Filing Deadline

Salem—(UPI)—Gov. Mark Hatfield reminded Oregonians today that only a few weeks remain for legislative, congressional, judicial and administrative candidacy filing.

He said he hoped that "able citizens will come forward to offer themselves for service through the party of their choice."

The deadline is March 11.
