

Dental Health Week
Topic of Program

The Jackson County Tuberculosis and Health association will honor National Children's Dental Health Week, which is Feb. 7 to 13 on its regular bi-weekly television program at 5:30 p.m., Monday, Feb. 1.

Taking as their theme "Teeth Were Meant to Last a Lifetime" the Southern Oregon District Dental Society will be represented on the program by Dr. Earl T. Johnson and Dr. Eugene R. Cossette of Medford, and Dr. Lyle G. Haley of Grants Pass.

Dr. Marvin A. Kocks, Ashland, has assisted in the planning of the program and is an alternate member of the panel.

The dentists will discuss some popular misconceptions about teeth, from the time baby's first tooth appears until he starts to school, and later, and will point out the importance of forming early dental health habits.

A number of visual aids will be used by the dentists to explain the necessity for such appliances as space maintainers for the youngster who loses baby teeth prematurely.

SLEEPING BEAUTY—Shown here are the stars of the SOC Players production of "Sleeping Beauty", which will be shown this evening in the Southern Oregon college auditorium, Ashland. Judy Johnson, Ashland, veteran performer of SOC productions, smiles engagingly at her prince, Hiram Ferguson, Klamath Falls, over the fateful spinning wheel of storybook fame. The play will be shown to the general public Saturday evening, Jan. 30, under the direction of Dr. Dorothy Stolp.

Rock Hudson Only Big Star Who's Still in 'Bondage'

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI
Hollywood Correspondent

Hollywood - (UPI) - Lincoln freed all the slaves except Rock Hudson.

Even now the big guy can be bought if the price is right.

Rock is the last of the first magnitude stars still under exclusive contract to a studio, Universal-International. As such, he has never collected a percentage deal on a movie, nor participated in the profits.

He is the top male box-office actor, but still is held in bondage by the studio which can rent him out to other movie-makers for a stiff price.

Rock, however, doesn't get the money - and he doesn't like the idea at all. This summer he is embarking on his first participation deal with his own company, Gibraltar Productions - get it, Rock of Gibraltar?

"For 12 years I've been under contract to Universal," Rock complained. "In that time I made 40 pictures, all on straight salary."

Rented Out

"Towards the end of that time I was earning $3,000 a week, but the studio was renting me out at fancy prices. They collected $350,000 when they loaned me to David O. Selznick for 'Farewell to Arms.' As far back as 1955 they farmed me out for 'Giant' at $200,000.

"But it's not just the money that bothered me. While I was under contract I couldn't accept some great picture offers."

"They wouldn't let me play 'Ben-Hur.' And a few months ago Marilyn Monroe wanted me to be her co-star in 'Let's Make Love.' They were going to give me a percentage of that picture, but UI nixed it."

Hudson is no longer on weekly salary at the studio. They're paying him by the picture. But that has its limitations, too. Last year he made only one movie.

Four More Pictures

"I have four more pictures to make for them," Hudson said. "Then I have four additional ones to be made with the studio in conjunction with my own company. After that I'm free to do as I please. And does that sound good."

"First thing I want to do is lose my reputation as a matinee idol, playing in all those woman-appeal films like 'Magnificent Obsession' and 'All That Heaven Allows.'"

"Then I want to go to New York and star in a play. After that I'm going to look around for some good properties and make my own pictures."

"What I'd really like to do is co-star with Marlon Brando, and throw in Elizabeth Taylor and Marilyn Monroe for good measure."

"A picture with a cast like that could make us all financially independent for life."

Tel Aviv, Israel - (UPI) - Israel charged Syrian artillery shelled Israeli territory Saturday night in the second clash of the day along the increasingly tense border.

Washington - (UPI) - Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson has invited Gen. Maxwell Taylor, former Army Chief of Staff, to air his critical views on President Eisenhower's space and defense policies before Senate investigators.

Development of Stock Market From Bear Market Is Traced

By ELMER C. WALZER
UPI Financial Editor

New York - (UPI) - Today's gem of market advice comes from the memoirs of that wily French statesman, Charles Maurice De Talleyrand, who said:

With that in mind, B.J. Thurlow, analyst for the stock exchange firm of Winslow Cohn & Stetson, traces the development of this stock market out of a bear market that ran from July 12 to Oct. 22, 1957, and in that brief period knocked industrials down by exactly 100 points or 19 per cent.

Thurlow calls this the shortest bear market in history. Some market experts gloss this one over and date our bull market back to 1949, but one way or another 1957 was a year of market decline.

From the Oct. 22, 1957, low of 419.79 in industrials, the market rose with some temporary falls until it hit the all-time high in the industrial average compiled by Dow-Jones at 685.47 on Jan. 5, the second session of the year.

Thurlow refers to that buildup as a "flimsy sort of speculative superstructure added to the bull market edifice."

the investor "selectivity may well become agonizing."

Avoid Enthusiasm

His only advice is Talleyrand's admonition to avoid enthusiasm.

If that superstructure that Thurlow talks about should topple, it would produce a 39 per cent decline, just about double the one that came in a brief selloff in 1957.

That would be quite a thump. In 1957, the industrial average lost 63.78 points. In 1958, it spurted and closed at its high for all time for a gain of 147.96 points. In 1959 it gained 95.71 points. It has had but few good days in 1960 and many bad ones in the month ending today.

Thurlow lays the 1957 decline to government tight money policies and stretch-outs in Defense Department payments to aircraft makers and others. An already over-sold stock market subsequently became panicky when national morale was shattered by Sputnik I, and with the avalanche of tax selling in late 1957, he recalls.

Speculative confidence returned and could not be stopped by tight money and higher margins because "people were firmly convinced that whatever it might say about the evils of inflation, the government would stop at nothing to stave off a depression with attendant mass unemployment."

Thurlow also noted the lack of sufficient stock supply helped the rise. This was caused by double taxation of dividends and corporate tax exemption of bond interest which virtually forced corporations to raise money by selling bonds rather than stocks, and capital gains taxes deterring long-term holders of good quality issues from selling.

"Many investors," says Thurlow, "literally prefer to die rather than pay capital gains taxes to the government."

Four Traffic Crashes Reported

City police received reports of four traffic accidents Friday. None of the accidents resulted in any serious injuries, police said.

Hazel Eleanor Kincaid, 60, of 1232 North Riverside ave., received a citation from city police for failure to yield right of way to a vehicle on a through street.

Another accident occurred at 11:35 p.m. when cars operated by Harold Wesley Hubler, 53, of 926 Park st., and Constance Faye Reed, 18, of 453 Haven st., collided at the intersection of Fifth and Bartlett sts. Police said damage was minor and no citations were issued.

At 6:15 p.m., a car operated by Edith Wood Davis, 70, of 128 South Holly st., sideswiped a parked car on Holly st., between Fourth and Fifth sts., according to city police. No citations were issued.

Both women received minor cuts and complained of bruises but they left the scene of the accident with friends and police do not believe the injuries serious.

Another Friday morning accident occurred at the intersection of Sixth st., and Oakdale ave. at 10:45 a.m.

Police said a motorcycle operated by Virgil Oliver Cool, 38, of 80 Gibbon rd., Central Point, collided with a car operated by Frances Elizabeth Rutter, 42, Grants Pass. Cool complained of sore hips but police said he walked from the scene.

Police cited Rutter for failure to yield right of way to a vehicle on a through street.

At 6:15 p.m., a car operated by Edith Wood Davis, 70, of 128 South Holly st., sideswiped a parked car on Holly st., between Fourth and Fifth sts., according to city police. No citations were issued.

WHILE YOU WERE AWAY

Y. - (UPI) - When four disgruntled hunters returned home to Watkins Glen from a completely unsuccessful deer-hunting expedition to the Adirondacks several hundred miles away, they learned that a herd of five deer had appeared during their absence in the backyard of one of their homes.

BILLY THE KIDDER

Grangemouth, Eng. - (UPI) - Billie Heggie, a seven-year-old wearing dirty jeans, entered the elegant Leapark Hotel and told the clerk: "My little brother is missing. Mummy's busy and told me to go to a hotel." Billie signed the register, was shown to his room, ordered a magazine on the bedside phone, and began soaking himself in a bath. An hour later the hotel manager discovered Billie himself was the missing little brother.
