Spears Appears In Federal Court On Theft Charges

Phoenix — (UPI) — Robert V. Spears, 64, questioned by the FBI about the suspected bombing of an airliner that crashed in the Gulf of Mexico killing 42 persons, was to appear in federal court today on charges of driving a stolen car across state lines.

Spears, an ex-convict, self-styled doctor and accused abortionist, was listed as killed in the crash of the National Airlines flight from Miami to New Orleans last Nov. 16. Found at Motel
About two months later, however, he was found living at a motel here and arrested by the FBI on the car theft charge.

The auto Spears is accused of stealing belonged to William Allen Taylor, Tampa, Fla., an old friend and former prison inmate, whom Spears is suspected of having tricked into taking his place on the ill-fated plane.

The FBI questioned Spears after his arrest but failed to break his story that Taylor's death was a coincidence. The FBI also questioned Spears' 36-year-old wife in Dallas, Tex., but have not disclosed the results of their questioning.

Spears was expected to plead guilty to the auto theft charge and could be sentenced to prison for five years and fined $5,000.
Observers thought today's action was a tacit admission by federal authorities they have been unable to directly link Spears to the mysterious crash.

Everybody agreed, including Spears, he had everything to gain by being considered dead.

Faced Long Term
Spears faced a possible long-term prison sentence if convicted in trial in Los Angeles of two counts of abortion and one of conspiracy.

He had a young wife and two small children—Robert, 2, and Debra, 10-months—who would be unprovided for in event of his imprisonment.

And he had a $100,000 common carriers insurance policy which he took out in favor of his wife in August and which would pay off in case of his death in an auto, train or plane accident.

Art Association Is Still Homeless

The Rogue Valley Art association is still homeless. Robert Bosworth, chairman of the building committee of the association, is again searching for a residential or commercial building to be used as a temporary gallery and meeting place for the organization.

Bosworth reported earlier that a building had been located, but since it had only one exit, fire regulations prohibited its use for public gatherings. The principal requirement of the building is adequate space suitable for displaying exhibits to the public. It must be available on a nominal rent or donation basis, since the association has limited funds.

Mrs. Eric W. Allen Jr., chairman of the exhibition committee, said that shows and films have been arranged for, and that membership in the association is growing, so the need for a building is pressing.

Runaway Juveniles Caught by Police

Two runaway juveniles from southern California were found by city police sleeping in a car behind the Craterian theater early Sunday morning.

The juveniles, a boy 16 years from El Segundo, Calif., and a girl 13 years from Los Angeles, told city police they had runaway from their California homes because their parents wouldn't let them see each other.

They also told police they were headed for Portland to find work but the $40 they had started out with was gone and they had run out of gas.

Police notified the youth's parents by long distance phone calls and they came to Medford to take their children home.

Students Learn Economics By Actual Stock Market Dealings

New York — (UPI) — Those factors which make the stock market tick embrace the whole subject of economics.

Taken in its abstract, economics is a difficult subject for high school and college students. And the students seem to dodge taking all but the required courses in what Thomas Carlyle called "the dismal science."

Edward Schweikardt, history teacher at the NYACK New York high school hit upon the method of combining economics teaching with the stock market.

He included this course in his History 12. American history taught to high school seniors at NYACK. The economics end is termed Assignment 3 because it's the third topic which the class studies in this history course.

In the application of stocks to economics, the class pools small amounts and actually buys a few stocks after a thorough study of the various companies. From there on the class follows these and other stocks in the various markets and gets a working knowledge of the market end of the general economy.

Economic illiteracy goes by the board in a short time.

The Sears Roebuck Foundation, so impressed with Schweikardt's economics teaching innovation that it made a grant to sponsor a series of workshops for secondary school teachers in the techniques of his new method of teaching the workings of the American system of free enterprise.

Roseburg Students Tell of 'Roughing' Incident After Game

Roseburg—(UPI)—Four Roseburg high school students and parents of one of them planned to go to Eugene today to talk to the district attorney about a roughing-up incident which occurred after Saturday night's Roseburg-Willamette high basketball game at Eugene.

Roseburg won the game 60-59 in overtime.

The four Roseburg students said they were followed by four cars when they left the game. They said they were stopped in Eugene but that the others left when a policeman came along. They headed home again and said the four cars caught up with them a few miles south of Eugene.

The students said they were roughed up and that windows in the car were broken. They said the other cars carried about 20 young persons who left when another car came along.

The Roseburg students said they went back to Eugene with the other motorist and later were given a state police escort out of town. When they got home they contacted local school officials and police and gave descriptions of the others involved.

4-H NEWS

Phoenix Saddle-lites
The Phoenix 4-H horse club held their January meeting recently at the home of Eloise Harbert.

A snow party was planned for Feb. 6 at Crater Lake. Then plans for the Sports Fair-Horse show held in the spring were discussed. General activities for the year were talked over.

Refreshments were served by Eloise.

An officers meeting was held the following evening and specific activities for the entire year were planned. The dates and place for the monthly meetings were recorded on the 4-H calendars to inform all members of the meetings.

Youth Charged With Theft of Pastor's Car

A 17-year-old Medford youth was taken into protective custody by city police Saturday night after he admitted stealing a car belonging to Dr. D. Kirkland West, pastor at the First Presbyterian church.

Police said the youth took the car from in front of the church at 8 p.m.

After being notified of the stolen car, police located the vehicle about 8:50 p.m. proceeding on East Main st., near Keene Way. After a short chase, officers brought the car to a halt and took the youth into custody.

He was charged with larceny of an automobile and released to his parents.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

Cecil De Mille was one of Hollywood's greatest directors. ("The Ten Commandments" was his last and most elaborate block-buster). He also was a tough boss—autocratic and quick to anger.

One day a De Mille assistant sent a whole company of extras to the wrong location—a mistake that wasted an entire day and cost the producer thousands of dollars. When De Mille finally cornered the culprit, he roared, "Well, what's your phony alibi this time?"

The assistant silently opened his collar. Around his neck he had painted a circle of red spots and in block letters beneath them added the legend, "Just cut along the dotted line."

A visiting English drama critic has been burning up the local theatrical set with his interperate, smart-aleck notices. One eminent star expressed the feelings of many of her conferees by murmuring, "Poor boy! He's been educated beyond his character!"

News About Servicemen

RETURNED
Eagle Point—Ray A. Powers, seaman, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Pogue, route 1, box 663-A, recently returned to San Francisco aboard the refrigerated store ship USS Vega after a 5 1/2 month tour of duty with the U.S. Seventh Fleet in the western Pacific.

The stock was put in the teacher's name to avoid legal technicalities. It was sold at the end of the course and the amount received pro-rated among those students who had contributed to the original fund.

During the time they held the stock, the class followed the prices in the financial sections of newspapers and plotted a graph of them.

The ups and down of these issues and the market in general were studied and in the course of these studies the class learned about many things economic, use of capital and how it is raised, function of the stock market and its operations, government finance, now to read a financial report, the language of finance, operation of the money market, taxes, labor, insurance, banking, tariffs, and just about all the details that go into our everyday economic life.

GRADUATE
Jacksonville — William C. Backes, son of Arthur M. Backes, 308 East California st., is scheduled to graduate from recruit training this week at the Naval Training Center, San Diego.

The local hospital was one of 108 osteopathic hospitals in the United States to receive the rating at a mid-year meeting of the AOA board of trustees in Chicago.

To be registered by the AOA a hospital must pass an annual inspection of its physical plant, staff qualifications, equipment and procedures. The board's recent action was based on the hospital inspection report and recommendation of the AOA committee on hospitals.

Valley Hospital Is AOA Registered
The Medford Osteopathic hospital, currently constructing a new hospital in the Central Point area, has met the required standards for registration by the American Osteopathic association, it was announced today.

And the process of learning was made interesting by the connection between the class ownership of stock, the cooperation of market people in the course and the fact the students asked and answered questions on their own.

Schweikardt has written a teacher's guide to accompany the film, Assignment 3. This guide is being used in the workshop now in progress in NYACK.

Incidentally, the course given at NYACK high school is just the ticket for investment clubs and for individuals who would like to have the intricacies of the stock market explained.

The investment clubs, the stock exchange's monthly investment plan, and the generally increased interest in the market have cut down on the nation's economic illiteracy, but there's still a lot of it around.

Will Help Parents
When the NYACK high school youngsters graduate, they can relate the basic principles of the capitalistic system, the operations of the market, the growth of the nation's industries, and they know the meaning of stocks, bonds, debentures, and many another thing their parents wished they had a long time ago.

Incidentally, the course is an aid for parents too. The parents of the children take a lively interest in it and the various items form the basis for many an evening's discussion at home, adding to the value of the course and helping dad and mother at the same time.
