

Women Said Too Vain To Hold U.S. Presidency

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor
New York — Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, who once went to jail for the cause of women's suffrage, believes that vanity will keep a woman from becoming president.

"Great leaders are rare," she said. "They're jealous. Would men vote for a woman? Yes, they might out of gallantry."

Mrs. Wiley, who lives in Washington, came to New York as member of a delegation from the General Federation of Women's Clubs, which presented a citation to Good Housekeeping magazine on its 75th anniversary. Her husband for 18 years had headed the magazine's Bureau of Food, Sanitation and Health.

I asked Mrs. Wiley whether she thought women in 40 years of voting proved they deserved suffrage.

"Oh, undoubtedly," she said. "Our only hope for the future is for the sexes to share in government."

Mrs. Wiley, born in Oakland, Calif. in 1877, was the daughter of Brig. Gen. John C. Kelton, onetime Adjutant General of the U.S. Army. When he died in 1893, the family moved to Washington.

A graduate of Columbian College of George Washington University, she joined the suffrage movement after hearing a talk by a suffragette from London.

In 1917, she went to prison along with 218 other women for picketing the White House in an effort to arouse President Wilson's support of suffrage. She was arrested for "obstructing traffic on Pennsylvania Avenue."

"It makes me angry when someone calls me a jailbird," she said. "At least I didn't do what some of the women did. They quietly paid their fines to avoid the publicity."

ACBL Play Reported

Fourteen tables of players were on hand February 6 for the monthly master point game sponsored by the Medford unit, American Contract Bridge League. It was played in two sections.

Winning north-south, Section A, were Mrs. W. W. Stevenson and Mrs. Frank R. Baker, first, 83; the H. J. Boyds, second, 80 1/2 points; Mrs. C. J. Howard and Mrs. A. W. Lingas, third, 70 points; east-west, Mrs. Robert Elliott and Mrs. Ben Todd, first, 71 1/2; Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Ricker, second, 66; the B. L. Sandersons, third, 64.

Section B, north-south winners, were John Shortridge and George Rode, first, 95 1/2; Mrs. F. T. Burich and Roy Pruitt, second, 91; Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Coode, Wilderville, third, 89 1/2. East-west winners in this section were Dr. and Mrs. C. M. Durland, Grants Pass, first, 102; Mrs. Thomas Hillary and Mrs. Virginia Anderson, second, 90; the Henry Holmbergs, third, 89 1/2.

The Saturday night, once a month, master point sessions sponsored by the ACBL are growing in popularity, it is reported. The next is set for March 12.

Anniversary of Canning Recalls Cook's Invention

By JEANNE LESEM
United Press International
New York — The French, they are a paradox. They de-ride precooked "convenience" foods, yet a Frenchman invented commercial canning at his government's request.

This year, the American canning industry observes the 150th anniversary of this invention by pastry cook Nicolas Appert, who developed it to help feed Napoleon's traveling army. His award was 12,000 francs, about $2,160 at today's exchange rates.

Others have modernized Appert's method and created hundreds of new products, but his basic principle—boiling sealed containers of food—remains unchanged, says the National Canners association, a self-policing body for the American canning industry.

Appert's experiments included most of today's canned foods: meat, fowl and game, soup, milk, butter, cream, eggs, fish and seafood, fruit and vegetables.

His containers were corked wide-mouthed jars. Tin canisters were invented later by a Briton, inspired by Appert's published work, the association said. The first American canneries were established around 1820, in Boston and New York.

Best sellers have changed little since the first official survey in 1909. Tomatoes, milk and corn were the favorite individual canned foods then; milk, peaches and corn lead now. Among commodities, tomatoes (including sauce, paste and juice), milk and soup are the top three.

Not Always Cheap
Canned foods are no longer synonymous with low-budget meals. A 6-ounce can of evaporated milk still sells for less than 8 cents, but a 14-pound ham costs around $14. On a cost per pound basis, specialties like rattlesnake meat and truffles are even higher.

Along with fancier foods, we have fancier containers: aerosol spray cans, individual and family size cans, rectangular (for corned beef and luncheon meats), triangular (for hams and imported pates), and conventional cylindrical cans.

The association anticipates no startling changes in cans or contents in the future, but says that technological advances will increase nutritional values without using synthetic vitamins.

Aluminum may augment present tin and glass supplies, but it won't alter two familiar shapes. Hard-to-open milk and sardine cans will remain, the association said; the milk can because it assures maximum product safety, and the sardine container because it's best suited to the shape and fragility of the fish.

Male Writer Makes Fun Of Men's Ivy League Look

(Rheems Russell, a contributor to several national magazines, wrote for United Press International a few years ago a story poking fun at the chemise look in women's fashions. In the following, he comments on the current styles in men's clothing.)

By RHEEMS RUSSELL

It has been said that all history is reflected in women's fashions, but what about the male animal?

Perish the thought that the current "Ivy League Look," hereinafter referred to as "ILL," reflects the true state of the nation.

Thumbing through the daily newspapers and smart magazines, a pencil-slim silhouette of what purports to be today's Beau Brummel fairly trips across the men's clothing advertisements.

The narrow downward sloping shoulders are after the fashion of Webster's famous cartoon character, Casper Milquetoast, and indicate he is suffering from leukemia. Ah, but the trousers and shoes provide the ne plus ultra of the "ILL." Trousers so tight they could be mistaken for leotards and the wearer a ballet dancer about to go into a nip-up or entree.

Shoes, furbelowed with bows or other effeminate adornments, resemble boudoir slippers and are reminiscent of those worn by little Lord Fauntleroy and Gainborough's Blue Boy.

If Ingemar Johansson, world's champion heavy-weight, ever got into one of these outfits and flexed his muscles, it would burst most of the seams, especially the right sleeve.

Maybe this "ILL" solves the mystery of why Pennsylvania University, after winning the Ivy League football championship last fall, summarily fired its coach, Steve Sebo — his shoulders were too broad!

Hat brims are narrower, too — except in Texas. Ties are narrower, collars shorter, lapels positively skimpy. Only prices are higher. Perhaps a Congressional investigation

"This is the day" will be the theme of the program by Mrs. Blanche Merriman when the Woman's Society of the Gold Hill Community Methodist church meet Friday, February 12 at 1 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Earl Moore.

Mrs. George Dorman will be co-hostess.

Mrs. Roy Bornoman will present the devotions.

Shady Cove Couples On Winter Vacation; Kelleys in Arizona

Shady Cove—A number of residents of the Shady Cove area are on winter vacations in the south.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hanson recently left Corpus Christie, Tex., where they were guests of Mrs. Hanson's sister, and went to San Antonio. They also planned to travel into Mexico to visit Mr. and Mrs. John Holman, former Shady Cove residents.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Kelley are spending several weeks in Tucson, Ariz., and recently made a trip to the Chiricahua National monument. Mrs. Kelley wrote to say that it is truly called a "Wonderland of Rocks" with several square miles of rocks of many shapes, sizes and colors.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Krotz have returned to Shady Cove after a trip to Ohio and Indiana and later to Florida. In Panama City, Fla., they were guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Jones, former Shady Cove residents.

Program Planned On Landscaping

Mrs. F. R. Faulkner of the Ornamental Nursery, Central Point, will talk on "Landscape Gardening" for the February program of Roxy Gardeners.

The meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. F. W. Fogelquist, 1312 Queen Anne avenue, at 1 p.m. Wednesday, February 10.

A night-blooming gladiolus cotton print will be glowing under resort skies this season. By Lloyd Weill, the date dress has wide floral borders, top and bottom.

Club to Study Petrified Wood

Petrified wood will be the theme for the next meeting of the Roxy Ann Gem and Mineral club, to be held on Friday, February 12, at 8 p.m. in the Girls Community club, 229 North Bartlett street, Medford.

Using colored slides provided by the Northwest Federation of Mineralogical societies, Elmer Binker, program director for the club, will speak on this subject. In accordance with the topic, everyone attending is urged to bring specimens of petrified wood for the display table.

As an added attraction, another series of slides showing carvings and other forms of lapidary work will be presented. Prizes will be given, and refreshments served.

This meeting is open to everyone interested in any phase of geology or mineralogy. For additional information concerning the club and its activities, call the president, Frank Otis, Spring 2-5644, or the secretary, Delmar Smith, NOrmandy 4-1355.

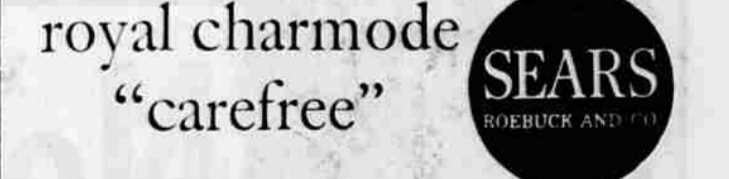

Medford De Molay To Hold Session

Medford Order of De Molay will hold a stated meeting Wednesday, February 10, at 7:30 p.m., in the Masonic temple. Robert Baker, master counselor, will preside. All master Masons are cordially invited to attend.

The Mothers' club of Medford Order of De Molay met January 27 in the Masonic temple, and newly elected officers assumed their duties. They are Paul Schantol, president; Mrs. Warren Kelson, vice-president; Mrs. Harold Wall, secretary and Mrs. Frank Little, treasurer.

Plans were discussed and made to increase attendance of De Molay mothers for the coming term.

Chapter to Hold Valentine Party

Members of Xi Mu chapter, Beta Sigma Phi, will hold their annual valentine party Wednesday, February 10, at 8 p.m., at the home of Mrs. John Nelson, 1616 Lenora avenue. Appropos to the occasion, the old fashioned game of "hearts" will be played.

Chapter to Hold Valentine Party

An evening auction will be conducted, with each member asked to bring a pair of earrings she never wears, to be placed on the auction block. The evening's entertainment has been planned by the social committee, Mrs. Larry Allen, chairman; Mrs. Jim Chapman, Mrs. R. A. Hubbard, and Mrs. Wilson Slater.

The last meeting of Xi Mu chapter was held at the home of Mrs. Russell Budeau on Ruth drive. Plans for spring activities were discussed, and Mrs. J. Edgar Moir was chosen as chapter princess for the annual Valentine Ball to be held February 13 at the Rogue Valley Country club, under the auspices of all Medford chapters of Beta Sigma Phi.

Parties Honor Albert Hackert

Jacksonville — Mrs. Albert Hackert was hostess for a recent party honoring her husband on his birthday. It was held at their home. A potluck dinner was served.

Attending were Mr. and Mrs. Donald Harris, Grants Pass, Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Hackert, Ashland, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Moore, Medford, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Godward, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Burnfield, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Offenbacher, and John Hackert, Jacksonville.

Another group, including Mrs. Riley Norris, Mrs. Louella Dunnington, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard McKee and Vera Culy, made a surprise call on Mr. Hackert in honor of his birthday anniversary.

Auxiliary Plans Valentine Party; Initiation Slated

A valentine exchange is planned for a meeting of the auxiliary to Crater Lake aerie, Fraternal Order of Eagles, to be held Thursday, February 11, at 8 p.m. at the Eagles hall.

Each member attending is to take a valentine.

Mrs. Clarence Englund, madam president, states that a group of auxiliary women from Grants Pass will conduct initiation during the evening.
