Well, the French went and did it. They made an atom bomb. All by themselves. Nobody helped them. In fact, nearly everybody implored them NOT TO TRY. The instinctive feeling of common, ordinary, everyday people all over the world is that the grim and awful secret of The Bomb is shared too widely already - for it is obvious that the more widely the secret is shared the greater the danger that will be USED AGAIN IN WAR.

Once The Bomb is used again in war, the fat will be in the fire.

BUT -
Knowing all this - The French went ahead and made a bomb. Having made it, they took it out in the wide wastes of the Sahara and SET IT OFF. Thus they joined the

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

AN INQUIRING student visited old Farmer Abernathy one evening. "Tell me, Mr. Abernathy," he suggested, "how can a farmer manage to save a million dollars?"

"It's a long story," said Mr. Abernathy, "and while I'm telling it we don't need these electric lights. The moon is very bright tonight." He switched off the lights.

"Thank you, Mr. Abernathy," said the student, reaching for his hat. "You needn't go on. I understand."
