

Two Officials Speak at Salary Rally Held Here

Several speakers at a salary rally for federal employees in southern Oregon held last week, urged local employees to write their congressmen asking for a salary increase.

The meeting was held at the Girls Community club with persons attending from Ashland, Medford, Grants Pass, Klamath Falls, Roseburg, Coos Bay, Coquille, Hillsboro, and Camp White.

Larry M. Rose, state president of the National Association of Letter Carriers, and Nicholas Cole, northwest regional director of the NALC, both commented on the pay scale of the postal service employee. They stressed the need of writing letters to congressional leaders telling the need for a pay raise.

Cole compared the salaries of postal workers with steel workers, adding that the steel workers now average about $1,000 per year more than the federal postal employee.

Opening the meeting, Sebastiano J. Fagne, president of the Medford chapter, NALC, spoke on the need for public support to obtain a pay raise for federal employees this year.

James A. Redden, speaking on the behalf of Sen. Wayne Morse, encouraged persons to write their congressional leaders on the matter. A letter was also read from Sen. Richard Neuberger, in which he said that he would work for a pay raise for civil service employees.

Nixon To Dodge Religion Issue

Detroit—UPI—Vice President Richard M. Nixon said Monday religion should not be an issue in the 1960 election and that "in any part I play I will not make it an issue."

Nixon told a news conference that "the country has moved considerably toward understanding since 1928 when religion played a major part" in the campaign in which Democrat Alfred E. Smith was defeated.

Smith was a Roman Catholic as is Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) who is a leading contender for the Democratic presidential nomination this year.

Nixon also told reporters, in discussing his role in the steel strike settlement, that he was making a personal study of the "concentration of power" in unions and large corporations.
