Johnson Backing For Presidency Hinges on Bill

Washington — (UPI) — Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.) could lose his southern support for the Democratic presidential nomination within the next several weeks.

Or, southern congressional sources feel, he could mold the Dixie states into a solid phalanx of delegates which will stick with him to the end.

It all depends on what Johnson does during civil rights debate in the Senate.

So far the majority leader has said only that he wants a "good" civil rights bill. Southerners Edgy

He had never explained the term "good," yet it was enough to make some southerners edgy.

For instance, Gov. John Patterson of Alabama, a staunch backer of Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.), only two weeks ago indicated that Johnson might not be acceptable if he continued to talk civil rights.

But overall the southerners don't care what Johnson says. They're worried about what he does.

As one southern source put it, "Harry Truman always talked a lot of civil rights but he never did anything."

Southern senators, although most of them won't publicly say so, much prefer Johnson to any of the other candidates. Sen. John Stennis (D-Miss.) already has endorsed Johnson publicly.

But at the same time, they know that they can't sell Johnson to their states if he becomes a prime mover for a strong civil rights bill.

This would be especially true if the bill includes the federal court referee proposal, the most noxious of the current proposals to the southerners.

Told to Watch Out

One Senator, Herman E. Talmadge (D-Ga.), has already notified Johnson to watch out for his southern support during the civil rights debate.

To the southerners, Johnson is one of them. He may claim to be a westerner but that doesn't fool the Dixie delegations.

Southern sources say they can explain away a strong civil rights urge on the part of Kennedy or Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.) who are northerners. But they can't do the same for Johnson.

They concede that the majority leader is about to embark on the most perilous tightrope act of his career and they hope he can make it.

If he doesn't, it could mean the south will switch to a favorite son candidate of its own — possibly Sens. Richard B. Russell or Herman E. Talmadge — but only as a last resort.

Pear Festival Sets Meeting on Tuesday

Rules governing the annual Pear Blossom Festival parade, which is scheduled April 23, will be discussed and revised by a special committee appointed at a recent meeting of the Festival association, according to Russ Jamison, president.

Members of the committee are Mrs. Dave Irving, Mrs. Floyd Eastwood, John Watkins, Lowell Iverson and Jamison. The committee will review present rules and make recommendations at the next meeting of the association at 7:30 a.m. Tuesday, Feb. 23, at the Jackson hotel.

Several valley civic clubs and organizations are represented at the meetings. Festival officials said, but other groups and individuals in Medford and vicinity are encouraged to attend and assist in planning the event.

Those planning to attend the next meeting may make reservations by telephoning Mrs. Richard Wager, SPRING 3-3661, secretary of the association.

Board of Education

To Meet on Friday

Salem — (UPI) — The State Board of Education has scheduled a meeting here this Friday. Progress reports will be presented on a policy and operating code for the Board and Department of Education, on curricular offerings at Oregon Technical Institute and the proposed Oregon education improvement program.

New York Theater To Give Way To Hotel

New York — (UPI) — The Roxy Theater, which opened its doors in 1927 as the largest theater in the world, will be torn down to make way for a hotel addition.
