Burns—UPI—Water supply outlook for the 1960 irrigation season in the Harney Basin is much improved over last year but is still not up to average.

That was the report of W. T. Frost, snow survey supervisor for the Soil Conservation Service.

Moisture Above Normal

Frost said February storms brought much above normal moisture and March precipitation is already up to the usual total for the entire month in the area. Water content of the mountain snow pack has increased from 71 per cent average last month to 83 per cent average on March 1.

Present snow cover is one-third greater than last year at this date. Presence of low-elevation snow cover this year contrasts strongly with its absence last year, he said.

Little Gained

Moisture in the mountain watershed soils has increased by rains and snow melt where the soils are not frozen, Frost said. In many areas higher elevations covered by the snow pack have gained very little soil moisture in the last month and will soak up some of the runoff.

Flow of streams in the Harney Basin is forecast between a high of 75 per cent average on the Blitzen river to a low of 47 per cent average on the Silvers river, he said.

Forecasts are based on conditions prevailing at the end of February.

Polio Victim Uses 10 Years for Degree

Manhattan, Kan. — (UPI) — Kenneth Kohfeld is a polio victim and it took him 10 years to get his degree at Kansas State University. But he finally made the grade, with the class of 1960, and earned top scholastic honors while he was at it.

Kohfeld had been wheeled to classes the past two years by his wife Mary. He says he's been especially lucky with his class schedules but that on Tuesdays the past semester, it was necessary for Mary to make eight trips with him to and from the campus.

Kohfeld majored in agricultural economics. Now, with his wife and their daughters, Kathy, 5, and Susie, 3, he is mainly concerned with "just getting settled" in their new home at Norton, Kan., where he began work at the First National Bank.

He specializes in property insurance at the bank. The young polio victim is still confined to a wheelchair, doesn't have free movement of his arms and must use a respirator at night because his breathing is about one-third normal.

Texas had eight capitals before it became a state.

200,000 Expected at N.Y. Flower Show

New York — (UPI) — A record 200,000 flower lovers are expected to pour into the New York Coliseum for the 1960 International Flower Show.

More than 1,000 amateur and professional horticulturists are represented at the show with close to one half million blooms and plants, trees and shrubs, rock gardens, and exhibits featuring streams, ponds and waterfalls.

The theme of the show is "Flower of the World." It opened March 5 and runs through March 12.

A record $110,000 in prize money will be distributed by the show's sponsors, International Flower Show, Inc., a non-profit organization which is aided by the New York Florists' Club and the Horticulture Society of New York.

Actress Gets 'Good Script for Change'

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent
Hollywood — (UPI) — Elizabeth Scott has returned to television for the first time in two years because "I found a good script for a change."

The husky-voiced star has been waging her own private war against mediocre performances and would rather give up acting altogether than appear in second-rate roles.

"There's no point putting your heart and soul into a part when you know in advance it isn't worth the trouble," she said.

"I'm not speaking as a dedicated actress. Enthusiasm and hard work is a requisite for any job a person undertakes. I'd rather starve than perform in a picture or TV show just for money."

The blue-eyed blonde said she wasn't kidding. "I tried working for just money once, and it made me almost physically ill," Liz went on.

Completes Role

"My agent talked me into accepting a movie role I didn't think was worth while. His argument was, 'it can't hurt your career, and look at all the money you'll make.' Liz just completed a co-starring role with newcomer Gardner McKay in an "Adventures in Paradise" segment at 20th Century-Fox which beams on NBC-TV Monday, March 21.

"This is a realistic story about a lady captain in the South Pacific," she explained. "The cast and crew take special pains to get exactly the right feeling of the script on film."

"Rarely do you find that sort of thing in television shows. There is so little time devoted to production no one gives a thought to what the final product will look like on the screen."

Refuses Opportunities
For this reason Liz has refused dozens of opportunities to star in her own video series.

"It's next to impossible to

Changed 'K' To Meet Ike

Washington — (UPI) — When he goes to the summit and to Moscow in the next few months President Eisenhower may find a changed Nikita Khrushchev, softened in some ways and hardened in others toward the United States.

The Soviet premier was reported to be greatly impressed with the American standard of living, cars, drive-ins, ice boxes and housing during his trip here last September.

He was believed to have high respect for U.S. military strength and to concede that this country could devastate Russia in any war. It is said that one man who does not attach great weight to the "missile gap" is Nikita Khrushchev.

But Khrushchev is firmly convinced that U.S. officials are amateurs at "the art of revolution," a phrase which refers to the struggle between East and West to win the peoples of the world to their side.

Oregon City — (UPI) — Argument on a motion to quash an indictment against Levi S. McDonald, 51, on a charge of destruction of property by explosives has been set for Thursday morning by Circuit Judge P. K. Hammond.

ISSUE DRAFT CALL

Market Following Pattern Set In Three-Month Period of 1957

By ELMER C. WALZER
UPI Financial Editor

New York — (UPI) — This stock market so far this year has followed a pattern set in the period July 12 to Oct. 22, 1957.

In those 71 days, the industrial average fell 100.98 points as the market discounted the recession of 1957-58.

This year in 42 sessions since the industrial average hit its highest level for all time on Jan. 5, there has been a decline to the low on Friday (intra-day figures used) of 86.78 points or 12.6 per cent. Ralls fell by 13.3 per cent in the same period.

In relative points lost the decline of 1960 is smaller than the one in 1957, but percentage-wise it is larger.

Only a few of the experts classed the 1957 break as a bear market. Those who did said it was the shortest bear market in history.

Recovery Discounted
After Oct. 22, 1957, the market set out on a rise as business continued to decline. That rise was discounting a business recovery that began after the production index hit its recession low in April of 1958 at 132 per cent of the 1957-1959 average.

Wall Street isn't convinced the current market is discounting a business setback or merely suffering from over-optimistic predictions made late in 1959 on the 1960 outlook.

Bear markets have come and gone over the years. We've had 13 of them since 1899, according to Ralph A. Rotnem, analyst for Harris, Upham & Co.

Rotnem has plotted these bear markets and noted in each how much of a decline occurred before a bear market signal was given by the averages.

Signal Given
This signal was said to have been given last week when the ralls fell to a 16-month low and confirmed the declines in industrials.

There was a decline of more than 12 per cent in 42 sessions before the signal was given. In other bear markets, the signal has lagged by as much as nine months and the loss before it was given has reached 21 per cent.

That long interval came in the bear market of 1916-1917 and it lasted only three and a half months longer with prices falling another 23 1/2 per cent.

The longest bear market we have had was the one that ran from 1929 to 1932. In that one it took one and one-half months for the bear signal to

Global-Range Missile May Be Horror Weapon

Washington — (UPI) — One of man's future horror weapons may be a global-range ballistic missile that hurtles 10,000 or 15,000 miles to its target via the bottom of the world.

Pentagon research director Herbert F. York raised that specter in telling the need for U.S. satellites that could scan the entire earth and instantly detect an attack from any direction.

In Soviet hands, a future global missile could streak across the Southern Hemisphere instead of the Arctic where American radar warning stations are nearing completion. Contracts for the stations run $750 million so far.

Improve on Radar
The logical course for today's ballistic missiles is across the top of the world, York said, and U.S. radar should give 15 minutes warning of a transarctic attack.

"But it is potentially possible for missiles to go around the other way," he told the Massachusetts Institute of Technology Alumni Association. "So it is important to have something better" than radar for warning.

The "something better" is the Midas satellite, the first test model of which the Air Force recently tried unsuccessfully to put into orbit from Cape Canaveral, Fla.

Detect Heat Trails
The Midas-meaning missile defense alarm system — will carry infra-red sensing devices to pick up the heat trails of missiles the moment they are launched.

A fully operating military "spy in the sky" system, with many Midas satellites and ground-based data receiving stations, "won't be easy, inexpensive or soon," York said. But it can be done and there must be a "solid program" to make it work he added.

Such a system would at least double the 15-minute warning time now in prospect for any transarctic attack, he pointed out, and also could detect submarine-launched missiles.
