Paper's Attorneys File Demurrer

Portland — (UPI) — Attorneys for the Oregonian Publishing Co., have filed a demurrer in Circuit Court stating that stories concerning charges made against stereotyper Levi McDonald did not impede justice as claimed by McDonald's attorneys.

The statement contained in the demurrer was in answer to a show cause order obtained by McDonald's attorneys seeking to have the newspaper held in criminal contempt for the publication of confessions of McDonald's "alleged accusers."

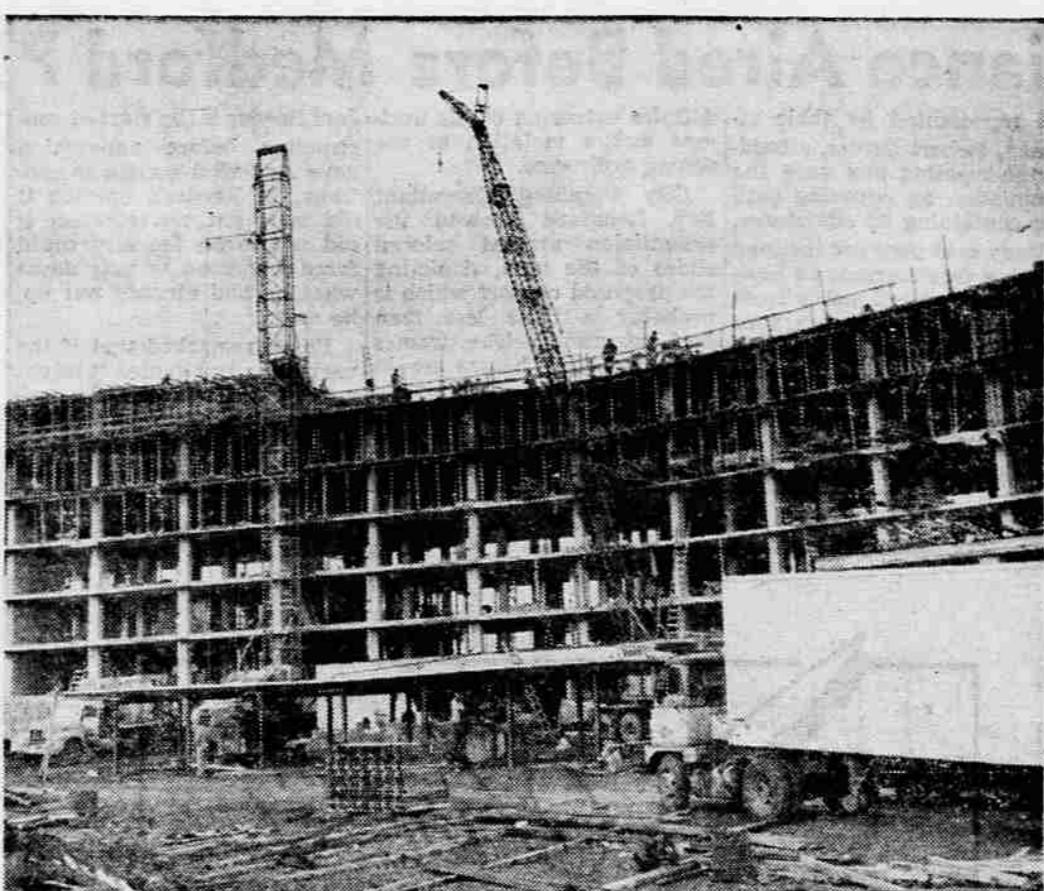

McDonald is charged in the Jan. 31 dynamiting of newspaper trucks. The paper's statement said the stories "do not constitute any clear and present danger or serious and imminent threat to the orderly and impartial administration of justice."

New House Not On Old Foundation

Cody, Wyo. — (UPI) — David Craig is thinking about building a new house. And there's one place he isn't going to build it—where his old one used to be.

Craig recently was roused from bed by an explosion and fire in the kitchen. No one was injured and firemen halted the blaze.

Three days later he connected his house for natural gas and started a heater fire to dry it out. The house not only dried out, it was all but blown to bits when gas from a leaky line ignited.

Group Opposes Naming McKay Dam

Detroit, Ore. — (UPI) — A protest movement has begun to fight a proposal to change the name of Detroit dam to McKay dam after the late former Interior Secretary Douglas McKay.

Action on legislation co-sponsored by the late Sen. Richard L. Neuberger (D-Ore.) and Rep. Walter Norblad (R-Ore.) is pending in the House.

Former Detroit Mayor R. P. Sopy said he and the other groups would be willing to name another dam after McKay, but felt that renaming the Detroit project now would crimp its growing popularity as a recreation area. It has been known as Detroit dam since the project's inception in 1937.

A silver medal will be awarded "to that member of the press who, by outstanding editorial or reportorial services, has increased public awareness and thereby given active direction to the solving of national health problems," he said.

Salem — (UPI) — State Engineer Lewis A. Stanley predicted Saturday the Oregon Hydroelectric Commission will postpone granting a license to build High Mountain Sheep dam on the Snake river until it can be determined if the dam as proposed is thick enough.

Pacific Northwest Power Company has made application for the permit and the Oregon Water Resources Board last Saturday ordered that the company be granted the license.

Stanley, a member of the Hydroelectric Commission — the agency which grants the licenses — said when the commission meets in Salem March 21 it will no doubt ask PNP for "more information" about plans for the dam.

Prenatal Care Is Topic of Program

"Prenatal care" will be the topic in the Jackson County Tuberculosis and Health association television program at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon over station KBES-TV.

The program is planned in cooperation with the Jackson County Medical Society.

A medical panel composed of Dr. O. J. Halboth, Dr. Richard W. Schwahn, and Dr. John R. Watson, all obstetricians and gynecologists, will explain the importance of early and continuing medical care during pregnancy, and will answer questions most commonly asked by the expectant mother.

The doctors also will discuss the importance of a complete physical examination and the taking of the patient's medical history on her first visit to the physician. The importance of diet in pregnancy and why the mother's weight gain is of concern will be explained, and questions about "old wives' tales" relating to pregnancy and the unborn child will be answered.

The subject of "Prenatal Care" as a topic for medical discussion on the program was suggested by a number of viewers, according to association members.

Hi-Lites IN THE History OF Pharmacy

by Jim Foster

In the early forming of college schools of Pharmacy the wholesale druggist played a large part. In Philadelphia, Boston and New York they did much to set up pharmacy as an independent branch of medicine.

In New England in 1602 Bartholomew landed in Massachusetts and his crew loaded the first cargo of New England exports. It consisted "of the bark and pith of the sassafras tree."

So one of the first exports were pharmaceutical.
