

Negroes Hail Major Victory in Sitdown Demonstrations

600 Arrested in South; Texas Area Integrates

By United Press International
Negroes hailed a major victory today in their seven-week campaign against Southern racial barriers, even though 600 demonstrators were put behind bars in two Deep South states.

Police at Orangeburg, S.C. broke up a series of anti-segregation parades Tuesday with fire hoses and tear gas and arrested about 400 marchers. The first all-out Negro campaign against lunch counter segregation in Atlanta brought 77 arrests. Seventy Negroes were arrested at Rock Hill S.C., 10 at Columbia, S.C., and six at St. Augustine, Fla.

But at San Antonio, Texas, the head of the city's Council of Churches announced that one department store and a number of drug and variety stores agreed to integrate their lunch counters rather than face the possibility of Negro sitdown demonstrations.

At Winston-Salem, N.C., half of the 120 faculty members of Wake Forest College signed a petition urging a local dime store to "serve all customers without reference to race." Store manager Herman Warren signed trespass warrants against 22 demonstrators in his store recently.

Butler Attacked For Alleged Vote Predictions

Washington—UPI—Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler, who has weathered many political storms, found himself buffeted from a new direction today—from the far liberal wing of the party.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.) and one of his campaign managers said Butler should resign if the party chief had been making private predictions that Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) would win the Democratic presidential nomination.

Butler, who often has heard demands from his Southern critics for his resignation, declined to comment.

Kennedy and Humphrey, both declared candidates for the nomination, will meet in the April 5 Wisconsin primary, the first big Democratic contest in advance of the national convention.

Humphrey and Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy (D-Minn.), co-chairman of his campaign organization, fired at Butler after newspaper stories Tuesday quoted an unidentified high Democratic source. This Democrat was said to believe that Kennedy would win the Wisconsin primary and then go on to win the presidential nomination on an early ballot.

Both Humphrey and McCarthy made it clear in statements that they believed Butler was the unnamed forecaster. McCarthy said it was "indicated" that Butler "has actually been working to promote" Kennedy's candidacy.

Stocks Set New Milestone for Year

New York — (UPI) — Stocks set a new milestone for the 1960 trading year today, rising for the fourth consecutive session.

But, as in the case of the other advances, trading remained light, discouraging the bulls who maintain that any sustained rally will have to be touched off by a string of rising prices on heavy volume.

Blue chips, hit hardest in the 1960 decline, were in most demand. Another rise in rails, the sixth in a row, also was a steady influence on the market.

The industrial average was pulled up by gains of more than 3 in Union Carbide, around 2 in Eastman Kodak and more than 1 in Du Pont, Owens-Illinois, Alcoa and International Paper.

Lusk Choice as Senator Favored; Porter Dissents

Washington—UPI—The Oregon congressional delegation, with one dissenting opinion, today applauded the appointment of Hall S. Lusk to fill the unexpired term of the late Sen. Richard L. Neuberger.

Rep. Charles O. Porter (D) was the only member of the delegation to criticize Gov. Mark Hatfield's choice of the Oregon Supreme Court justice.

Sen. Wayne Morse (D) said it will be a "privilege and an honor" to welcome Lusk to the Senate.

He added in a telegram to Lusk, "please be assured that my office is at your service."

In a Senate speech, Morse said Lusk has been one of the "distinguished jurists of our state since 1930" and has been an "outstanding leader in the Oregon Bar."

Morse said that when he was dean of the University of Oregon law school "I came to know Judge Lusk and formed a very high regard for the brilliance of his mind, the unimpeachable integrity of his character and his fine human qualities."

Rep. Edith Green (D) said Hatfield used "good judgment" in naming Lusk to the post. She said Lusk is an "outstanding citizen of our state."

"He has served long and well with honor and distinction and will continue the same type of constructive service in the United States Senate," Mrs. Green said.

Rep. Walter Norblad, Oregon's only Republican congressman, said it was an "excellent appointment." He called Lusk an "outstanding jurist" who is "well qualified for the job."

Rep. Al Ullman (D) said Lusk's appointment was "most commendable."

House Leaders Seek To Save Voting Referee Plan From Two-Way Assault

Washington — (UPI) — House leaders sought today to rescue the administration's voting referee plan from a two-way assault and write it into the civil rights bill.

The referee proposal, designed to safeguard Negro voting rights, was caught in a crossfire from liberal Democrats seeking a tougher measure and Southern Democrats who want to water down the plan.

In a series of bewildering votes Tuesday, the House killed the referee proposal and then revived it. At the end of the confusing session, the House was left about where it started on the civil rights bill.

Join Forces Temporarily
The Southerners joined forces temporarily Tuesday with the Northern liberals and managed to substitute a stronger Democratic plan for the administration proposal.

It would have provided for presidentially appointed enrollment officers to guarantee that qualified Negroes could vote.

But when the substitute had been adopted, the Southerners did a quick switch and joined Republicans in voting down the entire proposal.

Rep. William M. McCulloch (R-Ohio), floor leader of the administration forces, revived the referee plan by offering a new version with only one paragraph eliminated from the original proposal.

Overrules Objections
Rep. Francis E. Walter (D-Pa.), presiding officer, ruled that the revised version could be brought up despite Southern objections that it was out of order.

While the House struggled over the voting rights section, the Senate talked on in its fifth week of civil rights debate. The Senate is waiting to act on a House-passed bill.

Brucker Warns on Soviet Concessions
Lt. Dix, N.J.—Army Secretary Wilbur M. Brucker warned Tuesday against making concessions to the Soviet Union which, he said, continues to strive for the elimination of the free world.

Brucker, here to dedicate the new Walsom Army hospital, took the occasion to warn that Russian threats had not diminished but appear to have intensified.

Bright Little Girl Receives Court Approval To Stay With Foster Parents

Old Bidge, N.J.—(UPI)—Alice Marie Combs, almost five, runs laughingly to her father and with a jump she is in his arms. This sanctuary of affection is hers and she doesn't know she almost lost it.

Gloria and Richard Combs are the only parents Alice has ever known, although she was not born to them. It was a little more than four years ago that a 10-month-old child was brought to their home to be cherished as their own.

Warmth and Security
Alice became a friendly, bright daughter, surrounded with the warmth and security of the young couple's love. But state child welfare investigators said she needed more intellectual surroundings to match the superior intelligence that tests had shown she had.

That was two years ago. The State Child Welfare Board wanted to take Alice from the Combs to place her with different parents. It was the start of the Combs' fight to prove love could conquer statistics. They won the battle Tuesday.

Their struggle against the ruling of child welfare officials won attention around the world. They took the case to court and lost. It was appealed to a high tribunal where it was under consideration when the child welfare board changed its decision in a surprise move.

"With the press and the public on our side," Combs said, "I was confident. It proves we live in a democratic United States and that the will of the people will be done."

The Child Welfare Board said it believed in its original findings but that it was better for the child that the battle cease. Gov. Robert Meyner agreed.

They kissed reporters, displayed her toys and romped about with the Combs' other two daughters, Sheri, 2, and Gail, 15 months.

"I don't know how to thank everyone," Mrs. Combs said. "I have just been crying with joy."

The Combs had refused to believe that the foster daughter they had wrapped warmly in love could not develop both in personality and intellect where she was so strongly wanted.

Missile Strength Increase Studied

Washington—UPI—The Pentagon is studying the feasibility of an 18 per cent increase in the planned force of Atlas and Titan intercontinental ballistic missiles, it was learned today.

If approved by the administration and put up to Congress, plans now being examined might call for extra appropriations estimated to total more than $400,000,000.

The total increase in missiles would be 42, raising the force of hydrogen bomb-carrying rockets from the 270 now planned to 312 by some time in 1963. The number of planned missile launchers, in underground sites, would be increased from 239 to 281.

Defense Secretary Thomas S. Gates Jr. touched on the Air Force studies at his news conference last week. But he refused to give any details on the number of weapons and mentioned only "certain" Atlas squadrons.
