

CAPT. ROBERT BURKHART
Instructor of Course

Albany Captain to Instruct Course

Information sources and uses of various information in carrying out police work will be the subject of a class for police officers in the Medford city hall, Monday, March 21. Instructor will be Capt. Robert M. Burkhart of the Albany police department.

The class is the fourth of six being held here this spring under sponsorship of the Oregon Association of City Police Officers and the Oregon State Sheriffs association in cooperation with the FBI, Oregon state police, League of Oregon Cities and the Bureau of Municipal Research.

Capt. Burkhart has been with the Albany department since 1950 and is a 1958 graduate of the FBI national academy for police officers. He has completed numerous basic and advanced police training courses in Oregon, presently serves as vice president of the Oregon chapter, FBI academy graduates, and is a member of the training committee of the OACPO.

Pan-Am Employees Set Strike Date

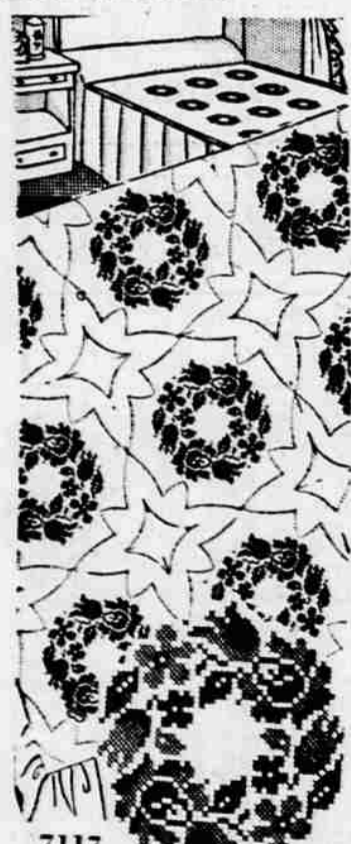

New York (UPI)—Six thousand employees of Pan American World Airways set a strike deadline of next Tuesday in a dispute with the company over new work contract.

The clerks, agents and freight handlers belonging to the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks seek higher wages and improved working conditions.

Pan American officials asked the Federal Mediation Board to certify the dispute to President Eisenhower. If the mediation board takes such action, the union would be prevented from striking for 60 days.

Present wage scales for the employees, who work in the United States, including Alaska and Hawaii, and in the West Indies, is from $1.41 to $2.80 an hour.

Back Stairs: Identification Button

By MERRIMAN SMITH
UPI White House Reporter

Washington (UPI)—Back stairs at the White House: When President Eisenhower was in Chile recently, the Chilean government provided a special identification button for American secret service agents consisting of a small metal four-leaf clover . . . some of the Irish among the United States agents hailed the button as a fine good luck symbol - until Chilean detectives explained that, in their country, there are oodles of four-leaf clovers and the three-leaf variety is regarded locally as a good luck sign.

A Fine Idea

The U.S. Navy band leader, Cmdr. Charles Brendler, came back from his crowd-packed concerts in Santiago, Chile, with a fine idea for highly effective American aid at essentially little cost . . . The Chileans are mad for band music and they flock to concerts by the Chilean army band, many of whose instruments are quite battered, dented and patched together . . . Brendler figures that $3,000 worth of new band instruments delivered to the Chilean army band would do more to cement friendships with the United States than 10 times this amount spent in conventional economic aid channels.

Painful Dysentery

And another late note from the President's recent trip south of the equator: Several members of his staff were hit by painful dysentery days after they returned to this country . . . the same ailment that laid up Secretary of State Christian A. Herter . . . and yet the President, himself, came through the trip without a trace of the annoying ailment known as "the Inca's revenge" . . . Eisenhower also escaped dysentery on his December trip to the Middle East when it felled a number of people in his party . . . Possibly because he drinks nothing but American mineral water during one of these trips . . . and eating for the most part in palaces, the President benefits from the finest sanitary conditions the host country has to offer . . . Those traveling with him frequently have to grab food on the run and whenever available . . . they may stick to the purest mineral water or soft drink, but this is no protection if the glass is dirty.

Photographs Requested

The President asked Maurice Johnson, talented UPI photographer, to make a special set of color photographs for him at San Carlos de Bariloche, the fabulous scenic Argentine mountain resort . . . Eisenhower hopes to use the color pictures as guides for some of his latest painting projects . . .

A prized presidential souvenir would be one of the nearly completed paintings he rejects as a bad try . . . but the President knows the curiosity and souvenir value of the rough sketches and abandoned oils . . . and nobody, but nobody, gets their hands on these canvases . . . The President has an arrangement with his valet, John Mooney . . . discarded paintings are turned over to Mooney and he burns them . . . The same thing happens to some of the incredibly weird portraits of the President mailed in by ardent amateurs . . . Some of them are so misshapen and distorted that they simply cannot be kept, even as items of curiosity for the Eisenhower museum in Abilene . . . so, they are acknowledged with a polite letter to the artist, and then burned.

Important Speech Due

Watch for the President's speech June 5 at the Notre Dame University commencement . . . this will be one of his most important public utterances just before taking off for Russia where he is due June 10 . . . He is expected to use the backdrop of a religious school to point up the differences between the West and a part of the world where churches and religion are poorly regarded.

Klamath Falls—UPI—Col. Jack M. Williams, commander of the 408th Fighter Group at Kingsley Field, said Thursday he will be transferred in July to the post of director of operations for the Portland Air Defense Sector at Camp Adair.
