MRS. LONGSHANKS IS SLIGHTLY TALLER THAN HUBBY. WHEN BUYING SHOES SHE SAYS—AND WE QUOTE—

NO—NO HIGH HEELS—ER—I'M A LITTLE TALLER THAN MY HUSBAND—I LIKE SOMETHING IN FLAT TO MAKE US ABOUT THE SAME HEIGHT—

By Jimmy Hatlo

SO—SO WHAT? SHE BUYS FLAT-HEELED SHOES, BUT AT THE BEAUTY PARLOR SHE GETS AN "UP-SWEEP" LIKE THE EIFFEL TOWER!

The Family Council

Editor's Note: The Family Council consists of a Judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counselors.

Mrs. L. L.—I'm worried about my daughter's morals. Kileen L.—Mother is a prude and an eavesdropper.

Mrs. L. L.—I listened in on a gab fest between my 16-year-old daughter and some of her friends the other day and I almost got a heart attack.

The girls were talking about sex and some of the stuff they had read in books and I couldn't believe the things I was hearing. I've been married 20 years and have three children, but some of the things they talked about were news to me.

That was bad enough, but when my daughter piped up and said sex was normal and natural and she wasn't married by 21 she was going to have relationship without benefit of clergy. I felt it was time to break up the party.

I walked into the room and told the girls I had never heard anything so sickening in my life and I never wanted to hear such talk in my home. I am so worried about my daughter.

Ellen L.—It's bad enough to have a mother who is a prude, but when she acts like a sneak and eavesdropper as well, that's too much! I was never so ashamed in all my life—not because of what I said but because of the way Mother acted. Mother must have had her ear glued to the door for half an hour to have heard the things she claimed she did. We were talking in whispers and nobody could have heard us without trying real hard. Anyway, I don't see any harm in talking about sex. All the girls do it. Personally, I'd never know a thing if it was not for my friends. Mother hardly told me anything. A lot of the girls laughed at me when I said certain things. They said I probably still believe in the stork. What I said about what I would do if I don't get married young was just talk.

The Council: We are very much opposed to all forms of spying in family life. The spying parent degrades himself and causes great harm by tearing down the fabric of the child's respect. Whatever information he can glean isn't worth the price.

We do not believe it is necessary to spy, eavesdrop, open letters or intercept telephone conversations to know what is going on with a child. A teen age boy or girl reveals much in gestures, facial expressions and casual conversation. The tactful parent will try to create an atmosphere of friendliness and trust so that the child will feel free to talk up or ask questions when the time is right.

We get the impression that Ellen and her friends were enjoying a torrid bull session and the things discussed don't necessarily reflect much of their real attitudes. Ellen's elaborate proclamation was probably nine-tenths showing off and one-tenth trying on the idea to hear how it sounds. At 16, age 21 sounds far enough away to be entirely unreal.

We don't mean to pooh-pooh this episode out of existence. It is certainly important for adolescent girls and boys to be able to put some of their factual knowledge about sex in its proper perspective. Mrs. L. L. should do something about giving her daughter the right standards and the right information. She will never be able to do this, however, if she heaps abuse on the girl on the basis of the things she heard eavesdropping.
