Mild Polio Attack May Help Scientists To Achieve Control

New York (UPI) — A mild strain of the virus in a Louisiana boy—whose family didn't even know he had it—may help scientists achieve world-wide control of the dreaded disease.
 Daryl Musso, of Franklin, La., is a busy six-year-old with little realization of his contribution to the oral polio vaccine developed by Dr. Albert B. Sabin and safely tested on 12,000,000 Russians.
 A type of polio invaded Daryl's body in 1954 when he was one year old. He wasn't harmed and his family didn't even suspect he had polio. This particularly weak strain of polio virus went almost but not quite, undetected.
 Dr. John P. Fox of Tulane University and other research workers were making a field study of natural immunity to polio in several Louisiana communities at the time. It happened that Daryl and his family were among those selected for the study.
 Waste Samples
 The established routine of the researchers was to take waste samples regularly from all persons in the study. Such a sample was taken from Daryl although he appeared to be in perfect health. Through laboratory analysis, Fox discovered that a mild strain of the polio virus had passed through Daryl's body.

 Fox shipped Daryl's strain of Polio virus to Sabin at his research laboratory at the University of Cincinnati where weak viruses were being sought to develop a live-virus vaccine against polio.
 Sabin, who was working with strains of all three virus types that cause polio, found this Musso strain to be safe and superior in achieving protection against Type II polio. He was able to incorporate the Musso strain into his live vaccine.
 The scientific breakthrough had international implications. Daryl is sharing his polio immunity with 12,000,000 Russians. And Soviet doctors plan on giving 77,000,000 more persons the vaccine within the next six months.
 The scientific world cautions that there remain unanswered questions requiring further testing and evaluation of the Sabin vaccine and other live-virus polio vaccines developed by Dr. Herald R. Cox and Dr. Hilary Koprowski.

Oswego Man Hurt In Traffic Accident

Frank Everts Werneken, 45, of Oswego, Ore., was reported in fair condition Saturday by Ashland General hospital attendants following a one-car accident Friday night near Neal Creek. He is under observation for a possible skull fracture and head injuries, an attendant said.
 Werneken was driving north on Highway 99 when he overtook and passed a truck, according to state police. He lost control of the car, which left the highway, travelled along the highway shoulder, slid across the highway, struck a bank and rolled over, police said.
 A two-car accident occurred about 3:45 a.m. Saturday on Highway 99 one mile south of Rogue River, state police reported. No injuries were noted.
 A car driven by Richard Tom Lee, 23, of San Mateo, Calif., and a car driven by Gary Virgil Whipple, 18, of 1946 Delta Waters rd., Medford, were involved, police reported.
 Officers said Lee was advised a complaint would be filed against him charging failure to drive on the right side of the highway.

Not Ready For Licensing
 The U. S. Public Health Service has ruled that live-virus polio vaccines are not yet ready for licensing.
 In Cincinnati, Sabin said the first major tests in this country of his live-virus vaccine will be made with March of Dimes funds granted by The National Foundation.
 Western Reserve University will conduct a study on feeding live-virus vaccine to newborn infants. A virulence study will be made at Yale University and 250 of 4,400 persons in a research project in Houston, Tex., will receive the Sabin vaccine.
 "The tests will be important steps towards the eventual adoption of live-virus oral vaccine in this country," Sabin said.

Man Recently Near Death From Cancer Leads Robust Life

Bremerton, Wash. (UPI) — About a year ago, Joseph W. Mayerle, 38, told his wife, "I'll be satisfied if I can live long enough to see the baby."
 The baby was born Oct. 9, 1959, and Mayerle—whom the doctors believed had only months to live with incurable lung cancer—takes care of the baby every day while his wife is at work. At night, Mayerle works at a tavern, "and I can still lift a 150-pound keg of beer with the best of them."
 On weekends, when the Mayerles have time together, they spend it answering letters—hundreds of them wanting to know how he cured himself of cancer.
 "Actually I don't have a secret," Mayerle said, holding his 5-month-old son. "I just went home from the Veteran's hospital last April, lived normally, worked normally and ate normally. Perhaps, I ate a little more than normal. But here I am, and that's it."
 Physicians at the hospital operated on Mayerle in April, 1959, and told him his cancer had progressed too far.
 "They didn't think I'd live usually, I wasn't too bothered when I went home. I decided I'd have to accept what came."
 Last Oct. 1, Mayerle walked back into the hospital.
 "One of the doctors who operated on him couldn't believe his eyes," he said. "The doctor just stood there with his mouth open, his back against the wall and his face turned white. I asked him, 'Don't you know me?' he said, 'Well, you're Mayerle.'" Mayerle had his last check-up only a few weeks ago.
 "My X-rays are still clear as a crystal—you can't even find the scar."
 Since his baffling case became well known, research doctors have been studying Mayerle's blood.
 "Apparently, they want to know what I've got that others don't have," he said. "I don't know if they've found out anything yet. I can't even find out what blood type I am. But if there is something in my blood that will explain this, I surely hope they find it. Nothing would please me more than if my blood held the answer to a cure for cancer."

Chief Kills Wife, Then Shoots Self

Little Rock, Ark. — (UPI) — Police Chief Eugene Smith, 47, who could face 250 angry segregationists in the street but found it hard to cope with the thought of his son being a burglar, murdered his wife Friday night and killed himself.
 Mrs. R. J. Herbert Jr., who lived next door, found the bodies in the kitchen of the Smith home Saturday. The six-foot, three-inch body of Smith, in trousers and T-shirt, was on the floor.
 He had shot himself once. The fully dressed body of Mrs. Smith, 44, was slumped in a chair, with three bullet wounds in it. Her husband's .38 caliber service pistol was lying on the floor.
 Their only son, Raymond Eugene, 20, pleaded guilty in Searcy, Ark., Friday, to helping three other young men break into a drugstore and make off with watches, cameras and $200 in cash three weeks ago.
