

RV Maids In Softball Loop Again

Rogue Valley Dairy Maids will be among eight teams entered this year in the Northwest Women's Major Softball League.

An organizational meeting was held Sunday in Portland. Erv Lind, sponsor of the defending champion Lind Florists of Portland, was re-elected president. S. W. Callaghan, Eagle Point, coach of the Dairy Maids was named vice-president.

In the league, in addition to the Maids and Florists will be Vancouver, B.C., Port Angeles, Wash., Seattle or Tacoma, Wash., Forest Grove, Salem and Eugene. Tacoma will come into the loop if Seattle drops out.

League play will start on the week end of May 14 and 15.

Callaghan has called the first Maid practice for the first Sunday in April. It will be at Eagle Point if the Camp White park is not ready.

St. Petersburg, Fla. - (UPI) - George Bayer of Glenageles, Ill., richer by $2,000, headed for the $40,000 DeSoto Lakes open today - his stock increased by his victory in the St. Petersburg men's golf open Monday.

Amateur National Champ Entered in Field Trial

The 1959 amateur national champion will be among entries next week end in the annual American Kennel Club licensed field trial which will be conducted by Rogue Valley Retriever club.

This dog is Bracken's High Flyer, owned and handled by George Dukek, Fossil, Ore.

Both land and water series will be run and pigeons, pheasants and ducks will be used. Hunting conditions are simulated in the tests.

Among dogs entered, also, is Ripco's Peter Pan, which placed first last year in the open stake. Peter Pan is owned by Dean Parker, Seattle, Wash., and was handled by Paul Shoemaker, Issaquah, Wash., professional. High Flyer placed third in the 1959 open here.

Shoemaker is one of four pro handlers scheduled to run dogs here. The others are Ed Minoggie, Portland; Marvin (Snuffy) Bellavey, Sonoma, Calif., and Garth Stocker, Carnation Farms kennels, Carnation, Wash.

Entries so far are from Oregon, Washington and California. The trial is one of a number on a west coast circuit.

Shot pheasants will be on sale at the trial grounds.

Southpaws Numerous For Raiders

Ashland—"I still can't get over the left-handers that are on hand for this season," exclaimed Ted Schopf, coach of the Southern Oregon college diamond crew who open the season against the University of Oregon in Ashland March 25, Friday at 1 p.m.

Schopf was referring to southpaws John Younger, Marty Vogler, Bob Johnson, and Fred Louk. All are very promising chucks and either one of them could be in the starting lineup for one of the Oregon games.

To add to the lefties, there are letterman Don Vannice and Kermit McLemore, although the latter probably will be assigned to outfield duty for the most part.

Freshman John Cook and Dave Hughes are remaining pitchers beside Earl Tichenor who plays alternately at first base.

A unit of varsity players from last year outscored the newcomers 6-3 in a six inning inter-squad game earlier last week as the players were beginning to hit the ball better.

Second baseman Chuck Nevi is still on the sidelines with the twisted knee and his return for the Oregon series is still up in the air. Nevi was injured in a breakup at second base on a double play attempt.

Since this injury Jack Kopez and Cook have been working at the keystone position.

Phil Sword and Jack Brown have been taking up the slack on the pickoff play made famous by graduates Jim McAbee and Larry Mauer. Sword, the catcher, and Brown at first base, picked off one runner and came extremely near getting two more in the last inter-squad game.

Something new is being added to the Raider baseball field and that is a green picket fence which is being planted 320 feet down each foul line and 377 feet to left-center and right-center. It is five feet high.

Public Fishing Lakes Planned By Commission

Portland - (UPI) - The state game commission Friday authorized money to plan for creation of new public fishing lakes to meet needs of a growing angling population.

The commission picked a priority list of 14 future fishing sites which it hopes will help meet recreational demands.

The commission said in some cases lumber firms were helping and it was hoped other local interests would support the program.

The areas where the commission gave priority for developing fishing lakes include:

Northwest: 25 acres at Oaks Park in southeast Portland; 100 acres on Devils lake fork of Wilson river; 300 acres on Beaver creek near Silverton; 320 acres on Drift creek near Sublimity.

Central: 45 acres on Willow creek near Madras; 30 acres on Rosebush creek in Sherman county; development of Aspenlake in Klamath county.

Southwest: 90 acres on Reeves creek in Umpqua drainage; 60 to 100 acre lake on north fork of Smith river; 100 acre lake in Windy valley near head of Pistol river in Curry county.

Northeast: 20 acres in Canyon Creek meadows in Blue mountains south of Canyon City; 80 acres in West Eagle meadows near Pondosa.

Southeast: 100 acres at Roaring Springs in Drakes flat of Lake county; 50 to 75 acres on Pine creek in Harney county.

Quotes From the News

By United Press International
Paris—Elsa Silbernagel, 19, a German girl whose father has been in Soviet-held territory since the early days of World War II, stating she will try to ask Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev to return him:
"My father is old, and I am young. I must try everything to get him back with us."

Vancouver, B.C.—Archibald Ross, 57, who flew around the world in six days making brief stopovers in 13 countries, explaining why he did it:
"I wanted to go to Australia and to London to see people and I didn't want to retrace my steps."

New York—Jill Ciraldo, an aide of diamond merchant Harry Winston, stating she didn't know how many plainclothesmen would stand guard while jewels insured for $20 million were being moved to a new store:
"It's so secret the police won't even tell me."

Nashville, Tenn.—A teen-ager who eavesdropped outside a recording studio where Elvis Presley was waving a new rock 'n' roll tune:
"It was the greatest—just like before."

John F. — Carol shouldn't have expressed an opinion.
Carol F. — It's a parent's duty to guide a child to the right mate.

John F. — My wife and I are having a disagreement about the best way to handle our 26-year-old son, Mark. We are hoping he'll marry soon as we think it will straighten him out. He has shifted from job to job, never getting a serious start in any line. He has only one good friend and never dated much. Recently he started dating one girl and brought her to the house for coffee after their date.

The next day he asked what we thought of her. I didn't like her, but I said she was nice. My wife criticized her so much that Mark lost his temper and ran out of the room. He has been depressed ever since. I don't think Carol should have expressed an opinion.

Carol F. — It's a parent's responsibility to help a son or daughter choose the right mate. If a person can't depend on his mother or father to give an honest opinion, who can he depend on?

This girl was not for Mark. I could see that right away. She had dyed hair and wore about a ton of makeup. She smoked one cigarette after another and kept dropping ashes all over the place. Mark is a quiet, conservative boy who doesn't even smoke.

My husband has no common sense. He is so eager to see Mark married and settled down that he is ready to marry him off to the first girl who comes along. Mark may be a little unsettled, but he is an intelligent, good-looking man and doesn't have to tie himself down to a floozie.

The Council: We agree with Carol that it is a parent's responsibility to help children choose the right mate. But this is a difficult and delicate matter and shouldn't be attempted by steam roller methods. Some young people will be frightened out of exposing their friends to harshly critical parents.

Parents should be aware that they may be more objective and experienced, but they are not infallible. They should take time to get to know the individual and think the whole situation through more carefully.

Parents should also be aware that it is vital for any young person to develop trust in his judgment. In our society he must assume the responsibility for choosing his own mate and a parent's mis-handled opposition must eventually lead to either violent rebellion or a total crushing of the young person's spirit.

John evidently senses that his son lacks self-confidence and his little white lie may be justified. It is quite likely that Mark was fully aware of what his parents' attitude would be once he saw the girl in his home. A more satisfactory way of handling the situation might have been for the parents to mention something they liked about the girl and then to have asked more questions about her. This might have produced a more relaxed atmosphere in which Carol could have expressed her opinion without hurting her son's feelings. In a word, tact was needed.

However, we don't think this unsettled young man should be urged into a marriage for which he is probably not ready. He needs to do a lot more dating to begin to know his own mind.

Los Angeles Has Eye-Burning Smog
Los Angeles - (UPI) - If they could still see, Los Angeles residents today were told they could look forward to another day like Monday—an eye-burning smoggiest day of the year.

The temperature climbed to a high 78 after a dense fog melted into smog. Nearby Pasadena and Azusa had smog readings just under the mark at which the Air Pollution Control District automatically calls a first stage alert.

Because of Monday's smog, industry voluntarily changed over from burning crude fuel oil to natural gas.
