Emeritus Consultant in Medicine
Emeritus Professor of Medicine
Mayo Clinic

A Horse-Shoe Kidney

In today's mail come letters from two women, each of whom has a boy with a "horse-shoe kidney." The kidneys are united by a bridge on top. The mothers want to know if they should get a surgeon to cut in and cut the two kidneys apart. My answer would be, "Dr. Alvarez, who is the trouble? I doubt if the kidneys need to be cut apart; they are probably working all right now, and I do not see why they should work better after being separated. The women had better depend on the advice of a wise, conservative doctor in their home city."

Many people write me asking if they should mortgage their home or borrow money and travel far to some institute they have heard about which advertises to cure some disease. I certainly would never think of going to such a place. Today, a woman writes asking if she should take her very sick child to a place where marvelous cures are supposed to be worked with Vitamin E. All I know is that a while ago I read a big book on the world's experience with Vitamin E and the conclusion of the editors was that it was of no value in any known disease of man. We all of us get large amounts of Vitamin E in all of our foods. I know that there are many enthusiasts who have reported marvelous results from using Vitamin E, but I know that other men, who have tried to confirm these results, have failed completely. It is very hard to decide if a drug is of value, especially if one is an enthusiast. My old Chief used to give a woman on a new drug, and a week later, when she would come to report, he would glare at her and say, "You are better; now don't deny it!" It was a rare woman who dared say, "No doctor, I cannot see any improvement." Naturally, his opinion about the usefulness of a new drug had no value. And I am sure he did not realize how he was fooling himself.

Should Surgeon Leave Gallbladder?
Many worried people with gallstones write me to ask why their surgeon says he wants to remove the gallbladder. Why not remove just the stones? Because it was found 50 years ago that if just the stones were removed, in half of the cases the patient was no better, and later had to have a second operation for removal of the gallbladder.

Scores of people kept telling me that accidentally an x-ray man found they have gallstones, and now someone is keen to take them out. But the stones are not producing any symptoms, or the nervous symptoms the person has cannot possibly be produced by the gallstones. What to do? After 55 years of watching hundreds of people with gallstones live on without any symptoms, I am more and more inclined to leave them alone. I know that more than determined by x-raying the lungs.
