Symington Doubts Importance of Wisconsin Race

Washington—(UPI)—Sen. Stuart Symington is starting his campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination by raising questions about the meaning of Wisconsin's heavily publicized primary.

Symington, formally announcing his candidacy Thursday, reiterated that he would not enter state primaries. He noted that 35 of the 50 states do not provide such primaries and said all national convention delegates should have a voice in choosing the presidential nominee.

The Missouri senator also contended that presidential primaries do not necessarily reflect the opinion of Democratic voters. He said Adlai E. Stevenson polled 55 per cent of the Democratic vote in the 1956 Minnesota primary but lost because an estimated 125,000 Republicans voted in the Democratic contest.

Symington said Wisconsin offers the only contested Democratic presidential primary this year in which Republicans can vote.

In the Wisconsin primary, Humphrey's campaign advisers also have been raising questions about how many Republicans may cross over to vote in the Democratic contest.

Goodwill Industries Reelects President

Portland—(UPI)—Herbert Ambler, vice president of the U.S. National Bank, was reelected president of Goodwill Industries of Oregon Wednesday night.

Proposal To Ban Nuclear Tests To Be Discussed

Washington—(UPI)—President Eisenhower and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan are expected to reach quick agreement here next week on a revised Western proposal for banning nuclear weapons tests.

American and British officials acknowledge that circumstances are pushing the two Allied leaders toward a compromise to counter Russia's new formula for suspending all tests.

The President may discuss at a cabinet meeting today differences on the subject within his own administration. Secretary of State Christian A. Herter probably will shed further light on the U.S. position at a news conference this afternoon.

The White House announced Thursday Macmillan's hurriedly arranged trip to Washington for talks with the President. The British leader will arrive here Saturday afternoon and confer with Eisenhower early Monday.

Their problem is to work out a reply to Russia's proposal to ban all large and medium-sized test explosions and conclude a four to five-year moratorium on smaller underground blasts which defy detection under any procedures the Soviet Union is willing to accept.

Rejection Not Expected

Officials said it appeared virtually certain that the West would not reject outright the Soviet offer, despite the reported belief of Chairman John A. McCone of the Atomic Energy Commission and some of his supporters that this would be the proper course.

Macmillan wants to accept the Soviet proposal with the least possible modification. His attitude has strengthened the position of Herter, who is arguing for a compromise.

Traffic Changes Made on Main St.

Medford engineering department employees started work Thursday on several changes in the traffic pattern on Main st., east of the new bridge.

City Engineer Vernon Thorpe said the major change being made is a relocation of the center line some five feet north of its present location on Main st., from Tripp st. to the bridge.

The relocation of the line will allow for an additional lane of traffic and still permit parking on both sides of Main st., he said. There will now be one lane for westbound traffic and two lanes for eastbound traffic on Main st. east of the bridge.

The change became necessary due to confusion caused to eastbound drivers coming off the new bridge and having to converge from two lanes into one on Main st.

Swastika Banner Greets Adenauer

Tokyo—(UPI)—Extreme rightists unfurled a swastika-marked banner at International Airport tonight to welcome West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer. Police tightened precautions against leftist rioters.

A small group of rightists strung a banner bearing two black swastikas on a red background on the railing of a ramp leading from the terminal building to the runways. The banner bore the words, in English, "Welcome, Mr. Adenauer."

The banner appeared about an hour before Adenauer's scheduled arrival to begin an eight-day state visit.

Police threw a cordon of more than 200 men around the terminal building to protect the 84-year-old chancellor in case anti-German demonstrations threatened by student radicals should flare into violence.

Johnson's Stock in Presidential Race Appears Brighter

Washington—(UPI)—Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson's presidential stock appeared today to have bounced up because of his latest civil rights move.

In the process, Vice President Richard M. Nixon lost a chance to grab the limelight on the critical election-year issue.

Deserves Credit

Assistant Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield (Mont.) a Johnson-for-President supporter, said that the Texas "has taken a lot of criticism and now deserves a lot of credit" in the civil rights debate.

Ike's Health Declared Good

Chicago—(UPI)—President Eisenhower is in better physical condition today than he was when he took office seven years ago. Today's Health magazine said today in an article by Ernest L. Barcella, Washington bureau manager of United Press International.

Barcella wrote in the April issue of the magazine that discipline and determination enabled the President to make an amazing recovery from a heart attack, ileitis and a light stroke.

"People who know the President are convinced that... he is in better shape today than when he entered the White House," Barcella said.

Eisenhower, facing his 70th birthday in October, soon will become the oldest president in the nation's history.

"By all medical odds, the President long since should have put on his slippers, retired to a rocking chair, and called it a career," Barcella wrote in the American Medical Association magazine. "Instead... he has undertaken a staggering load of work and travel."

Budget Bureau's Budget Chopped

Washington—(UPI)—The budget bureau, which is frequently assailed by congressional critics for keeping a tight rein on spending by other government agencies, had its own budget chopped today.

The House appropriations committee cut $200,000 from the budget bureau's request for $5,100,000.

The committee made the whack in approving a $13,463,500 money bill to run the White House and related agencies in the fiscal year starting July 1. This was $515,000 less than President Eisenhower asked but $324,000 more than the budget for the current year.

The President himself and the White House got all the money that was requested.

Senate Change In Civil Rights Seen

Washington—(UPI)—Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.) said today he would be "very much surprised" if the Senate did not change the five-point civil rights bill approved by the House.

Senate leaders hoped the House measure could be passed without change and sent directly to the White House. Otherwise, a time-consuming Senate-House conference would be necessary to work out a compromise.

Signals Arise

But storm signals arose from both liberal senators wanting a stronger bill and embattled Southern legislators fighting any civil rights legislation. Russell is the leader of the Southern bloc.

The House finally passed its bill by a 311-109 vote Thursday. The measure includes most of the administration's civil rights proposals, including a plan for court-appointed referees to safeguard Negro voting rights.

The Senate promptly sidetracked its own measure and sent the House bill to the judiciary committee, headed by Sen. James O. Eastland (D-Miss.). But it instructed the committee to report the measure back by next Tuesday.

The Senate defeated, 72-19, an Eastland motion to refer the bill to his committee with no time limit. Eastland told newsmen he would not call a committee meeting until its regular session Monday morning.

Amendment Cited

Although many members were confident the Senate would not change the House bill, Russell did not agree. Russell, who has masterminded the strategy of 18 Southern senators in the civil rights fight, specifically cited an amendment adopted by the Senate to its own measure.

Sponsored by Sen. Frank J. Lausche (D-Ohio), the amendment would extend to all federal court rulings penalties provided for interference with school desegregation rulings. The House bill contains milder penalties and limits them to school cases.
