

In the Day's News

By FRANK JENKINS

At the hour this is written, the votes in Wisconsin have been counted. The vote stands: Senator Kennedy, 476,000; Senator Humphrey 371,000.

That is on the Democratic side of the Wisconsin primary election voting. On the Republican side, Vice-President Nixon came up with a total of 341,000.

Senator Kennedy says: "I am pleased to win. My wife and I came as strangers, and we did well." His brother Robert, who took an active part in the campaign, is a little more enthusiastic. He says: "It's a fantastic victory."

Senator Humphrey says: "I am satisfied with the outcome, and don't feel injured at all."

Mr. Nixon says: "Observers agree that our (Republican) vote was surprisingly large in view of the fact that there was no contest for Republican delegates and I didn't campaign in the state."

Apparently—The much-discussed Wisconsin primary was a great success. Everybody seems to be pleased with it.

WITH that out of the way, let's get down to brass tacks:

I think most thoughtful people will agree that the big issue of this Presidential campaign that is now officially under way will be this:

Shall we drift farther over in the direction of what is rather incorrectly termed LIBERALISM, or shall we turn, at least slightly, back toward what some of us like to call intelligent modern CONSERVATISM?

AS TO that, the Wisconsin primary offers no conclusive answer.

Mr. Kennedy, the outstanding winner, is at least a little more conservative than his opponent, Mr. Humphrey. He comes of reasonably conservative ancestry, but his campaign in Wisconsin by no means stressed conservative leanings.

Besides, the Wisconsin primary results were clouded by the religious issue, which assumed increasing importance as the campaign progressed. The Kennedy victory, which was decisive, indicates that the time is past when a Catholic can no longer aspire to the presidency.

The religious issue overshadowed whatever liberalism vs. conservatism issue might have been present. The result seems to indicate a growth of TOLERANCE in American thinking.

AT ANY rate, the Wisconsin primary does put Senator Kennedy out as the front runner in the race for the Democratic nomination for president.

From now until the convention in Los Angeles, he is the man for all the other Democratic candidates to beat.

FROZEN FRIED EGGS
Lafayette, Ind.—(UPI)—Housewives soon may be able to buy frozen fried eggs at the grocery. Purdue University scientists said they have developed a process of freezing the fried eggs and wrapping them in aluminum foil. To heat them, all a housewife needs to do is drop them in the toaster.

Century Farm Program Planned

Salem—(UPI)—Plans for the third annual century farm program have been announced by the Oregon Historical Society and the State Department of Agriculture.

The program, to be climaxed during the State Fair, will honor families in the state whose continuous farming activity goes back to 1860 or earlier.

Two years ago, the project turned up 354 pioneer Oregon farm families with continuous farming records of 100 years or more. Most of the century farmers are located west of the Cascades.

Wall Street Chatter

New York—(UPI)—Walter K. Gutman of Shields & Co. observes this week that very often Americans do not live for money so much as they do for excitement.

This seems, he says, the real reason why stocks which are big with assets and cash but low on cash and assets but long on hopes leave jet streams through the skies.

Just making money doesn't seem to be the big thing, the reasons, it's got to be the best or its boring.

If this is the way we are it's quite an exciting way to be but it means that you are not going to find people buying or selling stock for the reasons you thought they would have, the Shields & Co. analyst maintained.

W. E. Hutton & Co. points out that the building shares seem to be down enough to invite moderate purchases particularly now that the credit situation is a little easier. It likes Johns-Manville which has been acting better than the market, National Gypsum, Fiberboard Paper and the cement shares.

Le Havre, France—(UPI)—Amory Houghton, U.S. ambassador to France, and Mrs. Houghton sailed from Le Havre Wednesday night aboard the liner United States for a vacation at home.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

LOUIS JOURDAN, male lead in "Gigi," is one Hollywood star who has learned how film society can be counted on to behave at formal parties. For his most recent dinner, reports Radie Harris, Jourdan had this printed notice at their places when they entered the dining room: "Please dance with the lady on your right, then the lady on your left, BEFORE you start talking business with the man opposite."

A Chicago critic had this to say about one of those new novels specializing in "frank language," "Not since Manhattan Island was sold for $24 has so much dirt been available for so little money."

John Straley has invented a charming, innocent little game called Calcutta roulette. You sit beside a snake charmer with six deadly cobras—and one of them is dead.
