The Medical Roundup

by Walter Alvarez

Emeritus Consultant in Medicine Mayo Clinic
Emeritus Professor of Medicine Mayo Clinic

THE WOMAN FRANTIC TO HAVE A CHILD

I get many sad letters from women who are frantic to have a child, and who want to know where they can go to be examined to see what is wrong. Few seem to realize that before spending a lot of money for an examination, they must get their husband to go to a doctor who will see if his sperm contains any spermatozoa – the microscopic tadpole-like elements, one of which must join with a microscopic ovum (egg) if a child is to start growing. Commonly, the doctor finds that either the man has no spermatozoa or has too few, or they are so sickly that they move around too slowly. Unfortunately, the discovery of such a situation so hurts the pride of the husband that often the wife finds it impossible to get him to submit to a test of his fertility.

DR. ALVAREZ

If he does get tested and is found to be normal, then the wife should be examined, preferably by a gynecologist who is prepared to make a Rubin test. In this, the doctor may blow a little gas into the womb. He can tell, then, from the pressure on his gauge, whether the gas has easily run out through at least one of the Fallopian tubes that leadoff on each side from the womb. The gas test may show that both tubes are plugged tight, and then the woman is sterile. When normally-functioning, one of these tubes picks up the tiny egg as it comes from the ovary, and passes it along toward the womb. If not fertilized in the tube by a spermatozoon (from the husband) the ovum will pass through the womb and be lost. If it should be fertilized, it is likely to be "implanted" in the wall of the womb, where in nine months it can grow to maturity.

Unforunately, many things can go wrong, even when the little egg has been fertilized. A while ago, as I visited with Dr. George Corner, one of world's greatest experts on the tiny ova (eggs) and what happens to them, he said that after a lifetime of reasearch, he still does not have answers to most of the questions that arise in his mind. Much more study is needed. Sometimes a woman will become pregnant when given a little thyroid substance each day. Curiously, even dissatisfaction with her husband appears to be responsible for keeping an occasional woman from getting pregnant.

People who do not know where to turn to get expert help can write to the Planned Parent Federation, 501 Madison ave., New York 22, N.Y.

Girl Scouts

Make Favors

Brownie Troop 13 made Easter tray favors for the Rogue Valley Memorial hospital. The girls delivered these to the hospital, April 12, and were taken on a tour of the hospital by Mrs. Virginia Cook, a member of the Hospital auxiliary.

Members of the Brownie Troop present were Susan Barss, Karin Billingsley, Mary Ann Bolton, Julie Casterline, Kathy Dickey, Cheryl Eddy, Mary Lynn Ellis, Jane Gordon, Joan Leonard, Marily McQueen, Shelley Mitchell, Cathy Smith, and Karla Thierolf.

The leader of the troop, Mrs. T. P. Barss and one of the committee members, Mrs. Ray Casterline accompanied the girls. Mrs. T. C. Bolton is the assistant leader. The girls enjoyed learning about this community service and sharing what they had made with others.
