WATERFRONT FIRE—An unidentified fire officer directs fighting of a four-alarm fire which struck during the evening rush hour at the Oakland Dock and Warehouse Company on the Oakland, Calif., waterfront. Flames that shot 300 feet into the air and smoke that went higher was visible from practically all the Bay area and rubbernecks made the already difficult traffic situation even worse. Reports stated that the fire was in an area being cleared for new construction and that no valuable property was in immediate danger. —(UPI Telephoto)

FORE!—The gates of the White House south lawn were open to children Monday for the annual Easter egg roll. However, Fred W. Johansen Jr., 4, of Fairland, Md., seems to be more interested in golf than in rolling eggs as he prepares to tee off on a big Easter egg. —(UPI Telephoto)

House Committee Clears Civil Rights For Final Passage

Washington—UPI—The House Rules Committee cleared the way today for final congressional passage Thursday of civil rights legislation aimed at guaranteeing the voting rights of Negroes. The committee by an 8-4 vote approved a resolution calling for House acceptance of changes the Senate made in the bill and before passing in April 8. House concurrence in the 16 Senate revisions would send the bill to the White House for President Eisenhower to sign into law. Take It Or Leave It The House, which approved its own version of the bill March 24, will receive the Senate measure Thursday on a take it or leave it basis as a result of today's committee action. The rules committee, which channels legislation to the floor, assured final House passage by permitting the House to act on the measure by a majority vote. Without rules committee clearance, the House would have required a two-thirds majority to send the civil rights bill to the White House. Some Southerners hailed the Senate modifications as a "victory for the South." Civil rights leaders in the House agreed that the Senate had softened the measure. But they did not plan to make a fight to send the bill to a Senate-House conference for fear that the entire measure might be lost in a controversy over the revisions. Plan for Referees The key provision of both Senate and House versions is a plan for federal referees to insure Negro voting rights. Federal courts would be authorized to name referees in areas where they found a "pattern of discrimination" against Negro voting. The referees would assist the courts in passing upon Negroes' applications for voting certificates. The Senate added a requirement that the courts fix the times and places for the referees' hearings on applications.

The chief difference between the two versions deals with obstruction of federal court orders. The House bill would make it a federal crime to interfere with school desegregation orders by force or threats. The Senate broadened this to cover all federal court orders.

Librarianship Course Offered At University

University of Oregon, Eugene — A department of librarianship in the school of education has been established at the University of Oregon and will be effective at the beginning of the Summer session, according to C. W. Hintz, University library director.

An additional full-time instructor in librarianship will be added next fall to meet with the expansion.

There are three primary purposes for the expansion. The extension of courses will enable undergraduates to meet state requirement as teacher librarians in smaller schools. It will also enable them to meet all requirements at the graduate level for any position as school librarian in any Oregon school. And it will prepare them for intermediate professional positions in a public library.

More Staff Members Winifred Ladley, assistant professor of library science at the University, is now the only full-time instructor in this field. Members of the library staff are involved in part-time instruction. With the expansion of the program into a department more staff members will be involved in teaching along with the additional full-time instructor. The University will now be able to offer a master degree with a major in library science.
