$10 Million Plane Crashes Into Lake

Hill Air Force Base, Utah—A supersonic B-58 Hustler jet bomber missing on a cross country flight, crashed into Great Salt Lake, one of its crew members said Saturday.

KF-Medford Plane Turns Around After Bomb Scare

A West Coast F-27 prop-jet which had just taken off from Klamath Falls on a flight to Medford at 7:45 Friday evening, was ordered back to the airport by Seattle officials who received a report that a bomb was on board the plane.

Kenneth G. Timpson, 29, Ft. Worth, Texas, flight engineer, parachuted to safety and said he saw the $10-million bomber hit the water. Fate of the other two men aboard the craft was not known.

Helicopters from Hill Air Force Base flew Timpson and other searchers to the area where he said the plane hit but were unable to see the surface of the water because of clouds and rain Saturday afternoon.

Timpson said the plane crashed in the north end of the lake. He parachuted into the water, paddled to shore in a life raft and spent Friday night on the beach. He flagged down a train Saturday.

The other two men were pilot Ray Edwin Ten Hoff, 38, and navigator Walter Simon, 32, both of Ft. Worth.

All three men were civilian employees of Convair, builder of the plane at Ft. Worth. They were flying the aircraft—which has a capability of the speed twice that of sound—on a check flight before turning it over to the Air Force.

Timpson was prohibited by company and Air Force regulations from discussing the nature of the emergency that caused Tenhoff to give the bailout order about 6 p.m. EST Friday.

The plane, passenger's luggage and mail were searched for nearly two hours, but no bomb was found and the airplane was permitted to resume its flight to Medford.

A West Coast airlines employee in Klamath Falls said an anonymous phone call received at the San Francisco airport caused several planes to be grounded for searches at various airports along the coast. Another plane was reported grounded at North Bend.

Little Information—Little was known about the phone call, officials said, except that a man called the West Coast office in San Francisco and said a bomb was on board one of their F-27 prop-jets.

The plane which was grounded in Klamath Falls had taken off from the San Francisco airport earlier in the evening.

The airline employee said the order to turn back went directly to the pilot from officials in Seattle. San Francisco authorities had notified the Seattle airport of the circumstances.

Robert Collins, 38, of 164 Black Oak dr., was one of several Medford passengers aboard the plane when the bomb was reported.

Collins told the Mail Tribune that the plane had been in the air for only a few minutes when the pilot announced they were turning back. He said none of the some 40 passengers aboard were frightened, as there was no reason to be.

The passengers did not know why the plane had turned back until after it had landed he said.

Passengers were not questioned in Klamath Falls, Collins said, but on arrival at the Medford airport they were met by an FBI agent who asked questions of a number of persons on the plane. Collins said the agent asked such questions as, "do you know of anyone who might try to kill you?"

V.P.-Elect Also Quits Position as Assembly Speaker

South Korean Leader Faces Worst Crisis

Seoul—(UPI)—Vice President-elect Lee Ki Poong, whose election touched off fraud charges that led to bloody rioting, has decided not to take office, his secretary said Sunday.

The secretary said that Lee also had decided to quit his post as national assembly speaker.

The development came as a young reformist group within President Syngman Rhee's own Liberal party announced it had enough votes to ram through the national assembly a constitutional amendment limiting Rhee's power and establishing a parliamentary form of government.

Han Kap Soo, secretary to Lee, focal point in the worst political crisis Rhee has faced, said that the 63-year-old Lee had at first intended to say he had decided to relinquish the vice presidency when he said Saturday that he was "considering" doing so.

He quoted Lee, assembly speaker, as saying that he did not make a definite announcement then "because of the confusion that would result if I resigned without measures to cope with the consequences."

Meanwhile, Pak Se Kyung, a spokesman for the reformist group in Rhee's party, said it had crossed party lines and gotten enough support from the opposition Democratic party to pass the constitutional amendment in the assembly.

It would mark a return to the pre-Korean conflict years when the Korean President was elected by the national assembly. In 1952, Rhee forced through the assembly an amendment to the constitution which gave the election to the people.

The amendment would continue Rhee chief of state with limited powers but still controlling the armed forces. The President also would get a six-year term instead of the present four years.

All Baloney—John M. Chang, the opposition Democratic leader who resigned Saturday as Vice President in protest over the crisis, said his party and the electorate would accept nothing less than Rhee's resignation and new elections.

He said that Rhee's attempts to set up a new parliamentary type of government were "all baloney."

Care of Indigent Patients Discussed

Representatives from a number of agencies in Jackson county met at the Medford city hall Friday afternoon to discuss some sort of equitable solution to the common problem of care for indigent medical patients.

No agreement was achieved, but the problems and views of many of the different agencies were discussed and several suggestions for their solution were made.

The Jackson county court, the city of Medford, the Medford Ambulance service, Sacred Heart and Rogue Valley hospitals, the Jackson County Medical association, the White City Veterans Domiciliary and the Oregon state welfare department, were all represented.

Greatest Problem—The greatest problem, as expressed at the meeting, appears to be the matter of who is supposed to pay for medical care of indigents. It was pointed out that both the Sacred Heart and Rogue Valley hospitals lose an average of $50,000 a year on indigent patients.

Most of those in attendance, including the county court, agreed that the cost of medical care for these persons is a county responsibility.

Commissioner Chester Wendt said the problem of indigents has been growing so rapidly that the county hasn't been keeping up with its obligation.

Wendt said, "If enough money had been appropriated two years ago, the problem would have been taken care of. The only difference between what we've done and what we should do, is dollars."

He further stated that the court is now aware that the money allocated for care of indigents should be increased, and it probably will be.

Medford Councilman Donald Hansen asked the group if there was any objection to an arrangement whereby the city of Medford would pay for the immediate transportation, emergency care and diagnosis of persons taken to hospitals for emergency care from within the city.

This would assure the hos-

Orchard Heating Not Wide-Spread

The anticipated wide-spread orchard heating predicted for Friday night did not occur, according to Bill Rogers, meteorologist with the Frost Warning Service.

Orchard heating was general in the area south of Medford but spotty in the north end, Rogers said. Minimum temperatures were about 27 to 28 degrees.

Growers lit up about 11 a.m. Some clouds moved in late in the morning, Rogers said. Most of them put out about 4:30 a.m. to 6 a.m. Growers in the south end of the valley did not heat as long as expected, the meteorologist said.

Pears are generally in the small green fruit stage when the fruit is larger than a pea. At this stage both temperature and duration must be considered. The larger the fruit, the longer the duration below 32 degrees it will stand, according to C. B. Coody, county horticultural agent.

Generally, temperatures for all varieties should be held above 30 degrees. However, they will stand 29 degrees if just at sunrise and it has not been below 32 degrees more than two hours. The temperature should be held at 31 degrees when heating.
