The Family Council

Editor's Note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a woman's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counselors.

Donald B.—I can't stand those Sunday get-togethers.

Rita B.—I love my family dearly.

Donald B.—My wife and I have been married eight years and have three children. Our one serious problem has been with us from the beginning of our marriage—in-law trouble.

Now this clan makes a

Intergroup Relations Forum Set for May 5

Portland - Facts which must be faced on discrimination practices in Oregon employment and housing will be the subject for a State Forum on Intergroup Relations Thursday, May 5, in Portland. The public forum at the Multnomah hotel will be the tenth annual conference on civil rights sponsored by the bureau of labor and civil rights advisory committee.

Mark A. Smith, Oregon civil rights administrator, states 500 persons from business, education, religion, labor and civil fields are expected to participate in the forum. No reservations are required except for the noon luncheon. Smith states a greater representation of the general public is desired at the meeting since it is the occasion for candid discussion of issues disturbing all citizens.

One of them, Air Force Capt. Donald K. Slayton, 36-year-old native of Sparta, Wis., expressed his attitude toward the project this way: "To me, space flight is a natural extension of aircraft flying and part of man's continuing assault against the frontiers of the universe."

ment of boredom and anger and shouldn't continue. If Rita agrees to a more sensible spacing of in-law visits, Don should agree to remain awake.

We're all for togetherness for those who enjoy it, but we don't think privacy-minded individuals should be crushed at the expense of others. Rita may feel some point of getting together once a week for Sunday dinner. That just about finishes off my one ray of relaxation. I have finally come to a decision—no more in-laws. I just won't go. I'll eat my Sunday dinner in peace at a lunch counter. Such nice people eat there on Sundays!

Rita B.—Don has absolutely no reason to feel as he does. My family has always treated him wonderfully. In fact, they've made a fuss over him and spoiled him.

As for his precious relaxation on Sundays, his complaints are ridiculous. He has always felt perfectly relaxed with my mother and sisters. After dinner he goes over to the couch and falls fast asleep and snores as if he were home.

I happen to love my family dearly and I hate to give up those Sunday afternoons. My sisters and I have a grand time and all the other husbands enjoy getting together for a game of cards. Only Don and my kid brother have to be different. If they don't fall asleep they sit around making wisecracks nobody else understands.

The Council: No matter how much Rita enjoys her family life, she has made a big mistake in not devoting two or three days a month exclusively to her immediate family—which now means her husband and children.

Husbands tire of the greatest families in the world if they are overly exposed. Certainly a hard-working man needs one day in which he doesn't have to face things or persons that irritate him.

We don't think Don's "couch scene" in his in-laws' home is a sign that he is relaxed or "at home" there at all. It is a crude and liberate state-
