

Populaires Set Concert Tour

Ashland - The Populaires, vocal ensemble from Southern Oregon college, will be on tour Monday through Wednesday next week, Maynard Hadley, director, has announced. All performances on the tour are open to the public, he said.

The group will entertain at the Ashland high school Monday at 8:45 a.m. and Crater High school Monday at 1:30 p.m.

Tuesday the Populaires will be at Eagle Point High school at 10:15 a.m., and the Prospect High school at 2 p.m.

Performances will be given Wednesday at 10:15 a.m. in the Klamath Falls Union High school and at 3 p.m. in the Lakeview High school.

The Populaires recently gave two spring concerts at the college and were enthusiastically received, Hadley said. They will sing religious, folk, and patriotic numbers plus songs from Broadway musicals at the tour performances.

Members of the Populaires are Donna MacFarland and Sharlene Finchum, Klamath Falls; Daryl Fairington and

Malpractice Suit Filed in Court Here

Patricia Cooper, of Medford, is seeking $19,460 from Dr. Cleatis D. Lemley, Medford Osteopathic physician and surgeon, in what is declared a malpractice suit, according to a complaint and motion filed in the Jackson county circuit court.

Mrs. Cooper charges that as a result of negligence she had to employ physicians and surgeons, to be hospitalized and to purchase medicines and drugs costing $460, and was unable to be employed for 30 days losing income amounting to $300. She is also seeking general damages of $18,700.

David Dellar, Ashland; Pat Leek, Larry Nolte, and William Gillinsky, Medford; Linda Crabill, Grants Pass; Ruth Clark, Portland; Louis Vance, Roseburg; Leona Hageman, Raymond, Wash.; and John Kichm, Glendale, Calif. An accompanist is Lorna Schulze and stage manager is Bob Ebert.

'RED ROBBIE' DIES - Melbourne, Australia - (UPI) - Lt. Gen. Sir Horace Robertson, 65, a veteran of both World Wars and Korea who was nicknamed "Red Robbie" because of his fiery red hair, died Thursday.

Candidates Have Ample Collection Of 'Brain Trusters'

Washington - No matter which of the leading Presidential candidates wins the election and enters the White House next January, he will bring with him the nucleus of a brain trust ready to tackle the problems of the new decade.

A Congressional Quarterly survey of the staffs of the leading candidates showed that each man either employed several "idea men" directly or maintained regular liaison with many intellectual leaders in high positions inside and outside government ranks.

In the last analysis, any President occupies a lonely position, since the final decisions of executive policy must be made by him personally. But a capable staff, inspiring him with new ideas and new approaches to complex problems, can be an invaluable aid to the President.

The CQ survey showed that Vice President Richard M. Nixon, the most likely Republican nominee, draws on a wide range of acquaintances and advisers in the business and academic worlds. Some of them, as Republicans, hold high posts in the present Administration.

Men Around Nixon - Nixon's advisers include Attorney General William P. Rogers; Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell; Welfare Secretary Arthur S. Flemming; Dr. Arthur Burns, past chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers; Dr. William Y. Elliott of Harvard, a foreign affairs specialist who accompanied Nixon on his 1959 trip to the Soviet Union; and Dr. W. Allen Wallis of the University of Chicago, who heads the Cabinet Committee on Price Stability of which Nixon is chairman.

Among the Democratic contenders, Sen. John F. Kennedy (Mass.) appears to have the largest number of brain trusters on tap. Their activities are coordinated by Kennedy's chief policy adviser, Theodore Sorenson, a 31-year-old Nebraska. Centered in Cambridge, Mass., the Kennedy advisers include Harvard Law School professors Archibald Cox, Paul A. Freund and Mark DeWolfe Howe; international economics experts Walter W. Rostow and Max Milliken of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology; Harvard's J. Kenneth Galbraith, author of "The Affluent Society"; and Robert Wood of M.I.T., an expert on urban growth problems.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (Minn.) draws on the advice and counsel of a large group of friends, many from the academic world whom he first met at the University of Minnesota. They include political scientist Max M. Kampelman, a former professor at Minnesota; Philip M. Stern, editor of the Northern Virginia Sun and former Democratic National Committee official, who assists Humphrey in speech preparation; Herbert L. Waters, Humphrey's administrative assistant and principal adviser-speech writer on farm problems; and Betty Goetz, chief of staff of the Foreign Relations Disarmament Subcommittee of which Humphrey is chairman.

Symington Informal - Among the avowed candidates Sen. Stuart Symington (Missouri) appears to have the least formalized brain trust. Symington depends for much advice and assistance concerning the key national defense issue on his legislative assistant, Edward C. Welsh, an economist by profession. A key Symington aid on farm issues is Edward Jaenke, former teacher of farm economics at the University of Missouri.

Among the unavowed but potential 1960 candidates - Democrats Adlai Stevenson and Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (Texas) and Republican Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York - no large brain trusts are presently assembled.

Stevenson, however recruited large staffs to aid him in his 1952 and 1956 campaigns for the Presidency, and would be able to reassemble such a group "within a few hours by telephone" if he were drafted by the Democratic Convention in Los Angeles in July. Many of the potential Stevenson brain trusters are presently aiding either Kennedy or Humphrey, but would switch back to Stevenson if he received the nomination.

Can Draw on Talents - Johnson has never found it necessary to assemble a large brain trust, partly because, as Democratic Majority Leader in the Senate, he can draw on the talents of the advisers to various Congressional committees. Many of the old-time Senate experts in various fields, including members of the Democratic Policy Committee staff which Johnson heads, could be expected to join Johnson in advisory roles if he were nominated.

Rockefeller assembled a large group of experts and advisers last year when he was considering a run for the GOP nomination in 1960. Most of these experts were released after Rockefeller pulled out of the race, but would be ready to join him again. A prominent intellectual now on the Rockefeller payroll is Emmet J. Hughes, author of the recent book "America the Vincible" and writer of the famous "I shall go to Korea" speech for General Eisenhower during the 1952 campaign. Rockefeller has also depended on Harvard professor Henry Kissinger for advice on foreign policy.

Robin Hood Types Ignore Regulations

Sacramento, Calif. - One of the best guarded defense plants in the United States is the Aerojet-General Corporation near here. But that didn't stop a pair of Robin Hood types.

Sheriff's deputies found James G. Goforth, 18, and Richard A. Tyrell, 23, inside Aerojet property on the roof of a warehouse.

What were they doing there? Shooting pigeons.

With what? Bows and arrows. Aerojet guards maintained a discreet silence and the archers were released.

AID FOR 'VICTIMS' - New York - (UPI) - Student "victims of reprisals" for anti-segregation demonstrations will be offered financial aid from the Board of Home Missions of the Congregational Christian Churches. The Rev. Dr. Truman B. Douglas, executive vice president of the board, said Thursday the help was being offered "as evidence of the sincerity of our convictions."

Jackson, Miss. - (UPI) - The Mississippi Senate, before voting on making "Dixie" the state song, rose and sang the tune. "If that's how it sounds, I'll have to vote against it," Sen. William Caraway said.

'DROUTH RELIEF' - Big Spring, Tex. - (UPI) - Sign in the window of a small liquor store here: "Drouth relief."

Quotes From the News

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Washington - Earl W. Kintner, chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, warning about phony advertising promises such as "guaranteed for life":

"The advertiser should make it plain just whose life he has in mind - the purchaser's, the manufacturer's, the retailer's or the federal trade commission's."

Auckland, New Zealand - Robert Edward Bridge, 16, after killing his six-year-old sister while she was saying her prayers:

"I waited for her to say 'amen' and then fired."

Washington - Jacob Kossman, attorney for Teamsters Union President James R. Hoffa, implying that reform might not be the only goal behind the court-appointed board of monitors' bid to take control of the union:

"A fabulous fortune awaits them. Do they want it for love of the working man or do they want it for power and money?"

New York - Rocket scientist Wernher von Braun, predicting that some day an American will meet another intelligent being in space:

"We can hope the other being's greeting will be 'hello earthman' and not 'welcome tovarisch (comrade).'"

"SHEER MAGIC!" SEE

HOW YOUR FORD DEALER FITS BEAUTIFUL '60 GALAXIES INTO LITTLE-BITTY BUDGETS!

Remarkable? We've been working magic like this for years! Here's our secret: we start with generous trade-in allowances and easy terms... and go on from there!

Every reason why you're not driving a new Ford Galaxie has disappeared into thin air! Let's start with cost. You pay a low, low Ford price for luxury you couldn't equal for hundreds more in the so-called medium-price range! (Proof? See chart at right!) And the Galaxie gives you top-of-the-line luxury! Features like wall-to-wall carpeting, backup lights, electric clock and many more... all at no extra cost! Can you afford a Galaxie? You sure can! Because not only is the price low (and we mean low!), but we include special family budget plan terms and low financing rates that can fit a beautiful new Galaxie into your pocketbook, right now! Let us show you how we work this magic!

HERE'S WHY THE GALAXIE FITS LITTLE-BITTY BUDGETS!

GALAXIE TOWN SEDAN PRICE ADVANTAGE OVER COMPARABLE FOUR-DOOR SEDANS	GALAXIE TOWN VICTORIA PRICE ADVANTAGE OVER COMPARABLE FOUR-DOOR HARDTOPS
(Base vehicle price with V-8 engine, radio, heater and dual-range automatic transmission)	(Base vehicle price with V-8 engine, radio, heater and dual-range transmission)
BUICK is$361.94 MORE	BUICK is$276.48 MORE
OLDS is$347.17 MORE	OLDS is$296.73 MORE
DODGE is$245.25 MORE	DODGE is$290.90 MORE
This includes equipment that's standard on Galaxie but extra cost on others. Galaxie's price advantage is even greater with a six-cylinder engine and Fordomatic transmission.	These differences in Galaxie's favor are on the competition's cheapest four-door hardtop models.
