

Backyard Pools Create Demand For Landscaping

New York — (UPI) — The fantastic growth of backyard swimming pools has created a heavy demand for landscaping services.

Too many homeowners pay little attention to pool surroundings. Shrubs, trees and ornamental bushes are scattered about with little thought given to plant habits.

To help homeowners set up the ideal surroundings for their new private playgrounds, United States Pool Corp., Newark, N.J., has devised a few basic rules of landscaping that can be easily and effectively utilized.

Hearty Evergreens
According to the company's landscaping engineer, the more attractive and hearty evergreens suitable for screening and high hedging around the pool are hemlock, canadensis, taxus cuspea capitata, ilex crenata microphylla, ilex cornuta and arbovitae.

Be extra careful when selecting evergreens to be used near a pool, making sure the dropped foliage is not prickly or sharp, such as holly, juniper and stricte.

Seasonal flowering shrubs may be used for a low cost, effective summer screen, but should be planted well back from the pool because the dropping of leaves and flowers will only add to the chore of keeping the pool clean.

This also includes flowering trees. These trees, also planted well back from the pool area, are most effective for screening from second story windows or higher level property surrounding the pool.

Flowers should never be planted close to the pool because they attract bees and other insects that can be a nuisance, and spent flowers will fall into the pool on windy days. However, flowers have an important usage as background setting.

Ugly banks may be turned into beautiful rock or ledge gardens with a generous sprinkling of perennials for permanent settings, but according to United States Pool, a liberal sprinkling of annuals should be included for color.

Most swimming pool installations require fencing, and it would be wise to brighten these screens with vine-type plants.

Military System Said Number One

San Bernardino, Calif. — (UPI) — The undersecretary of the Air Force said Saturday night the U. S. has the No. 1 military system in the world while lashing out at second-guessers who are hypercritical about the missile program.

"We need to worry less about whether the fate of the free world rests on one or two operational missiles," said Dr. Joseph V. Charyk, "and worry more about the long-range struggle for survival in which we are engaged on a technical, economic, educational and military front."

A testimonial dinner honoring retired Maj. Gen. Lucius V. Beau, Charyk said no one missile or weapons system could be the "total answer" to U. S. defense requirements.

Denver — (UPI) — Delegates to the Methodist General Conference refused Saturday to take a slap at Sen. John F. Kennedy's presidential candidacy.
