

Federal Jury in Miami Indicts Fliers To Cuba

Miami—Seven weeks ago four prominent Cubans waited tensely besides a highway 85 miles from Havana for a plane that would fly to the United States mainland. One of the Cubans was Lazaro Damazo Montezinos, a former lieutenant colonel who had been in charge of the prison of Castillo de Principe in Havana under the regime of ousted Cuban President Fulgencio Batista. The others were his daughter and her husband, Maj. Santiago Rodriguez, and another Cuban who wanted to flee his native country.

Soldiers Open Fire
A small, fast plane reared in from the east and settled on the highway. The four would-be refugees waited for it, and as they did so, hidden soldiers opened fire with machine guns.

The soldiers arrested the four Cubans and the two United States citizens who had brought the plane in from Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

The government of Cuban Premier Fidel Castro seized on the incident to launch a propaganda attack against the United States. Cuban officials said it proved a U.S. conspiracy of aggression.

Wednesday, the U.S. government answered the Cuban charge. A federal grand jury here indicted the two U.S. fliers and a Cuban citizen and charged the whole affair was cooked up in Havana to supply the Castro government with anti-U.S. propaganda.

Flier Indicted
The grand jury indicted one of the fliers, William J. Sbergalis, 35, of North Hollywood, Fla., as "an agent of a foreign principal, namely the government of Cuba."

It indicted the other flier, Howard L. (Swede) Rundquist, 35, of Miami, apparently was a dupe in the case. The same charge placed against Sbergalis was placed against Hector Garcia Soto, 35, a Cuban citizen and purchasing agent for the Cuban air force since November of 1959. According to the government, he and Sbergalis arranged the flight.

Arrested by FBI
Garcia was arrested Wednesday by FBI agents as he stepped off a plane arriving from Cuba. Sbergalis and Rundquist still are in jail in Cuba, where they have been in custody since the ill-starred flight.

The U.S. Justice Department in Washington said it plans no immediate steps to have Sbergalis and Rundquist returned to this country for trial even though Sbergalis was reported to have told the U.S. Embassy in Cuba that Cuban officials hired him to rig the flight.

Dunes Seashore Petition Planned

Salem—The Western Lane Taxpayers' Association will present a petition to the governor's committee on natural resources here next Monday asking that several points be included in a revised bill to create an Oregon dunes national seashore park.

The Association has been the main opponent to the proposal, now pending in Congress. Dan Allen, committee chairman, said the association is requesting that these items be included in the legislation: 1. Immediate allocation of money to buy all private lands within the proposed park with purchases to be made within a definite time. 2. A life tenancy provision for affected local residents.

3. Assurance that persons living within the park's boundaries will be governed only by laws of the federal and state governments and not by regulations of the national park service.

The proposed dunes park covers about 23 miles of the Oregon coast from the Florence area to Tenmile creek south of Reedsport.

Portland Squadron Leader Reassigned
Portland—Maj. Ben L. Fithian, commander of the 450th Fighter Interceptor Squadron here, has been reassigned to Alaska.

Fithian will leave this week for his new assignment as operations officer of the 317th Fighter Interceptor Squadron in Alaska. Fithian has served in his present capacity since last June.

Wall Street Chatter

New York—No doubt about it—advance knowledge of an impending stock split is a valuable information, according to a recent study appearing in Barron's Weekly. In 88 of the 94 examples under study, the announcement of a split was preceded by a significant increase in the market value of the stock. On the average, this rise amounted to about 15 per cent and normally the stocks outperformed the market by about 10 per cent.

The study found that unless the split surprises the market seldom, a split-off usually occurs after the formal announcement has been made. Two months after their splits were revealed, nearly half of all the New York Stock Exchange stock splits in 1959 were selling at lower prices. Moreover, 51 of the 94 examples failed to perform as well as the market.

The moral: the best way to profit from stock splits is to buy stock split candidates rather than stocks which have just announced their impending split status.

Profits of the major fire-casualty organizations in 1959 continued their recovery from the extremely adverse 1957 year and this improvement promises to carry over into 1960 at least, a survey of the industry by E. F. Hutton & Co. says.

Mother's Day Is Observed by Club

Mother's day was observed at the Wednesday noon luncheon of Medford Kiwanis Club at Rogue Valley Country Club.

A number of mothers of Kiwanians were special guests. "Music and Musings" was the theme of the program. Four selections were played by a string ensemble of Medford High school under the direction of John Drysdale. Poems appropriate for Mother's day were read by Darl Gieed, Kiwanis member.

Coos Bay Man Dies From Auto Injuries

Coos Bay—A 74-year-old Coos Bay man, hit by a car Tuesday night on state highway 241 near here, died in Coos Bay's McAuley hospital Wednesday.

Dead is Arthur Kust Rinne. Hospital officials said he suffered skull injuries from the accident.

Rinne was hit about a quarter of a mile south of this southern Oregon city. The driver of the car said he did not see Rinne because the elderly man was wearing dark clothing.

Nudist Camp Origin Explained in Remark

San Bernardino, Calif.—The monthly Newsletter of the Okadale Ranch Nudist Camp issued today quoted Charles Dweilley's remark on the origin of nudist camps.

"Nudist camps were started by a group of sunbathers who, in their search for a perfect tan, were determined to leave no stern untoned."
