Royal Wedding

Margaret, Bridegroom Appear After Demand by Huge Throng

A wedding is supposed to belong to the bride. And this one did—from the moment she left Clarence House in the celebrated glass coach to the time when a cheering crowd of half a million roared its demand that the newlyweds appear on the balcony of Buckingham Palace.

"We want Margaret and Tony!" the thousands chanted. They appeared on the balcony then, Margaret, a tiny figure, waved, her right hand held high. Armstrong-Jones stood smilingly at her side, obviously amazed at this outburst of affection for the princess who could have had kings or princes but instead chose a boy from the middle-class neighborhood of Pimlico Road.

Double Triumph

It was a double triumph for Margaret whose wedding was spurned by most of the top echelon of European royalty and whose happiness during the weeks of the engagement was clouded by gossip and innuendo.

It was a day which combined the deeply religious wedding ceremony with the pomp and pageantry of royalty. The setting was that of Britain's coronations.

En route, the Duke of Edinburgh rode with Margaret through the cheering thousands lining the mall, under an arch of thousands of flowers.

A captain's escort of 50 troopers of the household cavalry in burnished breast-plates and plumed helmets and mounted on coal black chargers trotted before and behind the glass coach.

And then there was the wedding ceremony itself.

Reads Wedding Vows

The princess stood at the abbey entrance a moment, then linked her left arm with that of the Duke of Edinburgh for the walk to the great altar where her bridegroom waited.

The dean of Westminster spoke the ancient words from the Anglican marriage ceremony. "Dearly beloved we are gathered in the sight of God . . ."

Then the archbishop, leaning slightly forward and looking squarely into the eyes of each, read the marriage vows. "Anthony Charles Robert, wilt thou have this woman to be thy wedded wife . . ."

"Margaret Rose, wilt thou have this man to be thy wedded husband to live together in the holy state of matrimony? Wilt thou obey him, and serve him, love, honor and keep him in sickness and in health; and forsaking all others, keep thee only unto him to long as ye both shall live?"

And their low-voiced replies: "I will."

Royal Wedding Breakfast

At the end, Armstrong-Jones pledged: "With this ring I thee wed, with my body I thee worship, and with all my worldly goods I thee endow."

Then there was the signing of the register and the ride back through the cheering throngs in the glass coach to Buckingham Palace and a wedding breakfast given by the Queen.

Princess Margaret, helped by her husband, carefully cut the 150-pound, three-tiered cake.

An orchestra played for the 120 guests and at the end six pipers entered the room to play their Scottish airs.

Next on the schedule was a honeymoon trip to the Caribbean aboard the royal yacht Britannia. The itinerary was secret but there was the possibility the newlyweds might enter American waters.

Prime ministers of the British Commonwealth attended the wedding, as did a former prime minister of Great Britain—Sir Winston Churchill.

Seven in Auto Killed in Crash

Kerman, Calif. —(UPI)—Seven persons in one car were killed early today when the vehicle collided with another at a rural intersection and burst into flames.

Coroner's Deputy George Schoonmaker said it appeared the death car driver ran a stop sign at a high rate of speed. Both automobiles were badly mangled in the crash.

The dead were all passengers in one vehicle. The driver of the other car, Keith Thomas, 18, Firebaugh, Calif., was listed in serious condition.

Tentatively identified as the fatal car driver was Trinio Gonzales. He was killed when thrown out of the car along with two other men in the front seat. The four persons in the back seat were burned beyond recognition.

Although a sizable number of homebuyers buy their home for cash and many others pay only 10 per cent or less down, the average home sold today carries a mortgage of $8,000.

City Council

Doernbach Questions Methods Used By City in Annexation Proposal

The property which Doernbach referred to is that situated north of McAndrews rd., east of Riverside ave., east and south of Crater Lake highway and west of Biddle rd.

In his remarks to the council he said: "The usual method of annexing territory adjacent to city limits is to gain the consent of the property owners or to hold an election in the area concerned. This allows the parties concerned their constitutional right to be consulted and heard on a matter which affects their liberty and property.

"There is another method of annexation which denies the property owners and the residents their rights and is seldom resorted to unless a public interest situation is involved.

"This method is used where property owners adjacent to city limits have annexed piecemeal, until there remains a small unannexed area surrounded by annexations and the owners of such land do not wish to be annexed.

Denies Owner Say-So

"This method allows annexation of that area and denies the owner or residents a say-so in the matter."

Doernbach then proceeded to state his reasons for not believing this latter method is lawful or proper in these circumstances.

He said, "This area is surrounded by city limits because of the recent successful annexation of the Berrydale area, which was accomplished only because of the elimination of this area (the island) from the proposed annexation boundaries. This was done by gerrymandering the boundaries with the aid of a voters list to eliminate 51 negative votes, after a prior annexation election had been defeated."

He said there are records on file in the recorder's office which will show this to be true.

No One Approached

He further opposes this method, he said, because "it appears that no one in the area was approached on this annexation question which will appear on the city ballot, and of course they will be unable to express themselves in any way whatsoever unless they take the matter into a court of law." If taken into such a court of law, he said, the annexation would be declared null and void.

At the conclusion of his remarks he said, "I do not believe that the citizens of Medford should be asked to condone, by way of the ballot, acts by former city planners and the present city manager which are of a questionable nature especially when such acts deprive a number of property owners and legal voters of their constitutional rights to be notified and heard on a matter which affects their liberty."

Attend Meeting

Councilman Jimmy Dunlevy asked Doernbach, "If the people living there are so opposed, then why aren't they attending the meeting?"

Doernbach said he was not representing them, but was just "representing one citizen of Medford" (himself).

Dunlevy then said, "Mr. Doernbach led the opposition for the Berrydale annexation and is now digging up a dead ghost."

The council took no action on this matter, but Mayor Snider noted that it would probably be impossible to take the proposed annexation off the ballot, now that it is already on.

Mountain Sheep License Granted To Pacific Power

Salem —(UPI)—The three-member Oregon Hydroelectric Commission Thursday afternoon voted unanimously to grant Pacific Northwest Power Company a license to build the huge high Mountain Sheep dam on the Snake river on the Idaho-Oregon border.

This cleared the way for the company to build the dam as far as the state is concerned.

At the same time the commission deferred action on a license for Portland General Electric Company to build Round Butte dam on the Deschutes river in central Oregon.

To inspect Sites The commissioners left late Thursday for Madras. They were to spend today visiting proposed relocation sites of Cove state park, which would be inundated by Round Butte.

Testimony will begin in Washington, D.C., May 16 before the federal power commission on High Mountain Sheep and Nez Perce dam, the latter proposed for the Snake river by the Washington Public power supply system.

At 670 feet, Mountain Sheep would be the highest arch dam in the United States. Total cost is estimated at $255,600,000. It would generate a maximum of 1,500,000 kilowatts and would take six years to build.

Fish Men Oppose Dams

Along with public power advocates, the Oregon Fish and Game Commissions, sportsmen and others have fought the Mountain Sheep project.

PNP is a combine of four companies—Portland General Electric, Pacific Power and Light, Washington Water Power and Montana Power.

PNP estimates that the first of five power units at Mountain Sheep could be in operation by October of 1968 if construction schedules are not further delayed.

Fish passage facilities are to be provided by the company.

To Access Fee

The Commission voted to assess a license fee against PNP of five cents per theoretical horsepower to be developed from Oregon's half of the river.

The half assessment was agreed upon because the dam site is on the middle of the Oregon-Idaho border. It was the first time the state has been confronted with such a problem.

The commissioners said they wanted to review the new sites for Cove state park before making a decision of Round Butte dam. PGE has offered to pay the cost of relocating the park.

Fish interests and sportsmen also oppose the Round Butte project.

As recently as twenty-five years ago, many astronomers thought the outer galaxies were small objects in the Milky Way. New telescopes showed these galaxies are of enormous size in space at incredible distances.
