Doctor Takes Long Look at Weight Reduction Method

St. Louis (Science Service) – If a fat person cannot stick to his diet, the only sure-fire way to lose weight is to go to a hospital where he cannot cheat on calorie intake.

In re-examining 161 obesity studies reported in the last 30 years, Dr. Alvan R. Feinstein of New York University College of Medicine found that only those patients who were in a "completely restricted environment" (usually a hospital) always lost weight proportional to the prescribed calorie cut.

No other method, whether a special diet, pills, injections, group therapy or individual psychiatric help, has worked so consistently, Dr. Feinstein said.

Idea Almost Obsolete

The old idea that obesity is due to an endocrine disorder and that injections of hormones would make reducing easier has almost become obsolete. There is now ample evidence that almost no obese patients have any "discernible primary hormonal imbalances" and that any loss of weight associated with hormone treatment is due to the simultaneous use of restricted diet.

Misconceptions such as the endocrine disorder theory get started and keep going when research workers give incomplete reports and use false logic to arrive at conclusions, Dr. Feinstein reported here in the Journal of Chronic Diseases.

A number of the reports studied claimed success during the first two months of dieting, when weight reduction is greatest. They then failed to indicate what happened later – whether the patients reached the desired weight or whether the particular method in question could be used effectively for long-term dieting.

Most overweight persons need some sort of watchdog to keep an eye on them. In many cases the doctor considers such people a bore. He admonishes them for being fat, gives them a calorie chart, and tells them to eat only so many calories per day.

This attitude has opened the door for non-medical solutions to overweight. Although commercial routines and prescriptions are usually based on reasonably sound knowledge, they are not geared to individual needs. Dr. Feinstein said the obese person is chronically ill and should be treated accordingly.

Wall Street Chatter

New York – (AP) – With his customary candor, R. E. Buschsbaum of W. E. Hutton & Co. reports "the market" has become exceedingly difficult to write about nowadays and for the most part has made dull and unprofitable reading.

In a period such as this, he believes, it is more profitable and more interesting to discuss individual stocks than to try to outguess what the averages are going to do.

One can't help wondering how concerned the brokerage houses are over the large drop in trading volume on the major stock exchanges so far this year. The New York Stock Exchange currently is running about 18 per cent behind last year while the American Exchange has sagged a noteworthy 47 per cent.

Excellent values at the present time, according to Goodbody & Co., are Allied Chemical, American Cynamid and Olin Mathieson, all of which should experience a worthwhile growth in earnings in 1960 and in later years.

TIME OFFERED TO GOP

New York–(AP)–The Mutual Broadcasting system, which carried the Charleston, W. Va., debate between Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey (Minn.) and John F. Kennedy (Mass.), Thursday offered the Republican National committee equal time for a GOP spokesman. However, the National Broadcasting Co., which carried part of the debate, said it felt obligated only to grant equal time to other candidates for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Hamburg, Germany–(UPI)–A downtown store had in its window today a huge, red upholstered bed with a sign reading, "This is a replica of the original used by Antony-Armstrong Jones in Buckingham Palace." Price: 3,400 marks ($875).

NEW STATE ENVISIONED

London–(UPI)–British Somaliland will become independent July 1, the same day that the neighboring Italian trust territory of Somolia is granted independence, Colonial Secretary Iain MacLeod announced Thursday. The two territories plan to form a new state, the Somali Republic.
