A Carnation for Mother!

By Jane Pennington

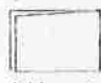

In minutes you can make a very real-looking carnation, using only one pipe cleaner (green, if you can find it) and two sheets of facial tissue. They can be any color, but the most realistic effect is obtained with one pink and one white sheet. Flatten out the two tissues; place one on top of the other and fold them in half together. Fold again to make a square. Now pleat the paper in $\frac{3}{4}$ -inch folds to look like a fan. Wind the pipe cleaner around the middle of the "fan" and twist it tightly. Spread out the pleats and tear $\frac{1}{4}$ inch off the edge, all the way around. Then carefully separate the layers of tissue, pulling each toward the center, so they stand up like thin petals. The twisted pipe cleaner is, of course, the stem. When you're finished, you have a lifelike carnation.

Bell Tag

By Nat Bradford

All players, except IT, are blindfolded. IT wears a bell around his neck that rings as he moves. The blindfolded players try to catch IT. The one who does wins five points and is IT for the next game. The winner of the game is the one who gets the most points. This game is best when played in a clear, open space.
