

Leisure at Top of List of Fastest Growing Positions

New York - (AP) - A leading brokerage house today placed leisure at the top of the list of America's fastest growing "occupations."

And it's big business too with an impact on the stock market.

The Stock exchange firm of Francis I. Du Pont and Co. estimates leisure spending this year will reach $43 billion, up 2 billion dollars from 1959.

It wouldn't be surprised if the total crossed the $50 billion mark by the end of the decade.

Americans this year will enjoy 70 million weeks of vacation. Also they have the advantage of short work weeks and high pay to build their vast leisure expenditures.

Leisure Companies Prosper
Companies catering to leisure pursuits are making money and their stocks have outshone most others in recent markets, it is noted.

The Du Pont firm mentions the trend toward more active participation in active sports and other pastimes. Hence a decline in such lines as movies, ball games, and prize fights.

More time is being spent, however, on the theater, operas, and concerts - $313 million in 1959 against $188 million in 1947.

Much time is devoted to television viewing - also hi-fi and stereo.

The firm finds a shift in the national attitude toward borrowing for leisure pursuits.

'Credit Spending Patriotic'
"Credit spending," it says, "has become not only moral but patriotic, and people have little reluctance to borrow to finance a back-yard swimming pool, a vacation, or a boat."

"In fact, many banks which now are actively promoting their boat loan programs, find borrowers often more willing to keep up payments on their boats than on their cars."

Here are the Du Pont firm's estimates on total leisure time spending: total, $10.4 billion; do-it-yourself items and gardening, $12 billion; TV, radio, phonographs and records, $3.8 billion; reading material, $3.3 billion; fishing, $2.6 billion; boating, $2.5 billion; spectator amusements, $2.2 billion; swimming pools, bathing suits, aquatic games and equipment, $1.3 billion; pleasure dining, $1.1 billion; hunting, $1 billion; bowling, $1 billion; golf, $800 million and photography, $700 million.

Construction on Water Mains in Grandview Starts

Construction started today on two water mains which are being installed in the northeast section of Medford to boost water supply capacity to the Kenwood-Grandview area.

One of these is a 14-inch feeder main which is being installed by city water department crews. It is being laid along Crater Lake ave., from McAndrews rd. to Roberts rd. It is the first leg of a feeder main which will eventually extend to Delta Waters rd.

The other main will be eight inches in diameter, and will also serve as a feeder main as well as providing service to the area along McAndrews rd. It is being installed by M. C. Lininger and Sons company and will be laid along McAndrews rd., from Springbrook rd. to Waverly ave.

Construction on the eight inch main will take about two weeks to complete. Eventually it will extend through the Blossom Hill Terrace subdivision on Grand ave., and connect with the 14-inch main being installed by city crews.

Added Capacity
City Water Superintendent Robert Lee pointed out that the new mains will bring added water capacity to the Kenwood-Grandview area, which is presently being served by four and six-inch mains.

The present small mains are adequate for serving homes in the area at present, Lee said, but as the area continues to develop and expand the additional capacity will be needed.

The 14-inch main on Crater Lake ave. will serve the area adjacent to Crater Lake ave., in addition to its purpose as a feeder main. It will take about a month to complete.

Lee said installation of the main along Crater Lake ave. will be done so that it won't block traffic. He said it will be installed off the paved portion of the street and will not necessitate any deep cuts being made.

It is one and a half miles between the Capitol and the White House in Washington.

The Family Council

Editor's Note: The Family Council consists of a Judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counselors.

Jim E. - She wants me to borrow from my parents to go back to school.

Sandra E. - He's full of false pride.

Jim E. - My wife and I were married five years ago and we are expecting our third baby.

We were both students when we married and we planned to go on studying for a number of years. I was aiming for a professional career and Sandra said she would work until I could establish myself. Anyway, our plans went haywire when the first baby was born and I left school to take a job.

I've been doing pretty well with an aggressive company and I feel I have a future. I like the work pretty much too. But Sandra is terribly disappointed that I don't have professional status. She wants me to borrow from my parents and go back to school. I just can't do that.

Sandra E. - Jim's parents are heartbroken that he gave up his professional studies and I know it would mean a lot to them for him to resume this work. They hold me responsible for spoiling his plans and I want them to know I'm willing to live on practically nothing just to have Jim back in school.

It really wouldn't mean much to Jim's parents to help us. They are very well off and they would have helped us from the start if Jim hadn't gotten so nasty with them about our marriage. They wanted us to wait, but we eloped and Jim got into a fight with them over the way they treated me.

But I think they're now ready to forgive and forget. Jim is just full of false pride.

The Council: It sounds to us as though Sandra has been doing a bit too much mulling and has come up with a plan that concretizes a daydream of hers, but not of her husband's.

Jim seems to be well adjusted to his work. He enjoys it and feels he has a future. He doesn't seem to regret having forsaken a professional career for family life.
