

House Democrats Eye Early Action On School Bill

Washington - (UP) - House Democratic leaders paved the way today for early action on the stalled $975 million school construction bill.

Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Tex.) got a commitment from chairman Howard W. Smith (D-Va.) of the House rules committee to hold hearings on the measure next week.

The bill was approved by the House education committee in March, but has been delayed by the conservative-dominated rules committee for six weeks.

The House bill would provide for federal grants of $325 million annually to states to help construct needed classrooms.

The Senate passed a two-year, $1,800,000,000 education measure in February which would cover construction and also for teachers' salaries.

Other congressional news:

Drugs: Dr. Walter Modell of Cornell University Medical College told Senate drug investigators in prepared testimony that different trade names given to the same medicines cause confusion among doctors and druggists.

Tax: The Senate was scheduled to take final action on a controversial tax reimbursement bill. Senate GOP Leader Everett Dirksen (Ill.) said he would try to kill the measure, which would authorize federal payments to local governments to make up for local taxes lost on property acquired by the federal government.

Medical: The Health Insurance Association of America urged Congress to study fully all medical care plans for the aged to prevent hasty passage of a "costly and grossly inefficient" bill. The group representing health insurance companies told the House ways and means and Senate finance committees that it thought "there is no need for a new federal program, other than possible increase in existing" state and federal benefits.

Kennedy Right To Nomination Told

Portland, Ore. - (UP) - Mrs. Maurine Neuberger has quoted Adlai Stevenson as saying that if Sen. John Kennedy (D-Mass.) won the Oregon primary he had a right to the Democratic presidential nomination.

Mrs. Neuberger arrived here Wednesday by train from Washington, D. C., to campaign for the Democratic nomination for U. S. Senator from Oregon, a vacancy created by the death of her late husband, Sen. Richard L. Neuberger.

She said she would stick to her own campaign and would not take part in the battle between Kennedy and Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.) for votes in the state's May 20 Democratic presidential primary.

Mrs. Neuberger said among reasons for this is that Stevenson, her favorite for the presidency, is not on the ballot. She quoted Stevenson as saying "if Kennedy wins in Oregon he has a right to the nomination."

Also on the Oregon ballot will be Sens. Hubert Humphrey (Minn.), Lyndon Johnson (Tex.) and Stuart Symington (Mo.). Humphrey, after his West Virginia defeat by Kennedy, has bowed out as a presidential candidate.
