Snowstorm Halts Rescue Attempts On Mt. McKinley

Talkeetna, Alaska—(UPI)—A snowstorm has descended on Mount McKinley and completely shut down attempts at getting two injured mountain climbers off the nation's highest peak.

Reports coming from the mountainside indicate the area is completely weathered in and that no evacuation from any level can be made.

Some 10 mountain climbers, who came up for rescue work, were flown back down to Anchorage from the 10,000 foot level shortly before the weather took over.

There is still no word from the climbers which include the two injured men, above the 10,000 foot level, other than they are proceeding slowly down to the 16,000 foot level.

The Air Force has dropped messages for all climbers including 49 rescue workers, to dig in for the night.

There are an estimated 300 rescue workers in the Talkeetna area, at the summit camp on the mountain itself.

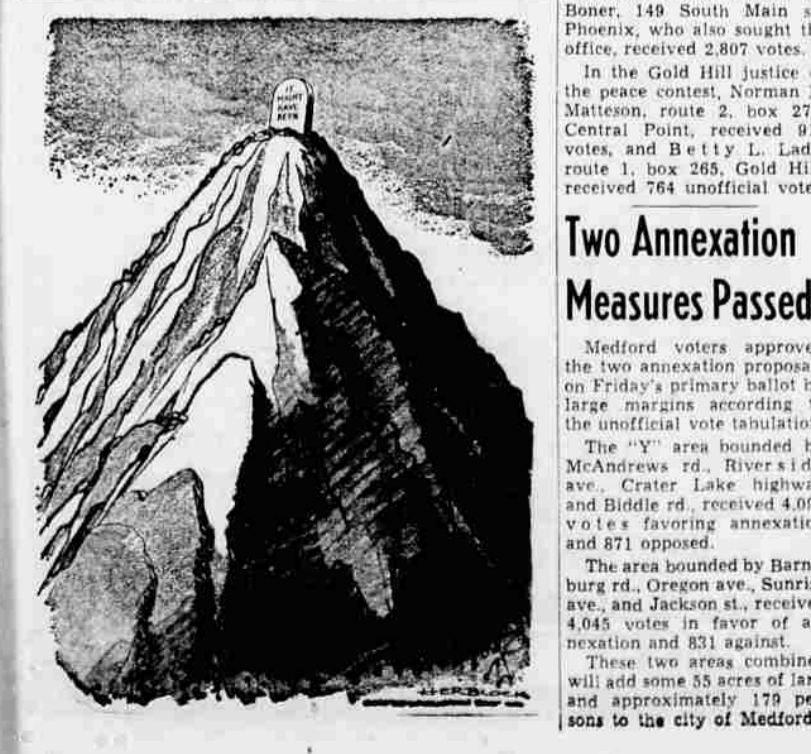

Attempts at aerial rescue were called off earlier and food supplies dropped to the rescue climbers and to Lou and James Whittaker, 31-year-old twins of Seattle, the injured climbers.

Violent Earthquake Kills 143 in Chile

Santiago, Chile—(UPI)—A violent earthquake and fires ravaged Concepcion, Chile's third largest city, Saturday. Damage extended over a 200-mile square area and casualties were heavy.

The government announced at least 143 were known dead. The number of injured was listed at 800.

The quake struck at 6:05 a.m. The first and heaviest shock lasted 35 seconds. Lesser tremors and subterranean rumblings followed, the entire quake lasted three minutes. It was the third major quake disaster this year.

Two Annexation Measures Passed
Medford voters approved the two annexation proposals on Friday's primary ballot by large margins according to the unofficial vote tabulation.

The "Y" area bounded by McAndrews rd., Riverside ave., Crater Lake highway and Biddle rd., received 4,092 votes favoring annexation and 871 opposed.

The area bounded by Barneburg rd., Oregon ave., Sunrise ave., and Jackson st., received 4,045 votes in favor of annexation and 831 against.

These two areas combined will add some 55 acres of land and approximately 179 persons to the city of Medford.

Voters Defeat Pay Boost for Legislators

Portland—UPI—A $125 a month pay raise for Oregon legislators, the only measure on the state ballot, was going down in defeat Saturday.

It joined three other unsuccessful attempts by the lawmakers for more money—the last in 1958.

Returns from 1,595 of 2,882 precincts showed 88,889 yes votes and 103,694 no's.

Jackson county residents voted in favor of increasing state legislators' salaries with 9,661 yes, and 8,674 no unofficial votes from 110 of the county's 113 precincts.

The legislators now get $50 a month, and wanted $175. The $600 a year salary was granted in 1950 by the voters and that has been it.

Groups Supported

Several legislators had voiced the opinion that this pay request would get through. It was alone on the ballot, and the measure had the support of numerous groups throughout the state.

Some members of the 1959 Legislature complained that poor salaries plus legislative expenses ran them in the red. It has been a perennial problem.

Oregon pays its legislators among the lowest in the nation.

Release of Plane Passengers Asked

Bealin—UPI—U. S. authorities Saturday demanded from surprisingly cooperative Soviet officials the return of eight men and a woman whose unarmed Air Force transport was forced down in East Germany by Russian jet fighters.

Heartened by relatively friendly early responses from the Soviets, the American authorities predicted the release of the plane's occupants within a day or two. They saw no signs that the Soviets might try to build up the strayed plane into an international "spy plane" incident.

Col. Gen. I. I. Jacobowki, Soviet armed forces commander in Germany, said the twin-engine C-47 was landed safely Friday. All aboard were unharmed and being held at a regional Soviet headquarters.

Taylor Leading James in Voting For Commissioner

Edwin H. Taylor, route 2, box 285, Central Point, late yesterday held a narrow margin for the Democratic nomination for Jackson county commissioner in one of the few contested races in the local primary elections.

Taylor, with 110 of the county's 113 precincts reported, had an unofficial total of 4,175 votes. Ralph A. James, Sams Valley, incumbent commissioner seeking nomination for reelection, had 4,093.

Returns from the three remaining precincts could make a difference in the final outcome, as could the official canvass, which probably will start early this week. However, courthouse sources indicated that the number of votes from the remaining precincts probably will not alter the outcome too much.

Boyden Leads

In the only other contested race for nomination for a county office, Republican Mark E. Boyden, 2541 Sandy terrace, Medford, had 6,488, and Lowell E. Ager, 63 Gresham st., Ashland, had 2,452.

Uncontested nominations for county offices in both political parties are listed in another story on page 2 of today's Mail Tribune.

In a non-partisan election Friday, Mrs. Frances I. Galatin, 148 Central ave., Ashland, was reelected Ashland justice of the peace with 4,013 official votes. Arthur M. Borer, 149 South Main st., Phoenix, who also sought the office, received 2,807 votes.

In the Gold Hill justice of the peace contest, Norman R. Matteson, route 2, box 277, Central Point, received 912 votes, and Betty L. Ladd, route 1, box 265, Gold Hill, received 764 unofficial votes.

Local Votes Follow Statewide Trend

Jackson county voters Friday went along with Democrats and Republicans throughout the state in nominating candidates for national and state offices.

Sen. John F. Kennedy, who went ahead of four other listed candidates and stayed ahead statewide, also received the majority of Jackson county's Democratic vote for the Presidential nomination.

With 110 of the county's 113 precincts completed, unofficially, Senator Kennedy had 4,516 votes. Sen. Wayne Morse, who conducted a "favorite son" candidate campaign, had 2,637 votes.

Other Presidential candidates for the Democratic nomination in Jackson County received: Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, 702; Sen. Stuart in the Republican primary had 687 votes in Jackson county.

Charles O. Porter, incumbent representative from the fourth Congressional district, received 7,490, unopposed.

Dr. Edwin Durno, Medford, was nominated as Republican candidate for representative from Oregon's fourth congressional district. He had 7,775 votes in Jackson county, to Leslie P. Fleming's 1,872.

Candidates seeking nomination on the Democratic ticket for Oregon secretary of state were Monroe Sweetland, who had 5,747 votes in the 110 precincts completed; Vic Davis, 1,900; and Walter W. Kendrick, 741.

County Democrats favored Ward H. Cook, who received 5,057 votes, for state treasurer candidate. Joseph A. Jaross, who also sought the nomination, had 2,672 in the 110 precincts.

County Republicans cast 5,894 votes for Howard C. Belton as candidate for Oregon state treasurer. Shirley Field had 3,318 unofficial votes from the 110 precincts.

In the Republican race for state attorney general, Carl H. Francis had 4,831, and Merlin Estep has 3,502 unofficial votes. For state representative from the 19th district, Jackson county, Mrs. Evelyn Nye had 6,745; John R. Dellenback had 5,922, and E. H. Mann had 4,142.

Three precincts had not been reported by late yesterday afternoon, but the number of votes was not expected to change substantially the way votes were cast in the 110 precincts which were completed. All figures are unofficial, and the official count will not be available until county election's department starts its official canvass.

San Francisco—(UPI)—Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell said Saturday he thought Premier Khrushchev's actions in Paris solidified American and western opinion against Communism.

Jack Goes Ahead By More Than 47,000 Votes

Nixon Has 169,000 In Popularity Vote

Portland—UPI—Sen. Wayne L. Morse dropped out of the presidential derby Saturday, his hopes for a "favorite son" nod from the Oregon electorate demolished by the bandwagon of Sen. John F. Kennedy.

The defeat in Friday's Oregon primary election was the first for Morse since he entered Oregon politics in 1944, but it also was his third consecutive trouncing in presidential primaries while Kennedy rolled impressively to his seventh primary triumph without a loss.

Morse went to bed at his home in Eugene Friday night refusing to concede, but Saturday morning after the Kennedy margin grew steadily during the night he announced that "I shall of course discontinue any further efforts to gather delegates for the convention."

Unofficial returns from 2,623 of the state's 2,882 precincts gave Kennedy 128,486 votes to 81,053 for Morse, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (Minn.) who withdrew after his West Virginia defeat but remained on the Oregon ballot, was a poor third with 15,581. Sens. Stuart Symington (Mo.) and Lyndon Johnson (Tex.), who did not campaign, had 11,147 and 10,113. Vice President Richard Nixon, running unopposed, piled up a popularity vote of 169,033.

Met All Tests

Kennedy didn't bother to remain in Oregon for the returns. He spoke Friday night at a fund-raising dinner in Lewiston, Ida., then flew to the Kennedy family home in Massachusetts.

During a stop in Boise, Kennedy described his upset victory over Morse as "the climax to the whole effort."

"We've met all the tests that could be set for a candidate," he said. "We recorded the highest votes everywhere except for Nebraska and there the highest since Roosevelt."

Morse's defeat left his political future in peril. He had warned his friends that a loss to Kennedy might be disastrous in 1962 when he seeks re-election to the Senate. His probable opponent, Republican Governor Mark Hatfield, labeled the primary result as "the eclipse of Morse as a national figure."

Mrs. Edith Green, congresswoman and Kennedy's Oregon chairman, said there "can be no doubt" that the result in Oregon assured Kennedy the nomination.

Adds 17 Votes

Kennedy picked up 17 Oregon convention votes, bringing the total of pledges to 303 1/2. A total of 761 is required for nomination.

Party contests to find a successor to the late Sen. Richard L. Neuberger narrowed the field to Neuberger's widow, Maurine, on the Democratic side, and former Republican Gov. Elmo Smith, Albany newspaper publisher. Both won nomination by large majorities over minor candidates.

Dog Control Laws Favored in County

Jackson county residents Friday voted for dog control, according to unofficial returns from 110 of Jackson county's 113 precincts.

Some 9,842 county residents voted against dogs running at large, while about 8,189 favored dogs running at large.

Residents of Medford, Rogue River, and Precincts 65 and 68A voted on separate measures with identical wording as the county dog control measure. Medford residents voted 4,812 against dogs running at large, and 2,212 in favor of dogs running at large. The count is unofficial, and will change when all precinct returns are tabulated.

Dog control laws will become effective in about three months, according to state law from which local control regulations are derived.

Notice of new laws will be advertised for three consecutive weeks, and become effective 60 days after advertising or posting time.

Dogs which herd livestock are exempt from such measures, Deputy District Attorney Gerald Scannell said Saturday. Dogs which are muzzled also may run at large.

Otherwise, Scannell said, all dogs must be kept on the master's property, or, if off the property, be accompanied by the master. Dogs do not have to be on a leash or muzzled if the master has the dog under his control.

All dogs running at large, not including those muzzled or herding livestock, may be impounded by the county or by any law enforcement officer, Scannell said.

After five days notice, the state may start civil action to collect the fine, Scannell explained. The district attorney's office is in charge of prosecution.

Chris Hagler, county dog control officer, Saturday said he would ask the county court for six additional men to work in three shifts to enforce dog control laws on a 24-hour basis. He said he also would ask for additional vehicles for picking up dogs running at large.

Minneapolis—(UPI)—Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.) said Saturday the Democratic Presidential nomination "isn't sewed up by a darn sight."

UMC Budget Group Sets Meet Series

The United Medford Crusade budget committee will hold a series of meetings during the next three weeks to consider estimates and allocation requests from member agencies, according to budget committee chairman Dunbar Carpenter.

The UMC board of directors will meet June 16, possibly to consider final action on agency admissions to UMC membership and budget allocations to member agencies after the budget committee presents its report.

"As soon as the budget committee has determined the amounts to be allocated each agency for the 1960-61 fiscal year, each agency will be notified of the action immediately," Carpenter explained. "Should an agency have an objection to a committee decision a meeting will be arranged to discuss the matter with agency representatives and a budget committee members."

Meeting Thursday

The committee will hold its second meeting this Thursday to consider application for admission to UMC membership. The first committee meeting was held Wednesday when individual agency budgets were assigned two-man teams consisting of committee members. These teams were to make appointments with their assigned agency representatives to discuss and review budget requests.

"The United Medford Crusade should include as many qualified volunteer agencies as possible in a single yearly campaign and should, by thorough budget reviews, guarantee campaign contributors that their money will be spent for the purposes for which each member agency was established," the budget committee chairman said.

Population Increase

"The population of Medford has increased 5 7/9 per cent each year during the past nine years," Carpenter pointed out. "During the past seven years of UMC campaigning, the campaign goals have increased an average of 5 per cent yearly which reflects the growth of agency operation to meet the greater population needs."

Carpenter also cited some comparisons of the UMC record with other united funds of its general size as to population and campaign goals. Comparisons showed an almost identical record of per capita giving, he said. The amounts allocated to the several classes of agencies such as recreation, health, child care, etc., by the UMC were also close to the average in almost all instances, he said.

The budget committee work is to prepare for the campaign goal which will be announced soon after the middle of June.
