What Animal Is It?

By Ruth Dixon

Do you know the name of this member of the raccoon family? He belongs to the group which scientists call Nasua, but he has a funny name all his own.

You'll find this tree-climbing creature living in hollow trees or in crevices of rocky cliffs in the faraway jungles of Mexico, Central America, and South America. He has fur, an upturned snout, a ringed tail, and strong, sharp claws on the end of his long toes. He comes out at night and eats lizards, birds, insects, fruit, and reptiles. Sometimes he and his friends corner and kill a huge six-foot-long iguana—a big lizard. He knows how to fight to protect his family and to find a tempting dinner. What's his name?

Break-a-Balloon

By Suzie Snider

Seat one player on a kitchen chair. Give him a cap to wear with a pin stuck up through the center so the point sticks out on top.

Each player is given a balloon attached to an 18-in. string, and the group is divided into two teams. One player from each team, holding the balloon by the end of its string, tries to hit the pin and break his balloon. When he does, the next man steps up for his turn, and so on for all players on both teams until one team has finished and is the winner.

Let's Draw an Elephant
