

Out on a Limb

By BOB WALTERS

The Genius

There was hardly a dry eye at Southern Oregon college last Friday morning. Churchill hall, the administration building, was grimly quiet as four students, carrying a long board covered with paper towels, walked slowly and sadly down the corridor. Other students stood quietly, heads bowed, as the college paid its last respects to the dead.

Under the towels on the board was the body of a genius.

In fact, that was his name. "Genius," it seems, was a master at slipping through the mazes in SOC's science department.

None of his fellow white rats performed nearly so well.

The facts for that gruesome little rat-tail were provided by SOC's information director, Hurryin' Hugh Simpson. Mr. S. adds that one of the college's faculty members offered to donate flowers, provided "Genius" could rest in state in the office of a certain female instructor.

The thoughtful offer was declined, Hugh says, and "Genius" was taken from the college in a spacious hearse provided by the Ashland Garbage Disposal company.

Some of Jacksonville's residents let off quite a bit of steam at last week's city council meeting. Contaminated water (or uncontaminated water, depending on your viewpoint) was the subject for most of the two-hour session.

But at least two of the Jacksonvilleites (or is it Jacksonvilleites?) apparently weren't worked up over the issue.

One of them was a little old lady who sat in the back row. She read a magazine throughout most of the meeting.

The other was a somewhat heavy-set gentleman who sat in the front of the hall but, as best I can recall, uttered not a word either pro or con. His only physical activity consisted of an occasional trip to the potbelled stove.

He'd open the stove door, spit, close the door and ambled back to his seat.

Come to think of it, though, that might have been just his way of expressing an opinion of the whole shebang.

Pitt-ding!

Sports Editor Dick Jewell let out a whoop the other day while working on a story.

"I rolled up the paper in my typewriter," said D.J., "and a spider jumped out!"

Great White Father, who seems to have a passion for selecting names, be they for sports cars, typewriters or reporters (and he's come up with some dandies in the latter category), couldn't let it pass.

"Now you can call your typewriter Little Miss Muffet," he says.

With that, GWF returned to his tuffet and finished his curds and whey.

Medford Fourth Largest City

By United Press International
Springfield has almost doubled its population in the last 10 years to rank as Oregon's sixth largest city, preliminary census figures showed today.

The Lane county neighbor to Eugene jumped from 19,807 in 1950 to 19,373 in 1960.

All of the state's 10 largest cities, except one, Portland, gained in population since 1950. Portland dropped from 373,628 in 1950 to 370,339 this year.

Eugene now is the second largest city with 50,169, compared to 35,879 in 1950. Salem is third with 49,166 compared to 43,140 ten years ago. Medford is fourth with 24,246 compared to 17,305 in 1950. Corvallis ranks fifth with 20,437 compared to 16,207 a decade ago.

Following Springfield in seventh place is Klamath Falls with 16,321 compared to 15,875 in 1950. Pendleton is eighth with 14,347 compared to 11,724 ten years ago.

In ninth place is Albany with 12,841, a jump from 10,115, and Bend is 10th with 11,748, compared to 11,409 in 1950.

EP Grade School Visitation Draws 67 First Graders

Youngsters, Mothers Are Indocinated

By DOTTIE HARBISON

Eagle Point Sixty-seven beginning first grade students and their mothers visited Eagle Point Grade school for visitation day last Friday. It was the largest number of visiting students ever to attend.

Sixty students pre-registered and had physical examinations at the grade school about two months ago, according to the health chairman, Mrs. Glenn Burrill. School officials said they expect about 90 first graders to start next year. There are 81 registered in the first grade this year.

The youngsters were enrolled and all the beginners and the present first graders were taken to the gymnasium where they were assisted by Donna Geren, Judy Grebb, Marsha Pulley, Ronnie Gehring, Judy Clarno, and Margaret Burke, all eighth graders; Mrs. Selby, Mrs. Copley, and Mrs. Johnston, all first grade teachers; and Mrs. Maxine Berryman, the physical education teacher, in some of the supervised games played by the first graders.

Mothers gathered in the cafeteria where school superintendent Glenn D. Hale welcomed them to the school. Booklets giving general information were distributed and Lee Hays and Mrs. Keitt, the school nurse, went over the booklet explaining the lunch program, physical examinations and immunizations required, traffic rules, pre-school training, personal habits, adjustment to school life, how to help the child be ready for school and how to help prepare him to read, suitable clothing, the health program offered with the school, birth certificates, and the need for plenty of rest and proper food.

Questions were answered and mothers spent the rest of the morning getting acquainted with each other.

Following lunch all the mothers and youngsters were taken on a bus ride up the Crater Lake highway to Ball rd., and back the Reese Creek rd. to the school. Rules and regulations for youngsters riding the bus were explained and discussed.

Artist Eddie Koskela Paints In Jacksonville, Applegate

By MAUDE ZIEGLER
Mail Tribune Correspondent

Applegate Valley - In this picture there was no covered bridge, no barn nor house, not even a lake nor stream nor ocean, but Eddie Koskela had seen a thing of beauty and he painted it.

A barren white snag accenting the hills and valley of Bishop creek lying south from Log Town made one of the many landscapes Koskela is doing in southern Oregon. Mr.

and Mrs. Koskela are from Eureka, Calif., and have spent a week in the Applegate, where he is doing landscapes in water color. Their headquarters are in Jacksonville, where he may be established for the summer, expecting to set up an art gallery.

Koskela has done a number of large water colors of Jacksonville scenes, including the Kottage Kitchen corner, U.S. hotel, the pioneer Numan home on Old Stage road, occupied by Dr. Ralph Rutherford, and several street scenes.

His pictures are vivid and gay, and he says he needs to carry out bright warm color patterns in doing rural scenes to avoid continuous greens of the countryside in spring. He has been an artist for the past 10 years, traveling over the western states. He also works in oils and does black and white sketches.

On the trip here from Eureka he did many scenes along the coast. Mrs. Koskela adds that they started wandering north and stumbled on to Jacksonville and the Applegate quite by accident, never having heard of these areas before. Between cold spells she enjoyed a swim in the Applegate.

Rural Reflections

By MAUDE ZIEGLER

Applegate Valley - Local dairy calves and surrounding rural areas were much photographed Sunday when one of the little foreign cars (pickup variety) posed in the foreground for advertising photos by a New York photographer. Bob Hubbard of Medford was driving the little car.

A local housewife had great difficulty in getting use of the party line one day, making the trip to the phone five times with proper spaces in between. Finally the phone-users remarked, "Well, I guess we'd better let them have the line - but I don't know what for."

Verna Hall, nicely carrying on description of ladies dresses in a style show, quite naturally said the ladies had clobbered their dresses. She meant the seams had been "clappered" with a special little board, a new trick in pressing difficult synthetics.

Central Point Youth In College Program
Richard V. Evans, Central Point, is participating in "The Abundant Century," the Wheaton college centennial dedication festival May 27-28. Evans, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tyley Evans, Central Point, is a sophomore in the Illinois college.

The festival portrays "a Biblical liberal arts philosophy in contrast with human ideologies of the past." Approximately 100 students are participating. Evans sings bass in the chorus.

KIM LEAVES HOSPITAL
New York - (AP) Actress Kim Novak will be discharged today from Doctors Hospital. She entered the hospital May 11 for treatment of hepatitis.

Club Wins Award
Illinois Valley - The Illinois Valley Federated Women's club of Cave Junction has received fourth prize in the 1960 State Community Achievement contest for its work during 1958 to 1960. The contest was sponsored by the General Federation of Women's Clubs and the Sears-Robuck Foundation.

SCHOOL REPORT CARDS
Lone Pine - Lee Merriman, principal of Lone Pine school, has asked parents to send a self-addressed stamped envelope with their children, or deposit 5 cents, for the mailing of report cards. One envelope will be sufficient for the family. This will eliminate children coming back to school another day for report cards.

The auditorium was decorated in an Hawaiian theme. Huge murals of Hawaii were placed at either end of the auditorium and orchids and candles were used on the tables.
