Security Council Votes 7-2 Not To Condemn U.S.

Gromyko Questions Ike's Logic, Morals

United Nations, N.Y.—(AP)—The U.N. Security Council today rejected Soviet Russia's demand to condemn the United States for its spy flights over Russia.

The vote was 7-2 with Ceylon and Tunisia abstaining. Russia lost out in its bid to brand the United States an aggressor after U. S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge told the council Russia had planted a microphone in the American Embassy in Moscow.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko had questioned the "logic and morals" of President Eisenhower and said American U2 spy flights brought a "very strong odor of the Hitlerite thinking on the eve of World War II."

Lodge followed him with another recitation of Soviet spy activities and the dramatic presentation of how the Soviets had bugged the American Embassy in Moscow.

The Soviets did not come to the Security Council with clean hands, Lodge said— a refutation of Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's denial in Paris that the Russians actually sent out spies.

Lodge displayed to the Security Council a hand-carved wooden replica of the Great Seal of the United States which he said was presented to the U. S. ambassador in Moscow.

Listening Device "It was hung up in his office right back of his desk," Lodge said. "A clandestine listening device was discovered inside this replica."

Lodge held up the device and showed how plaster of paris was used around the seal and contrived so that it matched the wood. It opened into two pieces.

Police Probe Blast In Medford High

Medford police are investigating an explosion which occurred in the first floor hall of the Medford High school last night.

Police said the size of the explosion was about that which would result from a dynamite blasting cap. A bad injury would have resulted had the explosion occurred near a person, they said.

Little damage was done, but the blast left a two-inch crater in the tile floor and pocked-marked the surrounding plaster walls.

The explosion happened at 7 p.m., when a make-up class of some 20 students was being formed in a room about 100 feet away.

Police are contacting the members of the class in their investigation.

James Concedes To Taylor After Official Canvass

County Commissioner Ralph A. James today conceded to Edwin H. Taylor the Democratic nomination for that position.

The official canvass of votes for the two candidates completed late Wednesday gives Taylor 4,366 votes to 4,300 for James, a margin of 66 votes.

In a statement this morning, James congratulated Taylor upon winning the nomination and pledged his full support to him in the November election.

James told the Mail Tribune he had decided not to request a recount. He said if the difference had been only 20 or 25 votes there would have been a possibility of an error changing the outcome of the election.

The official canvass of other votes cast in Friday's election is continuing in the elections department. It must be completed within 25 days, according to state law.

BECAUSE OUR BOYS DO NOT GET ALONG WITH KHRUSHCHEV

Nikita May be Under Pressure, Says Ike

Washington — (AP) — President Eisenhower said today Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev may have scuttled the summit conference under "pressure from the Stalinists and the Chinese Reds."

The President made the statement to Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.), chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, as they left a special breakfast for congressional leaders at which he threw his "wholehearted" support behind a Senate investigation of events leading up to the summit collapse.

In discussing possible pressure on Khrushchev, the President told Russell: "That is something we ought to think about."

Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson (Texas) and Chairman J. William Fulbright (D-Ark.) of the Senate Foreign Relations committee, which starts its closed-door hearings Friday, both said the President gave his full support to the inquiry.

"The President said the course of the conduct of study in Congress met with his wholehearted approval and would receive his cooperation," Johnson said. "I think we all agreed that we are in this together and we will treat mistakes as errors and the thing we'll all interested in is American solidarity."

Kehrli Emphasizes Need for Adequate Land Use Studies Before Area Zoning

Herman Kehrli, executive director of the bureau of municipal research, Eugene, last night, emphasized the need for adequate land use studies before zoning at a regional planning meeting here.

"Zoning should be the last step in the planning process," Kehrli said. "Cities I've been acquainted with impressed me by not too much interest in planning until they got some problem. Then they had to have planning immediately."

Zoning without studying other factors is apt to create other problems, he pointed out.

Follow Summary

Kehrli's remarks followed a summary by County Judge Earl Miller of what planning has been done in Jackson county. Miller explained that the county is without general zoning. The county is now attempting to coordinate county planning with that of the cities of Ashland and Medford, he said. Almost all of the incorporated cities on the valley floor have planning commissions, he pointed out.

"However, now we are in trouble because there has been considerable misunderstanding over interim zoning," Miller interjected.

Kehrli pointed out that the Eugene area recently completed a report on the first planning study of the area including three towns near Eugene. Lane county had the problem of no planning policy for the fringe areas of Eugene. The subdividing would rough in a road, spread a little gravel over it and expect the county to take it over.

Jackson county basic planning should take two or three years, then the cities should be tied in with the central plan, he said.

Explaining the background of the federal urban assistance program, the bureau director said "when the Eisenhower administration took over it was opposed to the public housing programs. It decided to take a different approach, thinking that a lot of the problems are due to inadequate local planning. This caused the pressure to build up on local government. It thought the states should help with the program, too."

MOVING

Moving equipment from Medford Osteopathic hospital to the new Crater Osteopathic hospital in Central Point started this morning. Employees of Franklin's Transfer and Storage company are shown taking a bed down the fire escape of the old building. Most of the patients had been dismissed before today, and those who remained were scheduled to be moved early this afternoon. Most of the moving will be completed today, according to Dr. P. T. Rutter, hospital chief of staff.

Committee Asks $1,000 Be Restored In Library Funds

A committee of the Medford citizen's budget committee recommended this morning that $1,000 be restored to the books and equipment funds of the Public Library of Medford and Jackson county.

The money had been cut from the library's requested budget by the city administration, and the library board had appealed to the budget committee that at least some of the money be restored.

Just one-half of the 16-member committee showed up for this morning's meeting. Four of them were city councilmen. The committee has been holding early morning meetings in an effort to gain the attendance of more of its members.

Don Carlson, who had served on the special committee studying the library's request, told the committee the library does have a problem. He said this partly resulted from the fact that the library has "done too good a job."

Money Transfers

It was recommended that $200 of the $1,000 be transferred out of the library's $1,000 building and maintenance fund and the other $800 come out of the estimated $3,200 surplus in the 1960-61 city budget.

Councilman Stanley Stark asked City Manager Robert Duff, why the allocation for the urban planning program had been increased from $3,000 in this year's planning department budget to $8,160 for the 1960-1961 budget.

Duff said the city-federal government program for which this money is being used, is being stepped up. Scheduled for completion during the coming year are a through-street study, a public buildings study, a park and
