The Medical Roundup

by Walter Alvarez

Emeritus Consultant in Medicine Mayo Clinic
Emeritus Professor of Medicine Mayo Clinic

Blindness In The Aged

There is a rare form of blindness which sometimes affects people in their late 80s or early 90s. It is due to a degenerative change in what is called the macula' – the small area in the center of the retina which enables us to see near and small objects. When an ophthalmologist looks into the eye and ses this type of degeneration, he knows that eventually the person's vision for getting around is not going to suffer. He is just going to have trouble reading or seeing small things. He may perhaps be able to look at television. A woman can go on with her knitting and her gardening.

Mongolian Children Appear Formed At Conception

A while ago, after 30 years of studying mongolism in children, and after reading most of what has been written on the subject in several languages, I wrote in this column that most experts agree that the main cause is heredity. By this, I did not mean more mongoloids in the family – although in a few families as many as four mongoloids have been reported. I know of one such family. In practically all of my series of cases there was some psychosis in the ancestry.

Today, experts are finding that some of the relatives of mongoloids have strange creases in their hands, and others have strange abnormalities in their blood. Nowhere yet have I found a study of mongoloids in which good records were made of the queer nervous abnormalities that showed up in the relatives. Such studies must now be made.

One factor that appears in some cases is late child-bearing, but it is silly to say that the advanced age of the mother is the cause of mongolism. Why Because one can find plenty of mongoloids who were born to mothers in their early twenties. Also, it is silly to blame an "old womb" for all mongoloids when, in practically all cases of unlike twins in which one is mongoloid, the other is not. If the womb were at fault, both should be mongoloid. But when one alike twin is mongoloid, the other perhaps always is, which fact points very strongly to a hereditary disease.

Now, in the last year, experts have found that the cells in a mongoloid child's body contained 47 chromosomes (the units that preside over heredity) instead of the normal 46. This indicates that a mongoloid is a mongoloid from the moment of conception, and hence mothers of such children must now stop feeling guilty; there is nothing that they did that could have had any influence in producing the abnomal child.

Applegate Girl Wins 4-H Honor

Applegate Valley—Sandra Brewster, junior leader in the Applegate 4-H dairy club, topped the honors received by her club at the Junior spring dairy show held at Grants Pass Saturday when she was crowned queen of the show.

Sandra, a Grants Pass high school student, also is queen contestant in another field of dairy endeavor, with opportunity for entry in state and national contests.

Susan Head placed first in beginners' showmanship at Grants Pass, and Marilyn Winningham placed sixth in the same class. Dianna Brewster placed second in intermediate showmanship.

The local club is led by Arion Christianson, and three of the members placed among the top 10 winners in judging contests. Eleven members participated in the show, which was sponsored by the Rogue River Jersey Cattle club.

Lower Grade Paper Seen on Pamphlets

Salem (UPI) A lower grade of paper can be used to print voters pamphlets and this will probably be done starting with the November general election, saving the state about $5,000 for that one printing alone. Secretary of State Howell Appling Jr. said Thursday.

Appling said his office checked into the possibility that the paper that voters pamphlets were printed on in the past was too expensive and that a cheaper grade could do the job as well.

To prove it, he ordered voters pamphlets for one of Oregon's 36 counties printed on the cheaper grade—Woodstock—for last Friday's primary election. "The tests are complete," Appling said, "and were successful."

Not only did the lower grade paper hold up well but "we received not one complaint from anyone," he said.

Bee Keepers to Meet Thursday Night

A Jackson county bee keepers meeting will be held at 8 o'clock tonight in the Jackson county courthouse.

Color slides on bee keeping will be shown. Anyone having slides of interest to the group is invited to bring them, according to County Agent Don Berry. Coffee will be served. All bee keepers and other interested persons are invited to attend.

Hulse Named to Manage Hotel

Ashland – Harold S. Hulse, presently manager of the Wi-Ne-Ma hotel in Klamath Falls, this week was named general manager of Ashland's Mark Antony hotel.

Hulse, who owned and operated his own restaurant and lounge in Medford for 11 years before taking the Klamath Falls position, will have full supervision of all hotel operations and services.

Hulse's family presently is living in Medford, but they will live in the Mark Antony after alterations are completed. The new manager is a member of the Elks, Medford Kiwanis club, Medford Chamber of Commerce and the Masonic lodge.

Dear Readers!

Some years ago, when I pictured public officials accepting small favors from Fatbacks, and vice-versa, I was sternly told such rascals do not exist.

Well - I sure am glad of that!!! So, remember, this is only Fiction. It couldn't ever really happen.
