Salem — A 19-year-old Marion youth, Guy Leroy Anderson, pleaded guilty in District court here Wednesday to a charge of hunting deer with possession of venison. The sheriff's office said the deer was shot at night earlier this week near Silver Falls.

Saxons Defending State Track Toga

Corvallis — South Salem's Saxons will have the "most" going for them Saturday in defense of their Oregon state high school class A-1 track meet championship.

The Saxons will have 13 qualifiers entered, including defending 100-yard dash champion Ron Harp and star miler Clayton Steinke.

Grants Pass, Beaverton and Dallas each qualified 10 for the "big meet."

South Salem expects to have its stiffest competition provided by Medford, with nine qualifying spots, and Jefferson, with seven.

Mel Renfro Standout

The meet's outstanding athlete figures to be Jefferson's Mel Renfro, who has posted the state's best times in the high and low hurdles events as well as holding the top broad jump mark this season by an Oregon prep. Renfro will be competing in all three of these events at the state meet.

One of the meet's top races will match miler Steinke and Springfield's Fred Dellinger of Springfield. In their last race this year, Dellinger beat Steinke.

Mentors of Medford, Crater and Phoenix schools have indicated that their squads will be intact Friday and Saturday for the annual A-1 and A-2 state high school track meet at Corvallis.

Medford tutor Dean Benson and Crater Coach Ed Knapp were to have left at noon today with their crews. Phoenix mentor Hap Consruck will take his team to Corvallis tomorrow morning.

The Black Tornado of Medford will have an eight-man squad at the A-1 meet, including Walt Ayres, hurdler who will go as a relay alternate. Ayres drew praise for his running in the district meet despite an ailing back. He placed third in the high hurdles.

Pirates Gain Spots

Crater qualified four men for the A-1 state rivalry.

Phoenix will have seven men in the A-2 meet qualified for 11 berths. The Pirates gained nine berths in state as the result of the district meet but got two more when Ken Watson, Myrtle Creek, and Doug Stewart, Rogue River, withdrew from the broad jump and discus, respectively.

Dan Lumley of the Pirates will be in the jump and Ron Baker in the discus. The two Phoenix men were third in district in the events. Lumley will be the Phoenix heavy duty man with entry in both dash and the relay as well as the jump.

Despite wire service reports, Grants Pass, with men qualified for 10 spots, is expected to make the strongest bid from southern Oregon for A-1 honors.

State meet entries from this area are:

TO LEAVE HOSPITAL. Milwaukee, Wis. — Third baseman Jim Davenport of the San Francisco Giants will leave Milwaukee hospital Friday morning, but he still fears it may be as much as three weeks before he can resume playing. The 26-year-old infielder has been under treatment here for a week for an ulcer that struck him suddenly during the Giants series with the Milwaukee Braves. Dr. Irwin Schulz, a Braves' physician who has been caring for Davenport, has assured him the illness is not a dangerous one.

CHRISTIANITY AT HOME. Burlington, Vt. — A University of Vermont Protestant discussion group came to the conclusion that "it's harder to be a Christian in Burlington than in Africa." "We have a harder job to be effective Christians in the midst of plenty, where a Christian is the accepted thing. Indifference is harder to combat than criticism or even persecution."
