Women's News Social Events

The two of us had stuffing for dinner last night—reorganized a bit, of course. It turned out to be a proper, nourishing dish, and tasty, too. Even Pappy agreed that it was. We learned about this stuffing, made with rice, while visiting relatives in Centralia, Wash., recently. Sister Peg, (not to be confused with Pal Peg of The Tribune) and husband Henry cooked a turkey dinner for a family birthday gathering, and we decided that the stuffing was so good, there wasn't too much point with bothering with the turkey. The cooks started with brown rice. Once upon a time they used wild rice, but since this is now about $3 a pound, they finally substituted the quick-cooking brown rice. This is just as well, for it seems to be agreed that unpolished rice is one of the most wholesome of the protein foods. Anyhow, Henry took a cup or two of the rice and put it in the electric skillet, along with some of the new oleomargarine (new to us, anyway) which is recommended in certain low fat diets. Whoever happened to be going by the skillet stirred the rice, which was given an extra browning at low heat. After a bit they added a cup of minced celery (we used some of the leaves, too) and some minced onion, and tossed the vegetables around with the rice. When that seemed to reach a certain stage, a can of the little button mushrooms was added, and then two or three cups of consommé. This was steamed, with the lid on, until the rice was almost tender. At this stage, if the product is to go inside the turkey, they add a package of the prepared stuffing bread, and mix in some powdered herbs. Last night we added some monosodium glutamate, some oregano from our own garden, and a couple of pinches of sweet basil. After the mixture had cooked for 20 minutes or so, we tried it out and since it seemed to be lacking in zest, Pappy suggested some paprika. So we sprinkled in some paprika and then remembering about curried rice, added some curry powder—about what would heap up on the end of a silver knife. We don't mind admitting that a little curry goes a long way with this cook. It was the curry that did the trick, too. The mixture had just the right authority after the curry was added. From time to time we had to add a little water in order to keep the goop from sticking and to provide enough moisture for steaming the rice. Along with the rice dish we had a raw vegetable salad, and apple pie for dessert. Buttermilk was the beverage. Pappy has always relished buttermilk, and finally after all these years, Potpourri has started to enjoy it. Can't imagine why we formerly thought it had an unpleasant flavor.

Good Values In Foods Surveyed

(The following guide to the nation's plentiful food buys for the week ending May 28 was prepared for United Press International by the U.S. Departments of Agriculture and Interior.)

Washington - Housewives with an eye on the long Memorial Day week end will find many good values at food stores. At meat counters, especially good values will be found on out-of-door eating items, such as beef steaks, chuck roasts, and hamburger. Also, in pork, top values will be offered in smoked hams, frankfurters, bacon, and spareribs. Lamb will be featured items at some stores, while broiler-fryers and small turkeys continue first-rate values at most shopping centers. Dairy products, such as eggs, cheese, milk, and butter also are excellent buys. Vegetable bins are overflowing with increasing supplies of such old favorites as carrots, celery, cabbage, onions, sweet corn, cucumbers, artichokes, lettuce, tomatoes, squash, and asparagus. In fruits, there will be good values in bananas, oranges, lemons, limes, rhubarb, and strawberries, which are arriving in increasing supplies. Housewives looking for fish will find good budget buys in both fresh and frozen shrimp, scallops, and fish sticks and portions. Now here's a detailed report on plentiful foods in this particular area: WEST - Arizona, California, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, Oregon, Utah, Washington, Wyoming; Shoppers will find a good selection of foods in ample supply in the markets this week. Prices on red meats are mostly unchanged. Supplies of beef, calf, veal and pork are adequate for the demand. Lamb is in ample to liberal supply in California markets, but supplies are light in the northwest. Egg and poultry prices also are mostly unchanged from a week ago, with eggs continuing in fairly plentiful supply. In California markets, supplies of young turkeys are increasing, and young-fryer roasters are selling 1 to 3 cents a pound lower in the San Francisco area. Butter continues in plentiful supply and unchanged in price. Plentiful fresh fruits and vegetables include apples, strawberries, avocados, grapefruit, artichokes, celery, lettuce, long white potatoes, spinach, and tomatoes. In good supply are lemons, Valencia oranges, asparagus, cauliflower, dry onions and soft squash. In fish, best buys include dungeness crabs, rockfish, halibut, and cod.

Missionary Speaks In Illinois Valley

Illinois Valley - Mrs. Merle Arneson, missionary worker from Mexico, spoke at a recent meeting of the Women's Missionary society of Cave Junction Community church. Mrs. George P. Martin presided, and Mrs. George Gray gave a devotional service on the topic, "Sacrificial Living." The next meeting will be a work day June 1 at 10:30 a.m. For cookouts comin' up, there's a portable lantern that stands alone on a table or can be mounted on a pole or bracket. The lamp burns for 50 hours on one can of fuel. It resists 100-mile winds and is smokeless and sootless.
