Reading Labels Needed to Shop

Ithaca, N.Y. - Grocery shopping without reading labels is like a game of pin-the-tail-on-the-donkey, say four Cornell University extension specialists.

There's a product for every purpose, family and budget, they explained. The printing on a box of detergent becomes more vital as more detergents and fabrics become available. Lower grade, second quality food, such as meat, often should be used instead of a higher grade. The price tag may not be a guide to actual cost because it is more important to know the cost per serving than cost per can, package or pound.

Satin and Taffeta Give Bride a 'Queenly Look'

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK
United Press International
Washington - Clothing must be simple and easy to pack for the trim and busy assistant chairwoman of the Republican National Committee.

Mrs. Clare B. Williams, in charge of the party's women's activities and almost as often out of Washington as in, says that her first concern in buying clothes are fabrics that fight wrinkles. She finds synthetics and pure silk preferable.

Another concern is to find dresses to provide coverage at drafty head tables. Sleeves of some kind are a must, even on the dressiest occasions. As she puts it, "you can't look well groomed if you're shivering."

Mrs. Williams gives one example of a morning-afternoon-evening outfit she's found that answers most of her problems. It's a muted print wool and dacron mixture made into a cocktail sheath with small cap sleeves under a matching jacket.

With the jacket on, she's set for a TV appearance or an afternoon tea. Minus the jacket, the dress is appropriate for an appearance at an evening dinner meeting.

The contents of Mrs. Williams' suitcase on one 2 1/2 week trip, with a temperature range from the 30's in Oregon to 100 in California's Imperial Valley, show how her wardrobe organization pays off.

She managed with one suit and three dresses all in brown tones which meant only one hat and a minimum of shoe and handbag changes.

On a subsequent trip, while the browns were at the cleaners, Mrs. Williams switched to a black and blue wardrobe - blue toned dresses with black accessories.

She always carries a couple of boxes of jewelry to add variety to the minimum of clothes. Varying pearl arrangements play a big part of her accessories.

She's a straight-skirt fan, chiefly because they will tie Miss English said necklines are "scoopy." That is they reach from shoulder to shoulder with plenty of bareness.

"This is what the new brides want and this is what they are getting," she said.

Annual Breakfast Given For Rogue River Seniors

Rogue River - Members of the 1960 senior class of Rogue River High school were honored at the 19th annual senior breakfast sponsored by the Rogue River Civic Improvement club, unit of the Oregon Federation of Women's club. The 41 graduates assembled in Veterans of Foreign Wars hall May 26 at 10 a.m. for the event, which also honored faculty members and mothers of graduates. More than 70 were present.

Miss Eva Maria Trimmel, Vienna, Austria, American Field service exchange student who is spending a year in Grants Pass, was guest speaker. Miss Trimmel is herself a member of a graduating class.

After a short explanation of the American Field service plan which sponsored her year in this country, the speaker described her preconceived wrong impressions of Americans and told of the happy year she has spent in this country.

Miss Trimmel expressed regret that the year will come to an end, since she is returning to her home in early June. She believes that those of other countries receive the wrong impression of America and Americans from propaganda and from advertising in magazines. Miss Trimmel believes that the only way to correct this impression is for residents of other countries to come to America and "see for themselves."

The speaker said she hoped the student exchange program could be "stepped up" in order that more young people will be able to live in America for a time. Miss Trimmel, who was making her second appearance for the Civic club, was presented a gift from the group.

Mrs. Cloyd Dick, secretary of Rogue River schools, was mistress of ceremonies. Mrs. Dick introduced the class valedictorian, Miss Dianne Eranostian, and each student then introduced the next.

Each student told how many years he had attended Rogue River schools and spoke of immediate plans. Eleven students attended both grade and high school in Rogue River for the entire 12 years and 23 students spent the entire four years in Rogue River High school.

One graduate, Bill Thompson, after having spent a year in the United States Naval reserve, will report for active duty in the Navy June 13. Twelve students plan to enter college and three have made plans to enter technical training courses.

Miss Virginia Albin is class salutatorian.

Mrs. Lynabel Deck, Civic club president, gave a short address of welcome and Neil Wagner, class president, responded. The invocation was given by the Rev. Robert L. Maxson, pastor of Hope Presbyterian church, and the Rev. Henry Holsinger, pastor of Wimer Community church, the closing prayer.

John Harr, principal of Rogue River High school, expressed his appreciation for the Civic club's sponsorship of the breakfast, saying it is a worthwhile contribution to the school and community and represents many hours of planning and work.

Mrs. H. J. Stephens was breakfast chairman. Mrs. Earl Brooks and Mrs. William White, with assistance from Mrs. Jerusha Moore, club mother, had charge of the floral arrangements. Baskets of iris, peonies and bridal wreaths were on the stage and corsages were provided for each girl graduate and for the women guests. Men and boys were given boutonnières.

The class colors, Newport blue and white, were used for table decorations which included foil-covered "rockets" placed along the center of the long tables in keeping with the "space age."

Mrs. Beryl Ingie was chairman of table decorations. Background music for the breakfast was provided by Mrs. Ray Powell, who played accordion selections.

Annual Dance Held by School

Butte Falls - "Whispering Palms" was the theme of the annual Student Body Prom of Butte Falls High school. Miss Linda Ellis was prom queen, and Miss Earlena Vas-seur was princess.

To enter the gymnasium where the formal dance was held, guests passed over a bridge which spanned a sparkling stream. Refreshments were served in a palm grove. Benches were covered with netting and were placed against a background of fish netting covered with shells and seaweed.

Making a round of the floor, dancers passed a sail boat in an ocean setting, and an island with sandy walkway.

The Bell Aires from Medford played for dancing.
