

Boy's Body Found At Silver Falls

Silverton—The body of little Martin Jerome Ryan, 5-year-old son of a Portland postal worker, was found at 5 p.m. Tuesday, 100 feet down a steep bluff at Silver Falls State park.

Discovery of the body ended a day of searching by some 100 persons. The boy had wandered away from Memorial Day cutting at the scenic park 20 miles east of here. After wading through heavy timber, he tumbled over the bluff, stopping on a rocky shelf part way down.

Jack Clark, 18, a former explorer scout and member of a volunteer group of searchers from Astoria, stumbled over the child's body about one-half mile from the 177-foot Scenic Falls.

The boys, on a family picnic when the lad became lost, searched the area and then called Marion county police. Daniel Ryan, a post office employee in Portland, stayed overnight in the park looking for his son.

The boys recently lost a leg to illness. Coroner Charles Edwards placed death at some time Monday evening. Deputies said the child apparently fell after dark.

Western Union Employees Walkout

Washington—700—Members of a union of Western Union employees went on strike Tuesday.

The walkout was the result of a contract dispute that would provide a 10-cent per hour increase in wages and benefits.

Members of the union of the company and the Communications Workers of America went on strike Tuesday.

State Fair Art Superintendent Quits in Dispute

Salem—The superintendent of the state fair art show quit Wednesday rather than accept a recommendation from the Oregon Fair Commission and Fair Manager Howard Mable to add a fourth judge for this year's show.

John Laneta King, Salem, said he was submitting his resignation letter to Mable and would accept it if Mable would accept it.

The commission approved the request and indicated that the commission could select the fourth judge. That is when Mrs. King refused to back down.

"This indicates a lack of confidence in my judgment," she said. "I would be impossible to work under these circumstances."

Myrna Loy Sheds Fourth Husband

Juarez, Mexico—Actress Myrna Loy won an uncontested divorce here Tuesday from her fourth husband, movie producer Howard Hughes.

Judge Manuel Gomez Gonzalez granted the divorce on grounds of "incompatibility of character." The divorce was granted by a Mexican court, but did not appear in court.

Miss Loy appeared with her attorney. She said she and Hughes had been separated about two years. They were married June 2, 1952, in Ft. Myer, Va.

Miss Loy's first three husbands were Arthur Hornblow Jr., John Hertz Jr., and Gene Markey.

CONVICTION IN CONTESTS London—Britain's prison commissioners have decided to allow convicts to enter some kinds of giveaway contests, such as newspaper contests. But the officials said they still are banning contests with prizes that are "obviously unsuitable . . . such as a four or visit."
