Zoo Buys Chimpanzee as Girlfriend for Gorilla

Memphis, Tenn.—(UPI)—Terrible Timmy's conduct is enough to make Gargantua turn over in his grave and send Tarzan screaming back into the jungle.

It's bad enough that the one-year-old gorilla would rather play with children, but when it reaches the point where he's afraid of other animals—it's time to call in a psychiatrist.

In an effort to overcome Timmy's fear of animals, officials at the Memphis Zoo decided to buy a chimpanzee girlfriend for the ape.

"He's just got to learn he's an animal, and this little girl chimp should help him immensely," said city zoo director Raymond Gray.

Timmy's troubles began almost from the moment he was born. Gray said the timid ape has lived in the homes of zoo officials since that time and has been treated like a human being, with children as his playmates.

Gray ordered the girl chimp from Alton Freeman, owner of the Miami Rare Bird Farm. He said he will put her in a cage near Timmy so he can overcome his phobia.

The chimp, three years old and the same size as Timmy, will be moved closer every day until they start playing together.

But any romance will be a short one, said Gray. The zoo has placed an order in Africa for a female gorilla for Timmy.
