Table Rock - The annual meeting of the Antioch Cemetery association held last Monday at the cemetery grounds was fairly well attended by members. Alvin Greb of Eagle Point was elected director for a three-year term. Other business transacted was the raising of the price of 10 by 20-foot lots to $25, and the 10 by 10 lots to $15.

A committee was appointed to get estimates on the cost of drilling a well, and a clean-up day was set for Saturday June 4, commencing about 9 a.m. Those interested should bring a sack lunch, if they intend to stay all day. Bring such tools as rakes, shovels, pruning shears, and a few lawn mowers would help speed up the work.

Local farmers who grow sweet corn for the market, report pheasants are pulling up the young plants, and black birds are in waiting for the roasting ears later in the fall.

Haying is going ahead here full blast, with an average crop of alfalfa being put in shape for baling, if the skies stay clear, and the temperature stays up for a few days.

Frank Decker, the Thompson Creek floater, was here Wednesday, zipping off the woolen coats of the neighborhood sheep. He said they were the biggest sheep he had ever sheared, some of them he believed, weighed as much as 300 pounds. After the shearing, there was the usual searching for mothers by the lambs, who failed to recognize mommy with her new hair-do and slender form.

When the Deford family lived here, where the Stallings family lives now, they had a flock of hens, and several roosters. One old Dominick rooster had put the starts to all the others, and had them baffled to such an extent that they would not when he started their way. Mrs. Deford was dyeing clothes one day, and Frank caught the old Dominick, and soused him into a pot of red dye. Later, when turned out with the flock, the other roosters thought he was an intruder, and when he started to show his lordship, he was met with flying beaks and spurs, and soundly thrashed by each rooster.

Mrs. V. L. Gebhard has received a letter from County Judge Miller, explaining that her petition requesting a speed control sign on the Table Rock road between the Table Rock Store and the Table Top Ranch, was referred to the State Speed Control Board for investigation and, after investigation, had denied the request.

The board stated that according to their findings there was but one accident during 1959, and the prevailing speeds are such that the 55 m.p.h. statutory speed for rural areas is applicable. It seems that if we get any speed control here, we must have more accidents. Several cars have been pulled out of the ditch lately, but luckily no one was hurt. Three soldiers were killed on the curve near the Table Top Ranch some years ago.

While we are not equipped with radar, the section line crosses the road right at our front gate, and it's a mile to the next section line, at the west corner, and a mile to the east corner. When a car passes our gate, and goes around either corner, in less than 60 seconds, it is traveling more than 55 m.p.h., the statutory speed mentioned by the State Speed Control Board.

Charley Hoover has worked out a septic tank plan for taking care of the drainage over-flow, that should be of interest to those with tight soils. Material used to control the drainage is course sawdust, or shavings, which there is plenty of in this valley, and has been found to do a thorough job, with no odor or flies. Oro Moore, of the Eagle Point grange, helped work out the system, which has been accepted by the State Health Dept., according to Charley Hoover.

County Commissioner Ralph James was a brief business caller here Thursday. In speaking of the recent election, he said one thing helping to defeat him was the zoning plans, as in districts where this was a controversial subject, his vote fell off. Ron James is chairman of the planning commission, and Ralph thinks some people opposed to zoning, voted against the name James, thinking that the chairman of the planning commission.

The local Ladies club will hold their June meeting, Wednesday, June 8, at the home of Mrs. Aubrey Taylor.

Those from here who visited the Central Point cemetery on Memorial Day noticed that the ladies of the Relief Corps, an auxiliary of the G.A.R., who put flags on graves of those who took part in the War of the rebellion, are having a harder time in finding the graves, as they get older, and their sight dimmer.

Mrs. Josephine Cornutt of Kanes Creek spent Wednesday night with relatives at the R. E. Nealon home.

A man who attended a recent zoning meeting at West Side says some folks over there don't like to hear a hen cackle, but he says when a hen cackles, it's because she's done a service to humanity. The rooster crows, and everybody knows there'll be eggs for your breakfast in the morning.

We just had to put in a plug for the roosters, although our rooster wakes us up at four o'clock each morning. His voice sounds the same as it did back as far as we can remember, just as defiant and courageous as ever, with no tensions, in spite of the new ways of speed, stress and strain, that cause tensions to humans.

The absentee voters put some of the candidates back in the dog house.

Thought for the day: Don't count your chickens before they are hatched.

Fire 'Started'

By Mail Tribune

Lone Pine - The Mail Tribune started a fire in the back seat of a car here yesterday.

How's that for objective reporting? Correspondent Dot Simmons reported this morning that a fire started at 3 p.m. yesterday in the back seat of an auto owned by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stephens, 925 Modoc ave., when the sun ignited a copy of the newspaper laying across the top of the back seat.

Medford firemen quickly extinguished the fire. The seat and rear window were scorched and a coat and blanket were damaged. The couple had just returned from a trip when the blaze broke out.

Mrs. Simmons added, however, that Mr. and Mrs. Stephens will not cancel their subscription.

Shady Cove-Trail - The Rogue Wonderland association, an organization composed of the business people of the Upper Rogue area, held a special dinner meeting at Rogue River Lodge Tuesday evening.

Howard Buckner, KBOY announcer and advertising salesman, spoke to the group on radio advertising for the Upper Rogue area, pointing out that, as shown through a recent survey, 4 of every 5 1959 cars on the highways today are equipped with radios, thus the importance of radio advertising as a medium for reaching tourists.

The slogan selected by KBOY for the Upper Rogue area, "Give Your Eyes A Scenic Break - Follow the Rogues to Crater Lake," was used successfully last year and will be a key slogan in use on KBOY again this year.

Buckner spoke of the importance of tourists knowing the weather conditions in the area and said the station will now be getting daily reports on the weather from Union Creek which will be broadcast three times a day.

Mrs. Boothby has had requests for more pamphlets from Bend, Pasadena, North Hollywood, Salem, San Mateo and other more distant points and stated that from reports received by her they had been very well received.

Rick Eastin, president, gave a report on the state highway meeting which was attended by Eastin, Leo Hoag, Paul Doe and Steve Wilson and commented on the favorable attention they received at the state highway commission hearing. Eagle Point - Bob Assall, Gary Sheldon, Richard Hertager, Benny Sutton and Gary Clement each received a tie clasp for being the five outstanding boys in shop at Eagle Point High school during the past year at the achievement night held last Wednesday.

More than 80 boys taking shop displayed at least one article of handcraft with the entire freshman class constructing freeform coffee tables and the rest of the projects being chosen in the most part by each individual, and supervised by Instructor Donald McGovern.

The display featured both fiberglass and plywood boats, desks, coffee tables, end tables, beds, cedar and mahogany chests, cabinets, laminated stools, jewelry boxes, trays, lamps, a metal boat trailer and various other articles, making it one of the largest displays Eagle Point has shown.

Bob Assall, senior, and Gary Sheldon, sophomore, constructed 13-foot long fiberglass boats. Gary's runabout features a dark turquoise deck with a white hull. The upholstery consists of white leatherette seat coverings. Bob's craft features a Hawaiian blue deck with a white hull and he chose light blue and white leatherette upholstery.

Richard Hertager, sophomore, exhibited his 14-foot mahogany plywood runabout with its cordonna blue and white hull and a mahogany deck. Dick used white leatherette seat coverings with silver bindings. He sprayed his boat with a plastic resin for waterproofing. Each of the boats was equipped with a 50 H.P. Mercury engine.

McGovern stated that Jim Vandergrift and a few of last year's students helped him make the boat molds out of resin last year that the boys are now using to make their fiberglass boats. The boats are painted prior to their construction by painting the inside of the molds with the paint they want used on their boats. A layer of cloth is then added and well-saturated with resin—a layer of matting—roving—and another layer of saturated resin before it is ready for curing and assembling. The hull, decks, and floorboards are riveted and covered by a rubber stripping.

According to McGovern, the boys will be able to make their own skis from laminated plywood next year with the shop owned ski-jig that was put together by Pepper Huffman and Max Hawks, both seniors.

Paul Evers, a senior, displayed the bed that won him a blue ribbon at the Oregon State Industrial Arts Fair this past year and the metal boat trailer he constructed to go with the boat he built in his sophomore year.

Visitors Gather At Old Cemetery Over Week End

By KATHERINE CHAPMAN

Mail Tribune Correspondent

Hornbrook - The historic Henley-Hornbrook cemetery was the mecca for countless out-of-town visitors, over the Memorial Day week end.

Of the 248 persons who signed the visitors' register, the one from the farthest distance was Mrs. Charles Dailey Jr. from Hawaii, a relative of Mrs. William Sanders. Other visitors came from points ranging from Calexico, Calif., to Seattle, Wash.

One of the most beautiful and well-kept cemeteries in this part of the country, the old burial ground, dating back to 1834, is the final resting place for members of numerous pioneer families of Old Oregon Trail days, and many of those who make annual Memorial Day visits here are descendants of these early-day families.

During the day's activities each year, many old friendships are renewed as the visitors mill around and talk over the old days.

For the past few years, a project of the Hornbrook Grange has been the serving of a ham dinner at the Grange hall on Memorial Day, which has accommodated many of the visitors spending the day here. Some 70 dinners were served this year.

Until about 20 years ago, the local cemetery was typical of many country cemeteries—overgrown with weeds and uncared-for, except for a quick clean-up of individual graves by family members on Memorial Day.

Through the efforts of Gordon Jacobs, who at that time was chairman of the board of Siskiyou County supervisors, an almost infinitesimal tax assessment was passed which has enabled the cemetery association to provide permanent care for the grounds.
