A question and answer period and general discussion will follow the formal talks.

Members of other community organizations are invited to attend, as well as guests of Altrusans. Dinner reservations may be made by calling either of the hostesses, Mrs. Virgil Mohr, SPring 2-5918, or Mrs. C. Beebe, SPring 3-3019, no later than noon on Wednesday.

Trousseau Tips Compiled For Use of Brides

United Press International (Editor's Note: How the newlyweds will live is important in trousseau planning. The following questions and answers along this line are based on information presented in "Your Trousseau and How To Plan It" - a booklet distributed by the International Ladies Garment Workers' Union).

Q. What will your day-to-day life demand in the way of clothes? Will you work or be a homemaker?

A. The career trousseau will naturally stress street clothes. The homemaker needs fewer street clothes, but her everyday clothes - for housework, marketing and community activities - should be becoming.

Q. How much social life and what kind will your inclination and income permit?

A. If you expect your life to be home and community centered, your clothes needs will be different than if your favorite evening is a "night on the town."

Q. As a couple, will you lead more of an outdoor life than a party life?

A. If so, buy lots of wonderful sports clothes and fewer party dresses.

Q. What are the activities and income of your future husband's circle of friends?

A. You marry each other "for richer or poorer." This may mean a change in status for you. Don't overdress if your husband's position and friends are simpler than your parents'. On the other hand, if you will be going up the social-economic ladder, take the trouble to make your clothes right. That is, they should make a good impression.

Q. Are you and your husband homebodies?

A. If so, include at least one lounge or hostess costume.

Q. Are you marrying a military man?

A. If so, make your trousseau compact. Your living quarters are likely to be small.

Q. Will you live on a college campus?

A. If so, you will wear mostly sports clothes. Allow at least one evening dress and one informal party dress.

Q. Will you attend business conventions in a big city with your husband?

A. Your basic wardrobe, if it is good, will take you there and home again with success and well-being. A good quality day dress, a perfectly fitting suit with two pretty blouses, a becoming short party dress will accommodate any program unless a formal dinner or dance is announced in advance.

Straw, Flowers, Feathers Make Beach Accessories

By GAY PAULEY UPI Women's Editor
New York - (UPI) - The summer crop of beach accessories looks like a madcap harvest of straw, flowers and feathers.

For the girl who has everything else - including a good figure, there even is a Bikini bathing suit which looks like a lost flower pot. A look through fashions from manufacturers specializing in the non-conservative turned up these items for the sun set.

A bikini of black stretch fabric, with the bra and shorts covered with pink silk hydrangeas everywhere, except where a girl sits down. This suit is from Flower-made, a New York firm which pioneered artificial flower earrings and flower-trimmed bathing caps some years ago.

This year, flower-mode showed straw-base beach hats, coolie shaped, and covered from crown to brim edge with large pink petals, so that the result appeared to be one giant rose.

The same firm produced flower-trimmed "wind bonnets," which are crisp nylon veiling tied under the chin to protect the hair while riding in an open car, and sun glasses which looked like something right from the greenhouse.

In the case of the latter, the dark glass itself formed the heart of the flowers, with rims surrounded by fabric rose, daisy, sweet pea, violet or sunflower petals. Some of the petals were of gingham-check or polka dot fabrics.

One New York retail store revived the pince nez shape in sunglasses, showing this 18th century style with delicate black cords attached to nylon frames.

Beach hats for 1960 run all the way from the conservative pork pie shape, through coolies decorated with flowers, paillettes, artificial fruits or vegetables, to straws with brims wide enough to pass for a parasol.

Undisputed master of the wild beach hat is William J., the young New York designer who the rest of the year turns out millinery sane enough for church or a woman's club luncheon.

One group, called ice cream prior straws, were shaped like the old-fashioned ice cream soda mugs topped with pastel-colored ostrich feathers and a couple of straws shooting upward like the ears on a television set.

Another, dubbed Parfait, combined a straw base with a fluffy, marabou topping dyed pistachio, grape or peach colors. The general shape of this headgear was of a horn of plenty.

William J. also produced a combination beach umbrella-fan. A straw disc inside the parasol held this headpiece on when opened to its nearly two-yard diameter. Folded, it served as a fan. The work was trimmed in brilliantly-colored ostrich feathers.

Real Wild
But the milliner figured his "kookiest" of all was the wig hat - strands of raw silk which he said could be combed like nature's own locks. "But don't take it to the laundromat," he warned, "take it to your hairdresser."

The part which fitted over one's own hair, plus curlers if necessary, was cloche shaped and made of straw. Manes, dyed natural white, turquoise and shocking pink, ranged from waist to ankle length - to turn a bathing beauty into Godiva without a horse.

Blue Star Mothers Have Program of Aid

Illinois Valley - Blue Star Mothers of Illinois Valley are carrying on a program of aid and rehabilitation. A sewing day was held June 1 at the home of Mrs. Cecil Fessler to complete layettes, and plans have been made to collect bedding and clothing for rehabilitation projects.

At a recent general meeting, Mrs. Clara Prentice, Selma, was a guest. Mrs. Clifford Davis, secretary of the club, is now making her home in Eugene and Mrs. Paul Lechert is substituting. Mrs. Winnie Pickle has been appointed department community chairman, and Mrs. Evan Kubli is Americanism chairman for the local group, Chapter 3.

Mrs. Doye Hamilton and Mrs. Bert Woodbury were hostesses for the general meeting.
